PERSONAL AND TRADE NOTES.

JANOVSKY & FALITZ, parquet and hardwood flooring of all description, have removed from 1406 Fulton st to 523 Nostrand av, Brooklyn.

WALKER & GILLETTE of 128 East 37th st, Manhattan, have completed plans for interior alterations in the yacht "Noma," owned by Vincent Astor.

WILLIAM H. COOKMAN, architect for the Pennsylvania Railroad Company, won the competition recently held for the new station at Wilkinsburg, Pa.

KENNETH M. MURCHISON, architect, 101 Park av, N. Y. C., recently won the competition held by the Pennsylvania Railroad Company for the new station to be erected at Johnstown, Pa.

ROBINSON & WEBBER, builders and general contractors of 1368 Broadway, have dissolved partnership owing to the ill health of Mr. Webber. The business will be continued at the same address under the name of Bernard Robinson.

BUREAU OF SEWERS.—The Board of Estimate has named three of its members—Mayor Mitchel, President Pounds and President McAneny—as a committee to formulate a definite policy for the betterment of the city's sewer system.

GEORGE W. RECTOR, INC., who conducts the restaurant at Broadway and 48th st, has won the right to use the name "Rectors." A decision just handed down from the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court favors the defendant and allows him to continue the restaurant under its present name.

NATIONAL SASH & DOOR CO., Inc., has removed its factory and office from New Lots and Hopkinson avenues to 137-139 Bayard street, Brooklyn, N. Y., where it will continue the manufacturing of kalamein doors, windows and mouldings, and also continue to specialize in standard fire doors and labor law windows.

EXHIBIT OF NORTH CAROLINA PINE.—Arrangements are being made for a permanent exhibit of North Carolina pine at the Country Life permanent exhibition, Grand Central Terminal. The exhibit will be in the form of a complete building of the bungalow type. Different styles of finish will be used in the several rooms—some being painted and others stained, while one or two will be finished in the natural color of the wood.

DAVID J. HAVENS, for eleven years vice-president and secretary of the Rapp Construction Company, of 30 East 42d street, erectors of patent fireproof floor arches, has withdrawn from the firm and organized a new company, known as the Jefferson Concrete Company, with offices at the same address. Mr. Havens will continue along the same line, the installation of reinforced concrete arches for hotels, loft buildings and apartment houses, etc.

STATE WORKMEN'S COMPENSATION COMMISSION announced that it intends to declare dividends averaging 15 per cent. on the first six months' business, and to reduce rates of the State Insurance Fund, effective January 1. The new rates will average 20 per cent. below present rates of the liability companies. The reduction will not be a general horizontal cut, but a systematic downward revision, based on the experience developed by the different classes of risks. As the present rates of the State fund are 8 1/3 per cent. lower than those of the companies the contemplated reduction will mean a net cut averaging 11 2/3 per cent., according to the State Commission's report.

M. TSCHERNER has resigned as president of the Clifton Porcelain Tile Company, of 51 Clifton st, Newark, N. J., and Henry A. Pike has been elected a member of the board. Mr. Tscherner remains as a director. Mr. Pike was formerly connected with the American Vanadium Company and the Flannery Belt Company of Pittsburgh. The Clifton Porcelain Tile Company has begun to market the non-lead glaze porcelain faced wall tile and vitrified floor tile under the Stegmeyer process which makes a non-crazing product at a lower cost than was possible, it is said, with lead.

OBITUARY

GEORGE L. FELT, the contractor, and president of the Twenty-fifth Street Construction Company, died last Friday at his home, 485 Central Park West, of a complication of diseases. He was forty-seven years old and is survived by his widow. Mr. Felt was a member of Marble Lodge No. 702 F. and A. M., Knights Templar, Mecca Temple, Mystic Shrine and the Republican Club.

TRADE AND TECHNICAL SOCIETY EVENTS.

THE EIGHTH ANNUAL CONVENTION of the Chicago Cement Show will be held at the Coliseum February 10-17.

AMERICAN SOCIETY OF REFRIGERATING ENGINEERS. Annual meeting, New York City, November 30-December 1. Secretary, W. H. Ross.

TECHNICAL LEAGUE OF AMERICA.—Regular meetings third Friday of each month. Walter L. Smyth, secretary, 74 Courtlandt st, N. Y. C.

THE ANNUAL RECEPTION AND BALL of the Master Plumbers of Manhattan will be held at Terrace Garden, 58th st, near 3d av, on November 30.

AMERICAN INSTITUTE OF MECHANICAL ENGINEERS.—Meeting in New York City, December 1 to 4. Calvin W. Rice, secretary, 29 West 39th st.

NATIONAL BUILDERS' SUPPLY ASSOCIATION.—The annual convention will be held in Chicago, Ill., February 8-9, 1915. Headquarters at Hotel Sherman.

NEW YORK CHAPTER, AMERICAN SOCIETY OF HEATING AND VENTILATING ENGINEERS, regular meeting third Monday of each month, Engineering Societies' Building, 29 West 39th st.

AMERICAN SOCIETY OF ENGINEERS, ARCHITECTS AND CONSTRUCTORS, regular meetings second Wednesday of each month, in the Engineering Societies' Building, 25 West 39th st. T. Hugh Boorman, secretary.

SECOND INTERNATIONAL EXPOSITION OF SAFETY AND SANITATION will be held at the Grand Central Palace, N. Y., December 12 to 19, 1914.

INTERNATIONAL ASSOCIATION of Master House Painters and Decorators of the United States and Canada will meet in annual convention in Washington, D. C., Feb. 9 to 12, 1915. The headquarters will be at the Hotel Raleigh. A. H. McGhan, Corcoran Building, Washington, D. C., chairman of Convention Committee.

INTERNATIONAL EXPOSITION OF INVENTIONS will open at the Grand Central Palace, New York City, December 12, and continue until December 19. During the week of the exposition a series of lectures have been planned, which will be delivered by competent authorities, on the interests of American inventors and patentees.

THE WEIGHTS AND MEASUREMENTS ASSOCIATION OF THE STATE OF NEW YORK has accepted an invitation from the Merchants' Association and Commissioner Jos. Hartigan of the Mayor's Bureau of Weights and Measurements, to hold its Eighth Annual Convention in this city next spring. Commissioner Hartigan arranged the conference in which ten states will be represented to discuss uniformity in rules, regulations and specifications with the idea of ultimately securing the passage of New York legislation in this subject.

NATIONAL BRICK MANUFACTURERS' Association will hold its annual convention at Detroit, February 14 to 20. William B. Wreford, of the Detroit Brick Manufacturers' Association, in co-operation with President Eben Rodgers, of Alton, Ill., and Theodore A. Randall of Indianapolis, constitute the committee of arrangements. The association will also bring to Detroit the National Paving Brick Manufacturers' Association, the National Clay Machinery Association, and the American Ceramic Society.

ARCHITECTURAL LEAGUE.—At a meeting of the League this week, with Cass Gilbert presiding, resolutions offered by Thomas Hastings were passed deploring the destruction of great architectural triumphs in the European war zone and further saying: That the Architectural League of New York voices its most profound regret for the dire misfortune which has already befallen the Cathedral of Rheims, as well as the library of Louvain and other noble edifices in the war zone; and, further resolved That we hereby make record of the hope that all belligerents will hereafter respect the master works of past generations which belong to the whole world, and which no indemnity can replace, and the ruins of which can stand only as a perpetual disgrace to their destroyers. Moving pictures taken in the war zone and photographs of the wrecked and ruined cities were shown.

TRADE LITERATURE

New Brick Catalogue.

If anybody wants to get a reliable and concise idea of the modern range of brick shapes, sizes and colors for facade or decorative purposes a perusal of the catalogue just coming from the press and soon to be issued by the Sayre & Fisher Co., 261 Broadway, at Warren street, will give all the information a prospective builder, owner or architect may desire. Incidentally figuring sizes of special types of moulded enamel brick shapes are given. One rather unique feature about this catalogue is the specific instances of where various types of brick manufactured by this concern have been used.

The value of this information in an architect's library consists in the fact that whenever a client comes in and asks for a building erected of a certain type, cut or shape of brick, he can be directed by the architect to a building already erected where that particular brick forms the facade surfaces. Many prospective builders decide regarding the type of brick they will use in seeing a panel or a single sample brick. The finished building with this type of brick employed may not agree with the conception the client had of his structure, but by the aid of this directory the architect easily can make sure that his client has a correct perspective of his finished building by looking at an actual structure so adorned.

The catalogue, which is illustrated, contains a short sketch of the brick company, which was established in Sayreville, on the Raritan river, near South Amboy in 1851. The company owns 2,500 acres of clay deposits and supplies this market direct. The company has shipping capacity of more than a million brick a day. Copies of this catalogue will be available about the first of the month.

BUILDING MATERIALS AND SUPPLIES

PARTIAL STIFFENING IN TONE OF MARKET FOLLOWS INCEPTION OF FEDERAL RESERVE BANKING SYSTEM—MONEY TO BE FREER

Talk of Bringing Newark Clay Products Exhibit Here to Encourage Domestic Buying

IT is too early to expect a change for the better in building material buying as a result of the introduction of the federal reserve banking system on Monday, but there are many signs that indicate an impending change for the better. Raritan brick has stiffened on winter deliveries. Quotations are being made at $6 bottom. Hudson common brick is bringing from $6 to — for covered winter supply. Current quotations were reported to firmer at $5 to $5.25. Raritan brick on current orders are at about the same level.

All materials closed the week in a firmer tone. The trend of prices were steady to stiffer rather than toward lower levels. Building money lenders said they were breathing more freely than they have been in nearly three months. They could see where the relinquishment of more than $150,000,000 for business purposes would soon make it possible to fulfill engagements and to permit building construction to proceed. Labor unions reported inquiries from contractors as to the number of men there were available as though they expected to be able to resume operations at an early date. Linseed oil advanced two cents. One Buffalo pig iron furnace withdrew its quotation of $12 on deliveries over the first half of 1915, but stood on its quotations for the first quarter. Certain lines of hardwood, hemlock, spruce and yellow pine are believed to have reached their lowest price levels.

Any change in current demand for materials will be immediately reflected in prices, according to the best sources of trade information. Building stone orders have reflected the general state of building construction in the past, but the activity injected into the marble trade by the practical shutting off of imports from the Italian marble quarries is spreading to other branches of the stone trade. Quarries are reported to be taking on more hands.

There was some talk in the trade this week of bringing the proposed Newark clay products exhibit to this city under the auspices of the Building Material Exchange in March when the Newark Museum Association starts it on its way around the country. It is to be hoped that something of this kind may be brought about. It should benefit building material interests here as it is hoped it will do elsewhere. There is no better organization to introduce the innovation than the Building Material Exchange. Vice-President Miller is a Newarker and will have a chance to study the success of the idea at close hand, so there is good ground for entertaining a hope that it will be brought to the Exchange in the Woolworth building or located in the Building Material zone in the Grand Central terminal district where architects and prospective home builders will find it conventient to drop in and look over the ideas presented.

The museum calls for modest, inexpensive exhibits of products from common brick plants, tile, architectural terra cotta, decorative building pottery and their components. It is a good opportunity for all building material interests to pull together for better and more attractive buildings.

Plan filings for the week just closed follow. In the corresponding week last year there were 220 new building plans filed, valued at $2,345,622.

COMMODITIES.

Building Materials Had Part in Shrinking Index Number.

THERE is nothing startling in the statement that building materials have had an important influence in the bear movement on commodity prices in the recent past. Builders and building material manufacturers have been fully aware of this fact, but the extent of it is illuminating, not so much for its volume as for its meagerness.

In an analysis of the entire commodity market Bradstreets shows that the price of basic building materials dropped from Index .0831 on November 1, 1913, to .0816 on November 1, 1914, that being the same level for October 1 of the current year. In August of this year the basic building material index figure was .0822, showing that since the war broke out the prices of building materials in this market have dropped .0006 points.

The only increase was in anthracite coal, a supply and not a building commodity. The decreases were brick, pig iron, steel beams, linseed oil, nails, hemlock timber and plate glass. Bituminous coal, lime, ordinary window glass, yellow pine and spruce timber are put down as unchanged.

One reason why building materials do not figure heavier in the detraction of general commodity values is because the market was weak and severely shaded on many lines when the war broke out. Materials are closing the weakest price year they have known since 1893. When the stock exchange closed and business became stagnated the prices of all building materials save only structural steel, were as low as it was profitable to sell and in the case of common brick sales were actually being made below cost of manufacture and towage. In certain lines quotations remained nominal as far as published lists and surface selling were concerned, but there were many instances reported of competition developing shading where good business was offered

LUMBER.

Despite Disturbed Conditions in Finance and Business Western Lumber Trade Is Developing.

BUILDING lumber in the wholesale market shows signs of strengthening. The change in sentiment seen last week which seems to be permeating all lines of business, has made itself felt in the building lumber department. So far, however, it has not yet reached the point of heavier buying by consumers, the change being principally felt in the freer inquiry from dealers. The protracted spell of clear weather has permitted what little construction work contemplated to proceed without interruption, which has reduced dealers stocks further than they had expected.

LINSEED OIL.

Strengthening of Prices at Duluth for Flaxseed May Boost Oil.

ADVICES from Duluth to the paint and oil trade yesterday morning indicated that the market for flaxseed there was strong and further advances in prices occurred over the gain of 2¾ to 3 cents per bushel reported on Thursday. The local market for linseed oil continued firm at 47 and 48 cents, but indications late yesterday afternoon were to the effect that an increase would be reported early next week in this city.

PETROLEUM.

Lubricants in Moderate Demand—Crude Petroleum at 1.45.

OILS and lubricants are in a moderate market. Crude petroleum is quoted at $1.45 at the wells, whereas a year ago at this time it was listed at $2.50. All floor dressings are in moderate demand. Mineral lubricants are quoted at 13 and 13½ for black refined, while crude wax is selling at 3½@3¾c a pound.

CLAY PRODUCTS EXHIBIT.

Building Material Exchange May Bring Newark Museum Here.

IF success crowns the attempt of the Newark Museum Association, of which former Governor Franklin Murphy, of New Jersey, who is also president of the Murphy Varnish Company, is the chief executive, and John Cotton Dana, the Newark librarian, is director, to arouse popular interest in the subject of more artistic, as well as safer and saner homes in city and suburbs, the Building Material Exchange may bring part of the museum to New York next spring.

Vice-President Thomas C. Miller of the Exchange is a Newarker and is active in the campaign for better buildings. This exhibit is designed primarily to lift an industry up to the level of art to study different materials from an ordinary common brick to an intricate piece of faience, in the light of an art object as well as its economic value in house construction, seems to open to building material interests of the metropolitan district a splendid opportunity to help in popularizing fire resistive materials not only in cities, but in the suburbs.

The idea, according to Secretary Dana, has been borrowed from Germany, where the Werbund, a union of artists, artisans and merchants, has done a similar thing in a small way for years. In the present case it is planned to send this museum to every city and district in the United States, to show what products can be "Made in America" and the poor economy of erecting homes that are not safe to live in and have high upkeep costs.

The clay products field has been selected for the first experiment because New Jersey is only second in value of pottery products for the whole country and because the clay and brick industries are so scattered from the north to the extreme south end of the State that a concentration of interest may do good. It is thought that such an exhibit will not only permit specifiers to see for themselves not only that as good and as artistic tile, architectural terra cotta and faience are made in this country as were formerly made abroad, but that it will give the consumer a chance to appreciate what artistic combinations can be effected in building construction and decoration by tile and its components like cement and lime, in bonds, stuccos, etc.

The disposition of the Building Material Exchange is to note what success the Newark museum meets with. It will open in February and continue for six weeks. At the end of that time the exhibits will be available to any city desiring their use.

A. Wilfred Tuthill, manager of the red brick department of the Sayre & Fisher Company, and a former president of the Exchange, said he thought the idea was a good one, especially at this time when improved merchandising systems were forcefully in the American business mind.

Vice-President Miller, James S. Higbee, of the James R. Sayre, Jr., Company of Newark, one of the members of the Newark Museum Association, and former Presidents A. W. Tuthill, of Sayre & Fisher Company of this city, and A. V. C. Genung, Jr., of Cook & Genung, and others, are interesting themselves in the project. Exhibits will be shown from some of the most prominent manufacturers of common brick, hollow tile and drain pipe in New Jersey. Exhibits from New York will also be received and listed as exhibits.

BRICK.

Unloading Drops Off and Wholesale Movement Declines.

OPERATING under the impression that the brick manufacturers up the Hudson will soon be shipping down a large quantity of brick to be held on speculation under cover for a possible winter rise in the brick market, the dealers did not come into the buying market this week very actively. The arrivals totaled only 21 barges and the sales 25, an unusually low record. Even unloading fell off, although the distribution was apparently wider because 161 boats reported as against only 117 last week.

Official transactions for Hudson River brick covering the week ending Thursday, Nov. 19, in the wholesale market, with comparison for the corresponding period last year, and a comparative statement of Hudson brick unloaded from barges for consumption here, follow:

FIRE ALARM SYSTEM OF NEW YORK CITY

Its Past History and Present Plans for Radical Improvement— When Completed Will Be Most Modern One in Existence

By PUTNAM A. BATES, E. E., Chief Bureau Fire Alarm Telegraph

THE movement for an improved fire alarm system for the City of New York, which the present administration, through its Fire Commissioner, Robert Adamson, has actively taken in hand, was started in December, 1904, when the insurance companies urged that a committee be appointed and report. In February, 1905, the New York Board of Fire Underwriters, under the direction of Messrs. Carty and Miller, signaling experts, made a careful study of the problem in Manhattan, and reported the system beyond repair. The report stated that the only remedy lay in the installation of a new system, separate and distinct from the present one, and, when completed, the old one should be abandoned. In 1907 preliminary plans were prepared for a modern fire alarm system for Manhattan.

Little Headway Made.

Practically nothing more was done for the next four years. Small appropriations of Corporate stock were set aside, but these funds were largely diverted to continually pressing needs incidental to keeping the old system in operation. In ten years the money set aside aggregated about $1,609,000.

Through the establishment by the present administration, of a definite policy with regard to "subway" construction, based upon the opinion of the Corporation Counsel, much misunderstanding and delay will hereafter be avoided. The agreement between the City and the Empire City Subway Company, in 1891, makes it mandatory upon that company to provide the city with such ducts as may be needed for the fire alarms in all streets where subways exist, or where there may be a demand for subways.

Thus the city will be able to install the modern fire alarm system, without constructing subways, which offers an advantage in the element of time, as well as in cost. This saving will not be confined to Manhattan, but will extend to the Bronx, Brooklyn, Queens and the built-up portions of Richmond.

Disposition of Appropriations.

Following is the disposition made of outstanding appropriations and the extent of new work undertaken: A new central station building each for Manhattan, Brooklyn and the Bronx; underground service cables, for connection with 138 street boxes in Manhattan; also for 199 street boxes in Brooklyn; an important underground feeder line to southwest Brooklyn; bridge cable connecting Manhattan with Brooklyn; underground service cables for connection with 119 street boxes in the Bronx; also 8 in Queens; also 2,000 alarm post boxes; a supply of 300 cast iron manhole frames and concentrating subways leading to the new Manhattan Central office building and the similar structure in the Bronx, respectively.

The aggregate of these contracts amounts to about one-third of the total appropriations, all of which were found in an unfinished state, except four of the smaller items, representing a total of about five per cent. The unemcumbered balances were about equal to the aggregate of the contracts placed, leaving a remainder of about one-third of the total appropriations diverted to other uses, principally that of maintaining the old system.

In 1865 the fire alarm plant consisted of twelve bell towers, or look-out stations, located at points of advantage, such as the cupola in the City Hall, Washington Market, Essex Market, Jefferson Market, 33rd street, 51st street, 85th street and what is now known as Mt. Morris Park. This latter tower is still in existence.

By means of spy glasses men watched from these towers for smoke or other indication of fire and by means of the Morse telegraph signaled directly to the central office and the message was communicated to the Department by the striking of bells at the twelve towers. The City Hall office was the terminus of four lines connecting the Post Office, Essex Market, Union Market, MacDougal, Jefferson and 51st street towers. It is an interesting fact that some of the fire telegraph apparatus installed at this time has performed its service until the present day, a period of almost fifty years. This primitive system was soon found inadequate and in 1870 a complete new installation was made, costing $450,000.

Over-head Wires Costly.

"Over-head" wires are the most costly to maintain, as they are subject to injury by every storm that occurs. New work of this character hardly can be completed before defective conditions arise through interference from other over-head wiring systems. "Underground" systems are less costly to maintain and when properly installed, their life is several times the length of that of over-head service.

In a large city like New York the operation of the fire alarm is accomplished manually. Many attempts have been made to devise schemes whereby the full operation might be performed automatically, but so far nothing feasible has been evolved.

The present installation comprises two distinct classes of circuits, box and engine house circuits. The former connects the central office to a certain number of street boxes. but at present there is a great variety both in the length of box circuits and the number and type of boxes connecting the same. Some of the circuits in Brooklyn, for instance, have more than one hundred boxes, while the average throughout the city is approximately twenty-five. All street fire alarm boxes are operated on "closed circuits." In other words, current is constantly flowing and any interruption may be detected at once at the central office. Thus, operators always know the condition of their lines. The current used is drawn from storage batteries located at the central office and charged from the Public Service supply.

Change of Location.

It was strongly emphasized in the preliminary plans that the new central office of the new fire alarm telegraph system should be afforded the maximum degree of protection against hazards of any nature. It was recommended that the structure for Manhattan should be erected on Transverse road, No. 1 in Central Park. The exact location was not defined and the final decision was made to locate this building on Transverse road, No. 2. This decision was made as a result of recommendation by the Department of Parks. The fact that the building is in the park is an unquestioned advantage, but unfortunately its exact location was surrounded by hazards which will necessitate additional constructive work to insure safety.

Absolute Protection Necessary.

In planning such a building the aim must be to make it absolutely fireproof and, insofar as possible, immune from all hazards, such as earthquakes, wind storms, explosions, or floods. It is obvious that a serious hazard is created by the presence of a large body of water, such as now exists in the reservoir approximately 150 feet north of the site selected for the Manhattan central office, and also the presence of a 20-inch and 48-inch water main now resting on Transverse road, immediately in front of the fire alarm building. This is equally true of the gas main in the same street.

For Brooklyn and the Bronx the sites selected are all in public parks, but semblance of the hazardous condition in Manhattan does not exist. The interior plumbing systems are, however, and the installation of the main service electrical connecting will be restudied to avoid the possibility of interruption to electrical supply through any internal disorders.

All Wires Underground.

It is the purpose of the present administration to place all new wires under ground as far as practical and the specification which has been adopted to these tables requires that should be composed of solid conductors of soft copper of a size corresponding to No. 16 B. & S. gauge. Each conductor shall be tinned and insulated with a high grade vulcanized rubber compound. The thickness of the insulating wall not less than 3-64 of an inch and 30 per cent. fine Para rubber compound, with mineral base, will be required. The central office equipment, in the case of the three boroughs for which new buildings have been erected, is yet to be designed, but, in general, these installations shall be of such a nature as to operate properly and efficiently in all respects over the circuits they will control.

Allowances for Growth.

The new installation will be so designed as to enable it to operate in strict accordance with the present routine of the fire-fighting companies and officers of the department. It is the intention of the present administration so to plan the new system as to allow for sufficient flexibility as to its mode of operation so that it may be regularly adaptable to any future changes deemed advisable or necessary.

The fire alarm equipment in the outlying boroughs is a matter of no small importance, especially so in consequence of the enormous increase in the numbers of wires comprising electrical systems, the majority of which are still carried overhead on pole lines. The interference of electrical wires with those of the fire alarm telegraph is a source of constant menace. The only manner in which this difficulty permanently may be eliminated is by the laying of all conductors underground. This is the chief problem incidental to the completion of modernizing New York City's fire alarm plant, and measures must be taken to proceed with the extension of the underground system in such a manner as will enable the work to proceed under a uniform plan and not by a piece-meal.

Maintenance Cost Large.

The amount of labor and material expended upon the circuits to maintain the service has been unusually large year after year in consequence of the constant interference caused principally by the extensive removal of the poles and wires by workmen employed by the commercial service companies and by the continual deterioriation through ageing of the plant itself. The transfering of the circuits to subways, which was begun in Manhattan about 1888, has to some extent been continued each year, but at entirely too slow a rate. The work has been hampered and appropriations have been adequate only for extensions of small extent. The splicing of cables with many conductors must be made by expert workmen, with great care, and cannot be done in wet weather. The work has also been delayed on account of complete plans for the entire undertaking not having been prepared.

As a source of relief in a matter of dangers due to continued use of overhead circuits, the city has attached its wires and cables to the elevated railroad structure in Manhattan and Brooklyn, at best a make shift, not long to be continued. At the time it was regarded as the best and cheapest method of supplying support to cables and at the outset the cost of maintenance was small, due to their being less liable to mechanical damage. This, however, was during the period when the elevated train service was operated by steam engines. The dangers from the power current now in use on the roads and the excessive deterioration of the cables has caused this installation to be regarded as dangerous as well as the most unreliable element in the fire alarm system.

Start in the Bronx.

It is interesting to note the manner in which the fire alarm system in the Bronx came into being; namely, when the last thorough attempt was made to modernize the fire alarm system in New York City in 1870, covering at that time Manhattan, there were 700 boxes installed upon 50 circuits, and subsequently the same circuits were extended to the Bronx and some 300 boxes added. Since then from time to time new boxes have been erected until the circuits originally installed were carrying 1,350 alarm boxes. The result is some systems have too great a length are so overloaded as to militate against their efficient operation. This condition has been relieved in a measure, from time to time, through the increased construction of lines.

Brooklyn has suffered even greater through this difficulty of extending existing circuits and the placing of additional boxes, without regard to the limitations beyond which the circuits cannot be carried without militating against the operation of the system. The borough is in a serious condition at the present time. Queens and Richmond are in like condition.

Citizens of the outlying borough should be provided with better means of communication with the Fire Department and not be compelled to resort to the telephone with all its appending delays. The boxes should be arranged in numerical order and a modern type of lamppost containing the alarm box and equipped with red globes should be adopted as a standard.

Extent of Mileage.

The entire extent of the circuit mileage, including both the underground and overhead wires, make an aggregate in the five boroughs of between 3,500 and 4,000 miles. It will be seen that the more substantial is the method of installing these conductors, the less will be the yearly cost of maintenance. The desired end can be accomplished at this time at a minimum expense, owing to the existence of extensive lines of underground conduits, a large portion of which the public service subway companies have installed in the last few years.

The system in the various boroughs is at the present time so antiquated as to be virtually a disgrace to New York City. Some of the original apparatus installed between 1865 and 1870 is still in service and, in expert opinion, almost the entire telegraph system is obsolete. The line plant in the various boroughs is inadequate and unsatisfactory.

Scope of the New Plans.

The following is the scope of the new plans now being prepared for the several boroughs:

Manhattan: The plan of street box locations provided for 1,650 street stations so spaced that a person standing at any point need not travel more than 400 feet to the alarm box, and, in many cases, especially below Fulton street, this distance will be much less. All feeder and distribution wires will be in underground cables, thus insuring the greatest protection against interruption of service.

The Bronx: The new work will constitute a ten-year improvement. The majority of feeders will be underground cables and a large portion of the distribution circuits also will be placed underground.

In Other Boroughs.

Brooklyn: Permanent installation for one-third of the borough, as proposed, makes the planning of a modern fire alarm installation, difficult. The entire statement does not offer any unsurmountable problem, but it is my judgment as the final system should not be installed at one time, owing to the relatively undeveloped character of property in many sections. Water frontages, from Newtown Creek to and including Coney Island, include valuable property and many lives are at stake through inadequate fire alarm protection. The system should be modernized here as soon as possible. This installation as it is now being planned will be extended sufficiently to include practically one-third of the entire borough.

Richmond and Queens: These boroughs present a quite undeveloped aspect and except for those extensions which are needed to rectify unsafe conditions, it is not my intention to prepare plans, at this time, for extensive improvements. However, a considerable quantity of additional boxes will be installed in each of these two boroughs.

ARTIFICIAL REGULATION.

Four Hundred Violation Orders for One Real Estate Corporation.

In the annual report of the directors of the Realty Associates there is contained a most severe arraignment of the inspection systems imposed by the city and State upon property owners. The report was issued to the stockholders this week in pamphlet form, and no doubt copies will find their way to the authorities who are responsible for the state of affairs complained of. The directors of the Realty Associates include Messrs. Frank Bailey, Charles S. Brown, Andrew D. Baird, Augustus D. Juliard, Clarence H. Kelsey, Charles A. Peabody, Frederick Potter and William M. Calder. Their report says in part:

Over-zealous Administration.

"To the burden of taxes is added the cost of compliance with the orders of departmental government administered according to the letter of the law. Public spirited men are busy devising new means for improving the housing of people, both in their homes and at their employment, but always at the expense of the realty owner. Over-zealous administration is responsible for a large part of the burden.

"This company was served with nearly four hundred orders during the year, notwithstanding that it employs a staff engaged in the continuous inspection of its properties and had expended over $80,000 in making the repairs which it thought necessary. The net return from rents dropped this year to five per cent., notwithstanding there was no decrease in the gross rents collected.

"An army of men are employed at the expense of the taxpayers in hunting up technical violations of the rules. We will mention some examples:

Vindicating the Law.

"A wooden 'For Sale' sign was erected on a vacant lot belonging to the company under a permit duly issued in January. The nearest building to this sign is seventy feet distant. In November the Bureau of Buildings served notice of a violation which stated, 'Sign is ten inches too high and not fireproof. You are required to have same cut down or covered with metal.' We had ten inches of earth placed underneath the sign, reducing its height above the ground level by that much, and the law was vindicated.

"Notice was received from the State Department of Labor stating that one of the stores of the company was used for manufacturing purposes. On examination the tenant and his wife were found making jam in the rear of the store, which was on the ground level. The order directed among other things that all doors should be altered and arranged to swing outwardly. The department was notified that the tenant would vacate on the first of the month and a request was made for a stay of the order. The extension of time was refused on the ground that the risk was extra hazardous.

A Hailstorm of Orders.

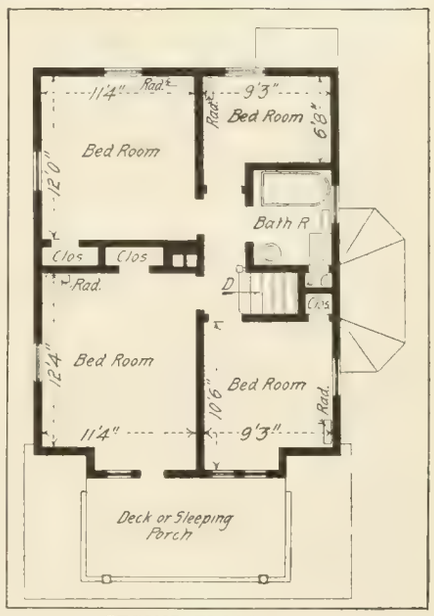
"Some idea of the magnitude of the burden imposed upon owners may be formed from the number of orders issued by the various departments, as reported for the year 1913. The Bureau of Buildings issued 21,950 orders, the Board of Health, 12,700 orders affecting real estate; Bureau of Fire Prevention, 45,310 orders; State Department of Labor, 10,000 orders; Tenement House Department, 175,226 orders, together with an unknown number from the Bureau of Boiler Inspection, Department of Water Supply, Gas and Electricity, the License Bureau and the Bureau of Encumbrances. The cost to comply with these 265,186 orders of one year, if those served on this company represent an average cost, would amount to $11,500,000.



"From this overlapping of authority and conflict of rulings, the owner has no rest. Each new administration finds something new in the law with which to keep its force of employees and incidentally the owners busy. It is the real estate owners who pay the bills."

SOLVING THE "SMALL HOUSE" PROBLEM

Compact Arrangement of Interior as Well as Attractive Exterior, at an Outlay of $4,000—Many Unique Features Installed

SECOND FLOOR PLAN.

THE small house problem is ever with us. A constantly increasing demand is reported by suburban realty dealers for houses of moderate size, containing say six and seven rooms, as distinguished from the demand a few years ago for houses with nine and ten rooms. Housewives are more perplexed with the servant problem and are casting about for the small house that will not become a burden in case of the departure of the servant. While looking at houses prospective tenants and purchasers alike usually linger in the living room, viewing it from every possible angle. They note its liveableness, its ventilation, its light, the fireplace or nook and the various "features" that speculative builders insist are so important.

The prospective lady of the house, however, soon makes her way to the kitchen to see how things are arranged there. She notes the arrangement of the sink, stove and the closets and decides on its workableness. She then proceeds to the bathroom in response to the popular belief that the economies in housekeeping are more easily detected there than elsewhere.

In modern suburban cottages a sleeping porch is now usually considered a necessity. It must be on the south side of the building to get the benefit of the summer breezes; also must be large and accessible enough to be worthy of the name.

To design a house that would embody in a large measure these requirements, and still be constructed within a cost of $4,000, was not the work of a moment, but required much thought and careful planning. The design presented is the work of Armstrong & De Gelleke, architects, 122 East 25th street, New York City.

The width of the house was limited by the owner to twenty-two feet, and he requested a living room the entire width of the house. Immediately the problem arose of how to enter this room indirectly, that is, how to arrange the vestibule, without occupying a part of the living room itself. It was finally decided to take full advantage of the wide porch and create an outside vestibule with a quarry tile floor, thus permitting the living room twenty-one feet long and twelve feet wide, which is much larger than many houses twice the size.

It was then planned to use the balance of the porch for an enclosed, heated sun room in winter, replacing removable sash with screens in summer. A generous outside room, nine by fourteen feet, was thus formed of what in most cases is a bleak and barren open space in winter. It provides not only a large living room, but an auxiliary sun room, thoroughly heated.

Attention is directed to the arrangement of the stairs accessible to both the kitchen and the living room, with a simplicity of construction not usually found even in larger houses. The stairway is nearly enclosed by a high railing permitting access to the kitchen without interruption to the living room.

The kitchen arrangement is after the most approved efficiency studies. All furniture and apparatus have been located near the door leading into the living room. The sink with dish closet above, is immediately accessible to the door, thus obviating long walks with dishes. Careful study is evident in the general layout of the kitchen, a much overlooked room generally, even in otherwise well-designed houses.

Planning the second floor was a problem in avoiding loss of space in hall and unused corners. The actual space that is taken up by the hall is less than twenty-five square feet, including stair landing. Three good-sized rooms with closets and one small room, so isolated that it can conveniently be utilized as a maid's room, or den, if desired, have been located on this floor.

Transforming a porch roof into an open-air sleeping room, awning covered, was achieved without loss to the general design. Entrance to the sleeping porch is through casement doors that correspond in appearance to the windows in the front.

Altogether a house has been constructed with three rooms and sun parlor on one floor, four rooms and bath on the second floor with sleeping porch, and embodying real architectural merit and constructed within a cost of $4,000.

Probably the best proof of the wisdom of careful planning and general good taste is that before the house was completed the owner had a number of offers both for rent and for purchase from visitors who were attracted by the exterior appearance of the house, and who further investigated the general arrangement of the interior, which was found to be an ideal one for the requirements of a small family. The decorations are harmonious throughout and the atmosphere of the house breathes of home.

AN ATTRACTIVE RESIDENCE IN THE SUBURBS.

Map for Queens Boulevard.

The Topographical Bureau of Queens has forwarded through the Borough President to the Board of Estimate a map for that section of Queens boulevard from Grand street, Elmhurst to Hillside avenue, Jamaica.

The treatment adopted by the Topographical Bureau shows for the section between Grand street, Elmhurst, and the Union turnpike two sidewalks twenty feet wide, two service roadways twenty-eight feet wide, two parkways thirty feet wide and one central roadway forty-four feet wide. On the section between Union Turnpike and Hillside avenue the divisions are narower.

WAR REVENUES FROM REAL ESTATE

Stamp Tax on Deeds, Notes, Fire and Casualty Insurance Policies—Special Tax on Places of Amusement—Goes Into Effect December 1

UNDER the terms of the national war revenue law a stamp tax will be imposed on and after December 1 on all deeds and conveyances required by law to be recorded, and also upon all sales or transfers of stocks, bonds and certificates of indebtedness. The aim of the law is to provide additional revenue temporarily, to meet the loss of revenue from customs.

On deeds, instruments or writings whereby any lands, tenements or other realty shall be granted, assigned, transferred or otherwise conveyed when the consideration or value of the interest conveyed, exclusive of the value of any lien or incumbrance thereon exceeds $100, and does not exceed $500, the tax will be 50 cents; and for each additional $500 or fractional part thereof, the tax will be 50 cents.

The tax does not apply to any instrument or writing given to secure a debt. A writing giving the power of attorney to sell or lease real estate, or to receive or collect rents, or to sell or convey stocks, bonds or script, or for the collection of any dividends or interest thereon, must carry 25 cents worth of stamps.

General Provisions.

The law imposes various taxes which may be classified as follows:

1. Special tax on bankers, brokers, places of amusement and tobacco dealers. Took effect November 1.
2. Stamp tax on promissory notes, legal and other instruments. Takes effect December 1.
3. Stamp tax on perfumery and other preparations. Takes effect December 1.
4. Liquor tax—stamps required on wines and liquors. Took effect October 23.

Persons making, signing or issuing promissory notes and various other taxable instruments are required to affix thereto tax stamps of the proper value. The several collectors of internal revenue will sell and deliver stamps at their face value. They may sell any quantity of not less than $100 of face value with a discount of 1 per cent. Stamps may also be obtained from designated U. S. depositories and the various postmasters.

How to Cancel Stamps.

A person using or affixing stamps to promissory notes, legal or other taxable instruments or papers shall write or stamp thereupon the initials of his name and the date upon which the stamp shall be attached or used, so that such stamps may not again be used.

On and after December 31, 1915, the taxes levied under the Act shall no longer be levied and collected, but all taxes arising or accruing before said date shall continue to be collectible under the terms of the act. On and after January 1, 1916, the provisions of Section 3339 of the Revised Statutes, as amended by act approved April 12, 1902, imposing a tax on fermented liquors, shall not be affected by any limitation as to the levying and collecting of the additional tax imposed by this act on such fermented liquors, but shall then be in full force and effect on and after January 1, 1916. All unused stamps, after the expiration of the act, shall be redeemed from the holder thereof under Treasury regulations.

Special Tax on Bankers and Others.

On and after November 1, 1914, special taxes are imposed annually on the businesses herein set forth. Various forms are now being prepared by the Internal Revenue Bureau. You should communicate at once with the Collector of Internal Revenue in your district and arrange to receive blank forms of application and other papers necessary to obtain a license and to fix the amount of the license tax.

"PAY, PAY, PAY!"

When a real estate owner sells a piece of property and gives a deed, the instrument must carry revenue stamps at the rate of fifty cents for every five hundred dollars of equity.

When he gives his agent power of attorney to collect his rents, the instrument must carry twenty-five cents' worth of stamps.

Shippers of building material by railroad and other carriers must see that their bills of lading or other evidence of receipt and forwarding carries in every case a 1-cent revenue stamp.

Every policy of fire insurance and plate glass, employers' liability, steam boiler, elevator and sprinkler insurance must be stamped when newly issued. Also, stocks, bonds and certificates of indebtedness issued by any company or corporation. And bankers and stock brokers, commercial brokers and commission merchants must pay a license tax under the new law.

Places of Amusement Taxed.

Proprietors of theatres, museums and concert halls, according to the seating capacity as follows: 250 or less, $25; 250 to 500, $50; 500 to 800, $75; over 800, $100. This includes every edifice used for the purpose of dramatic or operatic or other representations, plays or performances where a charge for admission is made. Halls and armories, rented or used occasionally for concerts or theatrical representations are not included. If the edifice is under lease at the passage of the act, the tax shall be paid by the lessee unless otherwise stipulated between the parties to the lease.

Bowling Alleys and Billiard Rooms.—Proprietors shall pay $5 for each alley or table. Includes every building or place where bowls are thrown or where games of billiards or pool are played and that are open to the public with or without price.

Tobacco Dealers and Manufacturers.—This tax is based on the annual sales for the preceding fiscal year. Those whose business it is to sell, or offer for sale, manufactured tobacco, snuff, cigars or cigarettes, are deemed dealers in tobacco.

Stamp Tax on Stocks and Bonds.

On and after December 1, 1914, a tax is imposed with respect to the following instruments, upon the person making, signing or issuing the same or for whose use or benefit the same is made, signed or issued. The tax on telephone messages, apparently, is not a stamp tax.

Five cents on each $100 of face value or fraction thereof, of bonds, debentures, or certificates of indebtedness issued on and after December 1, 1914, by any association, company or corporation. Five cents on each $100 of face value or fraction thereof of each original issue of certificates of stock, whether on organization or reorganization, and two cents on each $100 face value or fraction thereof on all sales or agreements to sell, or memoranda of sales or deliveries or transfers of shares or certificates of stock, whether made upon or shown by the books of the company or by any assignment in blank, or by any delivery, or by any paper or agreement or memorandum or other evidence of transfer or sale, whether entitling the holder in any manner to the benefit of such stock, or to secure the future payment of money or for the future transfer of any stock. No tax is imposed, however, on the deposit of stock as collateral security for money loaned, provided the stock certificates are not actually sold.

Building and Loan Associations.

Stocks and bonds issued by co-operative building and loan associations, mutual ditch or irrigating companies, and building and loan associations that make loans only to their shareholders are exempt from the tax. The language of the act in point follows "That stock and bonds issued by co-operative building and loan associations or companies that make loans only to their shareholders shall be exempt from the tax herein provided." Solicitor Johnson holds that under this provision loan associations have no exemption except for their own stock and bonds.

Each policy of insurance or other instrument by which insurance shall be made or renewed upon property of any description (including rents or profits), whether against peril by sea or on inland waters, or by fire or lightning, or other peril, made by any person, association or corporation, upon the amount of premium charged, one-half of one cent on each dollar or fractional part.

Purely co-operative or mutual fire insurance companies or associations carried on by the members thereof solely for the protection of their own property and not for profit are exempted from the tax. Policies of reinsurance also are exempt from the tax.

Insurance Policies.

Each policy of insurance, or bond or obligation of the nature of indemnity for loss, damage, or liability issued, or executed, or renewed by any person, association, company, or corporation, transacting the business of fidelity, employer's liability, plate glass, steam boiler, burglary, elevator, automatic sprinkler, or other branch of insurance (except life, personal accident and health insurance, and insurance described and taxed or exempted in the preceding paragraph and excepting also workmen's compensation insurance carried on by the members thereof, solely for their own protection and not for profit) and each bond, undertaking or recognizance conditioned for the performance of the duties of any office or position, or for the doing or not doing of anything therein specified, or other obligation of the nature of indemnity, and each contract or obligation guaranteeing the validity or legality of bonds or other obligations issued by any state, county, municipal or other public body or organiation, or guaranteeing titles to real estate or mercantile credits executed or guaranteed by any liability, fidelity, guarantee or surety company upon the amount of premium charged, one-half of one cent on each dollar or fractional part thereof. Policies of reinsurance are exempt from the tax.

Several banking houses, including the Broadway Trust Company and the Guaranty Trust, have prepared in pamphlet form clear, compact and all-informing digests of the law for more or less general circulation, and to which we are indebted.

NO OPPOSITION TO UNITING DEPARTMENTS

But a Difference of Opinion in Respect to Method—Borough Autonomy for Building Inspection Urged by Borough Presidents—Welfare Work Separate

A REMARKABLE degree of unanimity was developed at the hearing before the State Factory Commission on Monday in favor of the unification of all departments, State and municipal, having jurisdiction over the construction, alteration and maintenance of buildings, as proposed by the commission. The attendance was larger at the morning session than the courtroom could accommodate, and was of the most representative and impressive nature. Four of the Borough Presidents, the President of the Board of Aldermen, the heads of a number of municipal departments, and accredited delegates or spokesmen from probably every civic organization in the whole city having an interest in public affairs composed the most interesting audience we have seen at the seat of local government in years.

Up for consideration was the draft of a tentative bill for the creation of a department of buildings together with a board of standards and appeals therein. Lieut.-Governor Wagner presided, and Counselor Abram I. Elkus conducted the examination. The witnesses called at the first session were Messrs. Rudolph P. Miller, who is assisting the Board of Aldermen's Building Committee in revising the city Building Code; Henry Bruère, City Chamberlain; President McAneny, of the Board of Aldermen; Robert E. Simon, delegated by a conference of civic societies; Commissioner Adamson, of the Fire Department; President Matthewson, of the Borough of the Bronx; President Pounds, of the Borough of Brooklyn; President Connolly, of the Borough of Queens, and President McCormick, of the Borough of Richmond; Dr. Emerson, Deputy Commissioner of the Department of Health, and President Robert D. Kohn, of New York Chapter of Architects, who presented a brief which had received the endorsement of not only his own society but also of the Building Trades Association and the Board of Underwriters.

There was only one opinion expressed regarding the main principle contained in the proposed amalgamation of departments. No dissenting voice was heard on that point. An end would have to be put to the over-regulation of buildings in the City of New York. Whether it is better to have one central place of authority for the whole city, or to have, instead of this, borough autonomy, is a question to be settled, and from present appearances it will not be difficult to settle. Entrusting everything having to do with the maintenance or "housekeeping" of all kinds of buildings to a new central city-wide department, and leaving whatever has to do with the construction and alteration of buildings of all kinds to a department of buildings in each of the five boroughs, is the plan recommended by the Borough Presidents, as an alternative to the plan for one central authority, as proposed by the State Factory Commission, ex-Superintendent of Buildings Miller and others.

Borough President Matthewson discussed the advantages of the borough plan as distinct from the city plan, in an interesting manner. He maintained that governing the boroughs by means of deputy building superintendents had been tried and found to be a failure, and that the present form of government, which gives full authority to the Building Superintendent in each borough, had proved efficient and successful.

Counselor Elkus read an announcement that it was the present feeling of the commission that it would be unwise to include the Tenement House Department in any scheme for consolidation, but was open to suggestions.

President Kohn, speaking for the architects and builders of the city, repeated their previously recorded approval of the principal involved in the intended amalgamation. They believed the amalgamation should be complete; they could not see, President Kohn said, why the Tenement Department, for example, should be excluded.

Further, they believed that the new department should include all the powers of the city and State departments mentioned in the tentative bill, and in general should control only matters affecting the construction, alteration and fire prevention equipment of buildings in Greater New York. But they believed that, instead of a single board of standards and appeals, there should be two separate boards, one to be a board of standards, consisting of the commissioner of buildings, the five superintendents of buildings and three or five experts. The board of appeals (or board of examiners) should be distinct from the board of superintendents . It should be a non-political body with its members designated by the Mayor and nominated by the architectural and building and insurance societies of Greater New York. The Chief of the Fire Department should be a member, and there should be added members nominated by organizations most interested in tenement house protective legislation.

Mr. Kohn said the time allowed for a study of the draft was inadequate and he asked for a later opportunity to prepare a detailed criticism.

A Formidable Resolution.

Robert E. Simon, representing a score of civic organizations which sent delegates to a conference at the rooms of the Real Estate Board of New York City read a resolution which had been passed at the meeting in favor of the general principle of consolidating all the departments and bureaus having to do with building inspection. As to the best way of bringing this about, Mr. Simon asked for more time for consideration, and agreed to submit a brief on or before the tenth of December.

President McAneney said he was strongly in favor of an amalgamation of departments, but he thought, in view of the approaching State Constitutional Convention and the new Charter legislation to follow in 1916, that the bill for the amalgamation of departments should not be introduced at the coming session of the Legislature, though it would be well to provide some measure of immediate relief.

City Chamberlain Bruère and Fire Commissioner Adamson advised an amalgamation of all building inspection departments into one central department eventually, but recommended that it be done gradually—first the departments having to do with construction, and then the departments having to do with maintenance, as the board of standards and appeals should decide. This was the opinion which the Mayor's committee had arrived at after a number of conferences.

The Tentative Bill.

The draft prepared by the commission covers the consolidation of all the departments and bureaus outlined in the plan previously submitted. It is probable that an amendment to the Charter will be necessary to provide for complete co-operation between the new department of buildings and the Division of Fire Marshal, which under the plan is to remain in the Fire Department.

It establishes a department of buildings with jurisdiction throughout the city. The head of the department will be the commissioner of buildings, appointed by the Mayor. He will appoint a chief inspector for each borough. The commissioner may establish in the department such bureaus and divisions as he deems advisable. The bureaus and divisions in the Fire Department having jurisdiction over fire-prevention, and the bureaus and divisions in the Tenement House Department the functions and duties of which are transferred by this chapter shall continue as bureaus or divisions of the department of buildings until otherwise provided by the commissioner of buildings.

The main office will be in Manhattan with branches in each borough.

Jurisdiction of Department.

The department will have exclusive jurisdiction and control of:

1. The construction, alteration and removal of all buildings and other structures, completed or in the course of construction, and the enforcement of laws and ordinances in respect thereof, except waterfront property, bridges, tunnels, subways and buildings and structures appurtenant thereto. (See § 406, Charter and Building Code.)

2. The enforcement of the provisions of the Labor Law in respect of the construction or changes in the construction of factories, factory buildings and mercantile establishments and the adequacy of exit therefrom and the limitation of the number of occupants therein. (See Labor Law, § 79, et seq.)

3. The enforcement of the tenement house law, the prevention of encumbrances on fire-escapes upon tenement houses, and the lighting and ventilation of tenement houses, and the premises connected therewith. (See §§ 1340-1341, Charter.)

4. The installation, inspection and approval of all gas and electric equipment, apparatus and appliances placed in any building or structure, to the extent that such jurisdiction and control is conferred by statute or ordinance upon the Department of Water Supply Gas and Electricity, and the enforcement of such statutes and ordinances, but not including the installation, inspection and testing of gas and electric meters. (See §§ 469, 519, Charter.)

5. Structural changes in bakeries, confectioneries and food product manufactories to the extent that jurisdiction and control to order such changes is conferred by statute or by ordinance upon the Health Department and the enforcement of such statutes and ordinances. (See Labor Law, article VIII.)

6. The inspection, testing and issuance of license certificates for steam boilers, and the issuance of certificates of qualification for the care and control of steam boilers, to the extent that jurisdiction and control thereof is conferred by statute or ordinance upon the Police Department and the enforcement of such statutes and ordinances. (See §§ 342, 343, Charter and laws 1901, chapter 733.)

7. The enforcement of all laws and ordinances in respect of:

a. The prevention of fires and danger to and loss of life and property therefrom.

b. The storage, sale, transportation or use of combustibles, chemicals and explosives.

c. The installation and maintenance of automatic or other fire alarm systems and fire extinguishing equipment.

The U. S. government is able to find new sources of revenue in short order when it needs them, and why can't the city?

Restrictive legislation, national, State and municipal, is doing more than anything else to dampen down the fires of industry. Everybody is agreed as to this except the uplifters, who are mainly responsible for putting on the damper.

The traffic to and from Queens has become so heavy that the trolley company has been directed by the P. S. Commission to put on more cars. Have you ever stood on the bridge at evening and watched the army of homegoers?

Next Monday afternoon, or sometime before midnight, the Board of Aldermen will fix the total of the City Budget for the coming fiscal year. As the Finance Committee's report will not be ready before Monday, the time for its consideration will be brief. Taxpayers are hoping that the cuts will be numerous and reasonably deep ones.

In Wall street houses dealing in stocks and bonds every consideration is extended to the buyer of small lots, because he is recognized as the backbone of the market. In city real estate, on the contrary, it would seem as if there were a conspiracy to discourage the small buyer by making small holdings unprofitable through over-regulation and restrictive laws.

Judging from outbursts against "home rule" for New York City that are appearing in upstate newspapers, an educational campaign, with the object of explaining the real measure and kind of local government that in justice is owing to this city, would be a good work for the Real Estate Association of the State of New York. Nothing contrary to the spirit of American institutions will be asked for, so far as real estate and building interests are concerned. The most they pray for is protection from piratical bombardment from Albany.

The Real Estate Outlook.

The sale of a block front on the West Side to the City Investing Company constitutes a hopeful variation from the monotonous insignificance of the ordinary real estate news. The transaction will result in a regular speculative building operation. The block front will be broken up and sold to builders for improvement. Not so long ago operations of this kind were as numerous as leaves on a tree, but recently money market and real estate market conditions have combined to make them as scarce as pacifists in Germany. A certain number of apartment houses are being built on Park avenue by unusually strong operators or wealthy private owners, but Park and Fifth avenues furnish exceptions to all rules. Broadway does not occupy any such peculiar position in the world of Manhattan real estate; and its reappearance as a scene of speculative building operations is a matter for encouragement. It must mean both that renting conditions in that important neighborhood are likely to be favorable next fall, and that fair prospects exist for an easier money market later in the winter.

During the next two months the number of this kind of real estate transactions is likely to increase steadily. An apartment house in order to be finished in time for ocupation next fall, must be started during the winter, and this property must be purchased within a comparatively short time. It is not to be expected that very many more Broadway and Park avenue operations will be disclosed, but a good deal of property should be purchased for improvement on the side streets in the better residential districts. During the past fall one of the most popular class of apartments was those situated on the side streets of the East Side which rented from $1,800 to $2,800. The city is under-supplied with this particular kind of living accommodations and it will always remain under supplied because of the extreme difficulty of piling together available sites. It is not easy to buy a 80 or 100 foot frontage on the East Side without paying a figure for the property which makes it necessary subsequently to charge excessively high prices for the apartments. Yet the insistent demand for this class of accommodations and the increasing unpopularity of private houses makes it necessary that they should be built. During the next few months a number of transactions of this kind are likely to be consummated, and as a result of the attempt to buy these sites a firmer tone is likely to develop in East Side residential property.

But the scope of speculative building operations in Manhattan and the Bronx will be restricted. A limited amount of new construction will take place on Washington Heights and beyond; but the whole of the central part of Manhattan will remain inactive. Occasionally a well-to-do owner will himself erect a new mercantile building, as is the case with the corner of 26th street and Broadway, which is just about to be improved; but these cases will be rare. Conditions in the mercantile district have not shown a sufficient improvement to warrant a resumption of speculative business. The vacancies created by the exodus of the retail trade have not yet been filled up, and until they are the work of speculative building cannot be profitably resumed.

The Fulton Street Improvements.

Everyone who is interested in making the new subway system as useful as possible must sympathize with the effort which is being made by the Committee of One Hundred in Brooklyn to improve the plans of the part of the system operated by the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company. The management of that corporation has itself proposed the destruction of the elevated structure in Fulton street from Boerum Place to the Bridge, and the substitution of a new structure in Adams street. The Committee of One Hundred propose a much more radical change. They want all the elevated roads in the business part of the borough pulled down and replaced by a subway.

The advantages of these proposed changes are incontestable and considerable. The subway plan of the committee, in addition to clearing the business part of Brooklyn from the ugly and inconvenient elevated structures, would bring all the trains which run over the Brooklyn Bridge into a subway. They will be reduced to the same level as the trains which use the Manhattan Bridge and the Montague street tunnel, and will consequently facilitate the transfer from one group of trains to the other. The whole system will, consequently, become very much more of a unit. People living along the lines of the elevated roads who constitute a majority of the population of Brooklyn will be brought into much closer relation with the Broadway subway in Manhattan. Business property in the larger borough will, consequently, benefit no less than residential property in Brooklyn. The great object of one-half of the dual subway sustem will be very much better served. Manhattan wage-earners will obtain an improved access to the cheaper residential area in Brooklyn. Brooklyn residents will be able to make their purchases and take their amusements on Broadway, Fifth avenue and the neighborhood with much less inconvenience than they can under the present plan.

There can be no doubt, consequently, as to the desirability of the proposed changes. Their adoption is entirely a matter of legal and financial practicability. The objections on this score are apparently very serious. The increase in expense will be heavy and some method must be found of meeting it which does not increase the immediate obligations of the city. New York has for all practical purposes reached the end of its ability to borrow; and even if it had not it would be hardly fair to saddle on the whole city the expense of this particular change in the subway plans. No doubt Manhattan would benefit, but the benefit which would accrue to Brooklyn is enormously greater. The greatest benefit of all would be reaped by people who own property along the line of the elevated roads in the business section of Brooklyn. The pulling down of the structure would very much improve the value of their holdings and they should contribute correspondingly to the expense of the change. After having collected damages from the company for the erection of the structure, they can hardly object to returning at least the equivalent of the damages for its removal. Final judgment upon the change must be postponed until a concrete practicable method of financing it is worked out.

The Crisis in City Finances.

Editor of the RECORD AND GUIDE:

In considering the budget for the ensuing year as presented by the Board of Estimate and Apportionment ($199,233,286.52), I wish to call your attention to the fact that as a result of the new method of financing public improvements out of taxes and because of interest that must be paid on new subway, water and dock bonds, the budget for the next ten years must increase an average of $10,000,000 a year at least. This means that the budget for 1925 will be at least $100,000,000 more than the budget next year, unless extraordinary measures are taken to reduce the tax burden. New York City will be bankrupt long before this limit is reached—probably before the end of the present city administration. In order to prevent such a contingency I have proposed to the Finance Committee of the Board of Aldermen the following reductions in the budget for next year.

The salaries of city employes in excess of $3,000 a year should be reduced on a graded scale—ten per cent. should be deducted from all salaries between $3,000 and $5,000; 15 per cent. from all salaries between $5,000 and $10,000 and 20 per cent. from all salaries in excess of $10,000. These or similar reductions should be made in order to effect a saving of $5,000,000 in the budget next year. Salary reductions have been made by all prudent business concerns where business has been curtailed through economic hardship or as a result of the war.

The city is spending $400,000 a year for the repair and maintenance of automobiles used by city employes and $200,000 a year for the hire of chauffeurs. The original cost of city automobiles exceeds one million dollars aside from automobiles used for fire fighting purposes. The city should dispense with most of the departmental automobiles, except those needed for engineering inspection and other necessary purposes, and employment should be provided for chauffeurs whose services are discontinued. Departmental automobiles are used largely for the convenience of city employes in moving to and from their home and place of business. The growing cost of automobile services was condemned by the present Mayor and Comptroller as members of the previous administration.

The 1915 appropriation for the Board of Estimate is $635,438, as compared with $385,851 this year, an increase of $249,587. This increase is wholly unwarranted and is due to the creation of new bureaus whose service in part is experimental. The city should dispense with the Committee on Social Welfare, the appropriation for which is $20.400. The work of the Bureau of Standards and of the Bureau of Contract Supervision should be performed by the Finance Department. These bureaus are composed mainly of former employes of the Comptroller's office and when they were transferred to the Board of Estimate the assertion was made by the Comptroller that a corresponding cut would be made in his budget next year. No such reduction appears in the appropriation for the Finance Department as compared with 1914 and the cost of these two bureaus, $252.560, should be deducted from the Finance Department appropriation. The work of the Committee on Education should also be incorporated in the Finance Department where it was previously done and a further reduction of $18,800 appropriated for this committee, should be made in the Finance Department budget. The appropriation for the Committee on City Plan and Taxation should be revised downward.

The budget for the Board of Education is one-quarter of the total sum to be raised by taxation next year and economy in these expenditures is imperative. The city spends more than one million dollars a year for summer and night school teachers. This sum can be saved if the summer vacation of half the force is curtailed from two and a half to two months, rotating the teachers whose vacations are thus curtailed, in the summer schools. The other half of the force whose vacations are not curtailed should be required in like manner, by rotation, to teach in the night schools during the winter, without extra pay. The city can also save several hundred thousand dollars a year by establishing part-time classes in all schools for children under seven years of age, each session to last three hours and one teacher to serve two part-time classes of 30 pupils each. No home work is necessary for children so young.

The deficiency in tax collection is about $25,000,000 a year, or about 15 per cent. of the total sum raised by taxation for purposes of government. At the end of three years these deficiencies are sold as tax liens. Increased taxation means depreciated real estate values, decreased city credit and final insolvency for the city and the property owners. Stern measures must be taken to prevent such a climax to the mismanagement of this city, and I have urged the adoption of measures for saving and economy herein outlined. The tax rate must rise at least ten points each year for the next ten years and an effort will soon be made to increase the debt margin from 10 to 15 per cent. of the total assessed value of real estate.

Untaxing Improvements.

Editor of the RECORD AND GUIDE:

The reasons of your correspondent, E. A. Alexander, for dismissing as chimerical and impractical the proposition to untax improvements, after comparing it to the 16 to 1 heresy, are refreshing. But Mr. Alexander has reached several sound conclusions, one being that it makes no difference to the owner of improved property whether his tax is collected from the land and improvements, or from the land alone, if the amount be the same.

Some owners of improved property object to untaxing improvements through fear that the shifting of the tax from improvements to land will absorb or destroy the land value. They apparently do not see that exemption from taxation of improvements so encourage improvements that the demand for land upon which to place improvements—land being fixed in quantity—must increase the value of their land. Untaxing improvements, under economic law, necessarily increases the value of land. Now, if land continues to increase in value under a system that discourages improvements it must increase more rapidly when improvements are unhampered by taxation.

Mr. Alexander's statement that land increases in value because of the improvements is only partly true. The increase is caused by the presence of population engaged in the production and distribution of wealth. Population lives, and it produces and distributes wealth, in buildings, or improvements. And, as land is limited in quantity, every improvement removes available land from the market and causes the remaining marketable land to increase in value, the improved along with the vacant land. That land decreases in value in spots because of local conditions cannot be denied, and a proper system of taxation must recognize such decrease by lowering the assessed value. But decreases more often result from bad business conditions than from other cause.

The great question for the real estate owner to decide—and he should consider it without prejudice—is whether he will lose more as a land owner from having improvements untaxed and the tax placed entirely on the land, or from having the growth of population retarded and the production of wealth decreased. Many buildings to-day stand empty and many districts show marked decreases in value because population does not increase with sufficient rapidity and the production of wealth has decreased. If our system of taxation interferes with production of wealth and the increase in population, as the untaxers claim, real estate must suffer, because on wealth and population alone do real estate values stand. These economic laws are known to real estate men, as their prognostications of increased values contemplate increases in population and wealth production.

Improved real estate should bring ten per cent. gross to yield six per cent. net. The four per cent. should cover taxes, insurance and repairs, and the land value should increase somewhat to help make good the deterioration in improvements, though the difference between six per cent. net and the current interest rates will help provide a building fund for new improvements. A tax rate, limited to two per cent., yields to the owner a larger share of the increase in value than goes to the public, while every gain by the public, if properly expended, is reflected in further increases in the owners' holdings.

It seems clear, then, that untaxing improvements must greatly benefit the owners of real estate. Of course the untaxing of improvements will increase the burden of the vacant land owner and a few of them may be "caught short." But vacant land must increase in value under the impetus given to improvements by relieving them of taxes; and the vacant land owner, under untaxation, can figure larger profits from his contemplated improvements by reason of the fact that they would be untaxed. The change will cause the vacant land owner to improve or risk losing money, but as the change is to be gradual he will surely gain, as encouraged improvements must increase his values more than enough to offset his loss.

Instead of being a "discarded heresy" the proposed change should appeal strongly to owners of improved and unimproved realty. Indeed, it is safe to predict that our real estate interests will soon support the change they have so far opposed.

With business depression continuing and tenants "doubling up," to make ends meet, the owners of real estate will gladly consent to a change that will put general business on a sound basis that it may pay reasonable rents for the use of real estate.

JAMES P. KOHLER.

Alterations in Tenant Factories.

Editor of the RECORD AND GUIDE:

A lease contains the following clause: "The tenant shall at his own expense comply with all orders, regulations or ordinances of all Municipal, County or State authorities affecting the premises hereby leased or the sidewalk in front of the same including alterations therein, and shall also comply with all orders, rules and requirements of the New York Fire Insurance Exchange and Board of Fire Insurance Underwriters affecting the same."

The Labor Department has recently placed an order upon the building requiring the installation of additional toilets, and the fireproofing of the stair enclosures.

Under the terms of the lease, as above quoted, is it incumbent upon the landlord or tenant to make these changes?

M. D. L.

The resposibility for complying with the orders of the State Labor Department is clearly stated in the Labor Law. See section 94. You can get a copy of the law at the department, Fourth avenue and 27th street. The owner whether or not he be one of the occupants is responsible for the observance and punishable for the non-observance of certain provisions of the law; "anything in any lease to the contrary notwithstanding." The owner of every tenant factory is required to provide each separate factory therein with water closets in accordance with the provisions of section 88. He is also responsible for observing the provisions of section 79-b, which requires that stairways in existing buildings shall be enclosed with partitions of fire-resisting materials.

Demand for Trees.

Judging from the number of applications received from property owners and civic organizations, the recently announced plan of the Park Department to plant trees in Brooklyn is assured of success. Applications will be taken up in the order filed, but the number has reached such proportions that it is feared many will have to go over until the autumn planting season.

The Park Department furnishes the trees with all necessary accessories, such as soil, stakes, tree guards, etc., and performs all the necessary labor, such as cutting concrete or flagged sidewalks, digging holes, planting trees, staking and applying water to the roots, just after planting; clearing away the debris, rubbish, etc., and leaving the street in a clean, orderly condition—all for the sum of eight dollars, to be deposited with the department, when the application is made. A receipt will be furnished the depositor and a guarantee to replace the trees should they die, from natural causes, within three years.

—Indications are that it will be more difficult in the future than in the past to work restrictive local bills through the Legislature. So the offer of the real estate interests to co-operate with the local governing authorities comes with good grace.

—The city owns nearly 100 pieces of property available for playgrounds; Manhattan has twelve, Brooklyn and the Bronx each twenty-seven, Queens fourteen and Richmond eleven.

THREE CITY PROBLEMS.

The Advisory Council of Real Estate Will Seek Reasonable Solutions.

The members of the Advisory Council of Real Estate Interests at their monthly meeting decided to co-operate with the various civic organizations, with a view to obtaining a reasonable solution of the three questions now upon the calendar of the council.

First: The establishment of a proper fiscal policy for the City of New York.

Second: The elimination of unnecessary and extravagant expenses from the city budget.

Third: New sources of city revenue, outside of real estate.

In order that each one of these topics might be thoroughly investigated and a proper report prepared, it is realized that work must be commenced at this time and be continued until the next city budget comes up for consideration. Therefore, a program of co-operation along these lines with the City Club, the Citizens' Union, the Bureau of Municipal Research, and the New York Tax Reform Association has been approved by the members of the council.

City's Fiscal Policy.

With reference to the fiscal policy of the city, the question arises as to under what conditions it would be advisable for the city to issue corporate stock in the form of fifty year bonds, and under what conditions it would be advisable for the city to issue short term bonds. The recent fiscal policy of the city, which was agreed upon by the members of the Board of Estimate and the banking syndicate as a condition precedent to making the one hundred million dollar loan, is regarded as a good business transaction, and based upon good fiscal reasoning, but on the other hand, the weight of taxation necessary to meet our obligations as they fall due will press heavily upon real estate taxpayers. Under these circumstances, a definite fiscal policy must be worked out, in the opinion of the council. When finally decided upon as just to property owners and for the best interests of the city, then the approximately one hundred taxpayers' associations will be requested to endorse the policy and stand as a unit in its defense. If such a fiscal policy as recently approved by the city should become a permanent one, the tax rate must rise very high, to the serious inconvenience of property owners.

In order to relieve the burden upon the property owner, the subject of a new sources of revenue will receive thorough consideration. The Mayor's Committee on Taxation is now devoting considerable time to this subject, and with a view to co-operating with this committee the Advisory Council has decided to do all in its power to make reasonable recommendations along the lines of new sources of revenue, outside of real estate.

Building Inspection.

With reference to the consolidation of the several building inspection departments into one central department the council believes that although there are many commendable features to the plan of having one central building inspection department, nevertheless, at the present time it would be more advisable to support a plan by which these building inspection departments could be centralized under the supervision of the Borough Presidents. In this manner the general principle of consolidation would be carried out.

The council has been advised by its law and legislation committee that it would be expedient also to have a central Board of Appeals, the duties of which would be similar to those exercised today by the Board of Examiners in the several Building Departments. With this end in view a committee will be appointed by the council to work for a bill in the Legislature which will consolidate these various building inspection departments into one Building Department in each borough, with a central Board of Appeals upon which real estate owners will be represented.

Economies in Condemnation Proceedings.

An important subject was finally decided upon by the council with reference to the economies which might be affected through proper condemnation proceedings. In so doing the council commends the general principle to be embodied in the bill which will be prepared to be presented to the Legislature by the City Club, whereby condemnation proceedings will be taken out of the hands of special commissioners and referred back to the judges of the Supreme Court, thus entailing considerable economy in the expenditure of public moneys for the commissioners' fees, interest on dilatory payment of awards, and simultaneously permitting the judges to direct the entire proceedings in a far more effective and expeditious manner than is apparent today. The City Club has for the past few years endeavored to have such a bill passed through the Legislature, and the council believes that it would be advisable at this time that the real estate interests of New York throw their entire influence behind the City Club in its efforts to procure another passage of this bill.

A SOLID FRONT.

Every Taxpayer Society Asks for Departmental Amalgamation.

An important conference was held recently at the offices of the Real Estate Board of New York, 115 Broadway, as the result of action taken by the board to secure co-operation of taxpayers and civic bodies with respect to the tentative plan for a building department, outline by the State Factory Investigating Commission. The object of the bill is to consolidate several departments having jurisdiction over buildings.

The object of the Real Estate Board's conference with other taxpayer bodies was to bring about joint action and decided on a policy with respect to the State Factory Investigating Commission's plan. The conference was attended by representatives of the Advisory Council of Real Estate Interests, Building Managers' Association, Citizens' Union, Fifth Avenue Association, Harlem Property Owners' Association, Merchants' Association, Real Estate Board of New York, 23rd Street Improvement Association, United Real Estate Owners' Association, Washington Heights Taxpayers' Association, Astoria Taxpayers and Business Men's Association, Flushing Business Men's Association, Queensboro Chamber of Commerce, Brooklyn Board of Real Estate Brokers, Bronx Chamber of Commerce, North Side Board of Trade, Staten Island Civic League.

The following have not yet been committed to the resolution: Citizens' Union, Harlem Property Owners' Association, Washington Heights Taxpayers'

Association. The following will probably join in the conference: Broadway Association, Forty-second Street Association, West Side Taxpayers' Association.

The conference after discussion adopted the following broad resolution:

"Resolved, That we favor the consolidation of all departments and bureaus now having jurisdiction over the construction, alteration, structural changes in and maintenance of buildings in New York City."

The resolution with a list of the confirming organizations was presented on Monday last, at the hearing before the State Factory Investigating Commission, by Robert K. Simon, chairman of the joint committee, and further time was asked in which to submit a brief. This was granted by the commission, the date set being December 10.

In the meantime the Real Estate Board will seek co-operation of all taxpayer organizations who are willing to act with the joint committee.

A CO-OPERATIVE PROJECT.

For the Purchase and Operation of Sixth Avenue Stores.

Posner & Company, of 111 Broadway, members of the New York Stock Exchange, are promoting the formation of the "Sixth Avenue Improvement Company." At a meeting held at their office last Saturday afternoon the plan was unfolded and the firm were directed to submit the names of three persons to act as trustees for contributions to be made to further the plan, which is described by Posner & Company to this effect:

"We propose through the advertising and individual canvassing to secure in ninety days, two hundred thousand or more persons, who will buy for ten dollars a certificate of membership in the Association to be formed. The association is planned to lease one or more of the big stores on Sixth avenue, now closed, and open them to the public for general business.

"The two stores recently closed last year did business to the extent of $7,300,000. Taking that amount for a basis, and adding the trade of 200,000 people who will be directly interested in the stores as members of the association, and each one of them only bought fifty dollars' worth of merchandise during the year, which is a low minimum to calculate upon, you have a business of $17,000,000 for the first twelve months.

"As a matter of fact, you can easily figure or count each member as at least being three customers for the store, because almost every family will contain three people, then the volume of business will expand in proportion and could be conservatively estimated at $30,000,000 without counting any business from the general public.

"It is an old system with new ideas. The average man of family spends for drygoods, furniture, groceries, meats, et cetra, at the very lowest estimate ten dollars a week, which is about $500 a year, and as a member of the association he gets back the net profits made on his purchases for the year, which is 10 per cent. on $500, or $50 in cash. Therefore, in the first place, he buys at a lower price; second, gets a 10 per cent. dividend on his share, and third a 10 per cent. dividend on his gross purchases during the year. The plan is broader than any now in existence anywhere and is purely and simply mutual in all its phases and ramifications."

Hartsdale Station Now Stores.

The old railroad station at Hartsdale, which was taken over by the Scarsdale Estates, in order to beautify the architecture, is now being converted into an attractive structure to contain village stores. The building has been moved a short distance to the west of the artistic new station, and is being remodeled in such a way as to make three retail stores. The exterior of the building will be treated to harmonize with the new Hartsdale railroad station, and the larger stores, and the apartment building which adjoins it. These comprise all that there is of commercialism throughout the residential properties.

RETIRING GOVERNORS DINED.

The Real Estate Board's Vital Relation to Property Owners—A Large Affair.

Through the courtesy of the New York Athletic Club, the club's big dining-room was a scene of a dinner on Tuesday night, given by the members of the Real Estate Board to three retiring members of the board of governors, namely, Warren Cruikshank, E. A. Tredwell and W. J. Van Pelt, and to the re-elected president, Laurence M. D. McGuire. The dining-room was filled to capacity, some 250 persons being present.

President Page of the New York Athletic Club welcomed the guests and members of the Real Estate Board, and dwelt on the important place they filled in the activities of a city like New York.

John N. Golding acted as toastmaster and proved as such a great success. He enlivened the proceedings by a series of appropriate good natured sallies more or less at the expense of the speakers whom he introduced.

Mr. McGuire devoted most of the time allotted to him for speech-making to amusing the audience, but he took the opportunity to emphasize in no uncertain manner the position of the Real Estate Board; the importance of the place it holds in New York; its vital relation to property owners, and, above all, the need for loyal support of its members, and the necessity for impressing upon the property owners the need for united intelligent action on matters of wide public interest related to real estate. The fixed purpose of the board, he said, was to increase its efficiency to the highest power and to leave no question of its importance in this field.

Mr. Tredwell regretted more or less the fact that city administrations had not taken sufficiently into their counsel the expert and practical knowledge that necessarily resided in a body like the Real Estate Board composed of persons possessed of definite information on matters which come up in the administration of a great city. He felt, however, that the time was coming when the influence of the board would be fittingly recognized in this respect.

Other speakers were Mr. Van Pelt, Mr. Cruikshank, who suggested that Mr. McGuire's efficiency as president of the board warranted an amendment to the constitution to permit his election to another term; Congressman Jefferson M. Levy, Wm. H. Chesebrough, Joseph P. Day.

Mr. Chesebrough emphasized the remarkable progress that the Real Estate Board had made in the past year or two and expressed it as his opinion that its work warranted recognition as the efficient organ of property owners and taxpayers.

Congressman Levy pointed out the importance of the election of vigilant and well-informed persons as representatives in various branches of the State and Federal Legislatures.

The success of the dinner was particularly gratifying to those in whose honor it was given because of the fact that it was got together on what Elisha Sniffin, secretary of the board, would term a hurry call. What was intended to be a sort of small family gathering developed very rapidly, through Mr. Sniffin's efforts, into a very large affair.

The keynote of the dinner was the recent progress made by the board and the necessity for centralizing in the board itself, the work in behalf of taxpayers.

Go, and Get Acquainted.

The New York City members of the Real Estate Association of the State of New York showed their calibre when they put through with flying colors New York City's First Real Estate Convention. There has been no falling off in the pace set by that convention.

They are going to have a "get-together smoker" at the Hotel Astor on the evening of Tuesday, December 1. President Morgenthau says: "We want our local members and their friends to become better acquainted with each other, and we want to get their individual ideas of how we can extend our usefulness to them and to every real estate man in the State. This means business."

PRIVATE REALTY SALES.

That the financial depression is fast coming to an end and that a general revival of business is at hand, was the substance of assertions made this week by leading financiers at the luncheon held under the auspices of the Merchants' Association, on the occasion of the inauguration of the Federal Reserve Bank System. The confidence of the banking interests, coupled with the announcement that trading in bonds would be permitted today under certain limitations, on the Stock Exchange, reflects the tendency toward the gradual readjustment of conditions as they were before the outbreak of the war. Real estate men have cause for optimism with this state of affairs because of intimate connection between the local financial situation and that important branch of their own profession, mortgage loans. The clearing up of the money question may mean a loosening of the purse strings of lenders and the long expected real estate revival which has been temporarily halted.

This week's business cannot be taken as a criterion because the mid-week holiday effects were apparent in a falling off in practically all branches of the market.

The total number of sales reported and not recorded in Manhattan this week was 8 as against 10 last week and 24 a year ago.

The number of sales south of 59th street was 3 as compared with 3 last week and 15 a year ago.

The sales north of 59th street aggregated 5 as compared with 7 last week and 9 a year ago.

The total number of conveyances in Manhattan was 100 as against 115 last week, 12 having stated considerations totaling $1,173,670. Mortgages recorded this week number 49, involving $753,292, as against 61 last week, totaling $1,039,408.

From the Bronx .. sales at private contract were recorded, 7 as against 17 last week and 15 a year ago.

The amount involved in Manhattan and Bronx auction sales this week was $585,917 compared with $1,704,100 last week, making a total since Jan. 1 of $38,013,157. The figures for the corresponding week last year were $985,466 and the total from Jan. 1, 1913, to Nov. 29, 1913, was $46,575,886.

Turn Garbage Into Fuel

A Kewanee Water Heating Garbage Burner makes fuel of garbage and uses it to heat water.

And at the same time the garbage and rubbish is burned without odor—solving the garbage problem and also reducing hot water costs to practically nothing.

If you own, or are interested in, an apartment building, a hospital, hotel or restaurant, you cannot afford to have its garbage hauled away.

KEWANEE
Water Heating Garbage Burners

The Gables Apartment, Chicago, Ill., J. E. O. Pridmore, Architect, The Gables, corner of Hollywood and Kenmore Avenues, is one of Chicago's most attractive apartment buildings. A Kewanee Water Heating Garbage Burner provides its hot water supply and also burns the garbage and rubbish.

are burning garbage and using it for fuel in several thousand of the best buildings throughout the country. They are not an expense, but are on the contrary a positive economy.

Our latest booklet on the garbage question is named, "Turn Your Garbage Into Fuel." We want you to ask for a copy. We know it will interest you.

OBITUARY

ARTHUR N. BONYNGE.—Announcement is made of the death of Arthur N. Bonynge, an insurance broker, residing at the Hotel Cecil. He was forty-nine years old and a brother of former Congressman Robert W. Bonynge of Colorado.

THOMAS P. FITZSIMONS, retired real estate broker and operator, died on Monday at the Hotel Ansonia, of a complication of diseases. He was fifty years old. Mr. Fitzsimons retired last year when he sold his old established real estate business at 751 6th av to Jacob J. Tabolt. Soon after, Mr. Fitzsimons, accompanied by his wife and daughter, went to Europe on a pleasure trip, which was interrupted by the war. After great difficulty they managed to reach New York City and the physicians attribute his death to the illness which resulted from his experiences abroad. He was one of the best known Catholic laymen in this city, having been for more than twenty-five years a member of the Board of Managers of the Catholic Protectory and for more than ten years a member of the Executive Committee of that institution. He also was for many years one of the Board of Managers of the Catholic Club, and was a member of the Friendly Sons of St. Patrick.

RAYMOND C. KAYSER, aged seventy-five, a real estate broker of Fordham, died on Tuesday at his home at 673 East 216th st. He left a widow, four sons and three daughters.

REAL ESTATE APPRAISALS.

The following values were placed on real estate properties this week by the State appraisers in transfer tax proceedings, affecting Manhattan holdings. The amount specified does not in every case indicate the equity or interest of the decedent. It merely quotes the estimated market value of the realty, regardless of mortgages or other liens:

GEORGE A. ARCHER.—48 West 115th st, 3-sty dwg, 18x100.11, $9,000.

HENRY W. McMANN.—104-108 John st, through to 7-11 Platt st, about 8,450 sq ft., $210,000.

ARTHUR McCONNELL.—542-546 West 46th st, 5-sty ten, 75x100.5, $60,000; 252 West 115th st, 5-sty flat, 25x100.11, $24,000; 433 West 46th st, 5-sty ten, 26.3x100.5, $21,000.

SARAH H. WITTHAUS.—10-14 East 12th st, 12-sty loft building, 61x103.6, $310,000.

HERMAN F. L. ZIEGEL.—221 West 13th st, 3-sty dwg, 20.10x75, $13,000.

AUCTION SALES OF WEEK.

Except where otherwise stated, the properties offered were in foreclosure. Adjournments of legal sales to next week are noted under Advertised Legal Sales.

* Indicates that the property described was bid in for the plaintiff's account.

The Auction Market.

Joseph P. Day will inaugurate another Special Sales Day on Tuesday, December 1, with a list of offerings, including a six-story apartment house, at Madison avenue and 91st street; a five-story loft building, in Barclay street, and the home of the late Mrs. Emily H. Moir, in West 53d street. Mr. Day will also offer a seven-story loft building, at 42 and 44 Bond street; the three-story office building, at 17 to 19 East 125th street; the nine-story apartment house, at 385 Central Park West, and a number of miscellaneous smaller properties. Bryan L. Kennelly will offer another of the Henry Corn properties, at 28 Waverly place, an eight-story mercantile structure which is being foreclosed by the Greenwich Savings Bank. D. Phoenix Ingraham will offer the seven-story loft building at 9 Jones street.

DEPARTMENTAL RULINGS.

Old-Style Motor Starters Prohibited.

Commissioner William Williams of the Department of Water Supply, Gas and Electricity, New York City, announces that on and after January 1, 1915, small-motor starting devices, more particularly those used in connection with commercial sewing machines, will be prohibited, unless they are of types which have been approved by the departments since July 1, 1914.

It has been proved that a number of fires have resulted from the use of the old-style starting boxes, and their elimination will be beneficial.

BOARD OF EXAMINERS.

(Note.—Appeal No. 158 of 1914, new buildings, is addenda to Report appearing in Record and Guide of October 24.—Ed.)

APPEAL 158 of 1914, New Building 5656 of 1914, premises 263-265 Chauncey street, Brooklyn, Shampan & Shampan, appellants.
Walls, fore and aft partitions. Sec. 31.
APPROVED on the following conditions:
First: That the corridors in the cellar under fireproof floor construction shall be separated from the rest of the cellar space by means either of brick walls at least eight inches thick or self-closing fireproof doors.
Second: That all girders and columns supporting floor beams be fireproofed in accordance with the regulations of the Bureau of Buildings.

BUILDING MANAGEMENT

NEW REGULATIONS FOR ELEVATORS IN THE BUILDING CODE

Conducted by Raymond P. Roberts, Building Manager for The American Real Estate Co.

THE ordinance introduced in the Board of Aldermen this week covering the construction, operation and maintenance of elevators, takes the place of Section 100 and 101 of the present Building Code, and includes several new matters suggested at various times for enactment into law. Some of the matters included are now provided for by the rules authorized under the present Building Code and are made a part of this ordinance because of their great importance.

The ordinance directs the Superintendent of Buildings to make rules for the construction, operation and maintenance of elevators with a view to safety. This is the same as the existing provision, except that it is made clear that the rules shall apply to the construction as well as to the operation and inspection of elevators, and their application is extended to all kinds of elevators and to amusement devices as well. While the present rules promulgated by the Superintendents become effective as soon as issued, under this new ordinance they would be required to be published for eight weeks before they would become operative, a safeguard against a too hasty adoption or change of rules. If a public hearing is requested such must be given before the rules go into effect.

A distinction is made in the ordinance between passenger elevators and freight elevators, it being understood by a passenger elevator any device such as an elevator or Escalator used for transporting persons other than those necessary for their safe operation or the handling of the freight on freight elevators. Provision is also made for amusement devices, such as roller coasters, "shoot-the-chutes," etc. The term including any such device operated wholly or in part by some mechanical means, on which persons ride or are permitted to ride as a form of amusement.

The requirement as to permits and repairs to elevators is practically the same as is now provided for in the existing rules.

Certificates of Safety Required.

A new requirement, in Section 4 of this ordinance, is the issuance of a certificate by the Superintendent of Buildings of the safety of the elevator or amusement device. It is incorporated as a protection to the owner or operator of the elevator and as a safeguard to the public. It is made unlawful to operate an elevator or amusement device until such certificate has been issued. To prevent unnecessary delay in the issuance of such certificates, it is provided that the Superintendent of Buildings must make an inspection within a reasonable time after the completion of the work and must issue such certificate.

In Section 5, provision is made for the recording of new as well as existing passenger elevators. While at the present time the records of the Bureau of Buildings show what elevators are installed and while the periodical reports show the condition of such elevators, there is now no way of readily identifying ony one elevator. The record will also have the additional value of making it possible to get reliable statistical information concerning the passenger elevators of the city.

Inspections.

Inspection of passenger elevators once in every three months is provided for as in the present Building Code, supplemented by a provision for inspection of other elevators and amusement devices at least once a year or when there is reason to believe that an unsafe condition exists.

The Superintendents of Buildings are authorized to accept inspections made by any properly accredited casualty company or inspection service, provided that they are satisfied that the company inspectors are competent and that such company will abide by the rules of the Bureau of Buildings and will file reports of all inspections made with their recommendations. This is intended to save owners considerable annoyance, by doing away with the duplication of inspections by the city inspectors and those of the casualty companies.

Practically every elevator in the city is insured by some company, and these companies for their own protection keep a force of competent men to see that the elevators are maintained in sate condition. While the companies' men will make the inspections at times that are convenient to the owner, the city inspectors would generally ask for the shutting down of the elevators during business hours, often inconveniencing the tenants as well as the owners.

Riding on any but passenger elevators is prohibited except for the elevator operator and those persons necessary to handle freight on a freight elevator. Every freight elevator must have posted on it a sign indicating that it is a freight elevator and that it is unlawful to ride on the same.

Provision is made also for placing the operation of elevators in the hands of competent persons. While it is understood that an ordinance is now pending for the licensing of operators of passenger elevators, the provisions herein do not in any way conflict with the provisions of that ordinance. In fact, it is intended by this to leave a certain measure of control over the operators in the hands of the Superintendents of Buildings. That is also the intention of the ordinance for licensing operators. The Superintendent of Buildings must necessarily be the best judge of the competency or carefulness of elevator operators.

Reporting Accidents.

Another matter not heretofore provided for and now included is the reporting of elevator accidents. This is probably one of the most important innovations now proposed. It is only through accurate, complete and reliable information of accidents and injuries that provision can be made to prevent their recurrence. The value of this is well illustrated in the experience of the Bureau of Buildings of Manhattan a few years ago, when as a result of two accidents, due to the breaking of the old-style sheave straps in hydraulic elevators, a new rule was promulgated requiring the replacement of all such straps. Within the course of a year or a little more 1,000 elevators were altered to comply with this rule. During the course of the alterations it was found that quite a number of the straps in existing elevators were broken without a chance of discovery, as the straps were hidden by other parts of the machinery. It was only a matter of time when accidents would have occurred on these elevators, where the straps were found broken.

Interlocking Devices.

The interlocking of cars and doors is a matter that has received considerable attention in the last few years. It is estimated from the limited information in the records of the Bureau of Buildings on accidents that fully eighty per cent. of the fatal accidents on passenger elevators would be avoided if the interlocking device here called for were in use. This interlocking device will prevent an elevator car from being moved from its landing as long as the shaft gate is open. The ordinance makes it unlawful to operate any elevator hereafter installed unless it is equipped with such interlocking device and provides for certain time limits within which existing elevators must be also equipped with such device.

The elevators having the higher rise, sixteen stories or more, which are naturally those of high speed also, are to be equipped first, the time limit for these is October 1, 1915. There are about 150 buildings in Manhattan which are sixteen stories and over and which therefore have elevators that would come under this provision. It is estimated that these elevators can be equipped in from three to six months. Allowance of six months is therefore made for the preparation necessary to undertake work of this kind on the scale required. Three months periods are provided after this within which the elevators in the following groups are to be equipped: Elevators having a rise of more than six stories and less than sixteen, occurring in office buildings and department stores; similar elevators located in hotels; next similar elevators located in lofts and factories; following these, elevators in apartment houses; then all other elevators having a rise of more than six and less than sixteen stories; and, finally, all other passenger elevators with a rise of six stories or less.

The requirement making it unlawful to operate any elevator without speed safeties is not a new one but appears in the present rules. It safeguards the public against accidents due to overspeeding of elevators.

As heretofore, the enforcement of the requirements as to elevators is left with the Superintendent of Buildings and the same penalties apply as apply now for violations of the elevator regulations.

The ordinance is made to take effect on January 1, 1915, leaving some time within which to prepare for the new requirements.

$1,000,000 Textile Plant.

The Turner Construction Company, of 11 Broadway, Manhattan, obtained recently a contract amounting to nearly $1,000,000 for the new plant for the Naumkeag Steam Cotton Company. The structures will replace a group of sixteen buildings, almost entirely destroyed in the Salem conflagration last June. The ruined plant was regarded as one of the most up-to-date brick and mill construction establishments in the country, and contained every recognized form of fire protection and was considered by the fire insurance companies as a good risk. Despite this fact the fire wiped out fifteen of the buildings and left standing only one four-story concrete warehouse. As a result the directors of the company decided to build the largest textile manufacturing plant in the country. The Turner Construction Company's contract calls for a mill, four stories high, measuring 722x135 feet, with sixteen-foot story heights, to obtain maximum light: also a five-story cotton storehouse, 500x about 85 feet. These two buildings, together with a large concrete weave shed, are but a part of the plant which the Naumkeag company ultimately contemplate. The present units should be completed by September 1st.

USEFUL APPLIANCES

Novelties, New Applications of Familiar Devices and the Trend of Invention, Designed to Aid the Architect, Builder and Building Manager, Described Without Regard to Advertising Consideration

Real Porcelain Tile.

AS is generally the case with new things appearing on the market, various questions are asked by builders and architects relative to qualities of the new product. In the case of a real porcelain tile manufactured under the Stegmayer process by the Clifton Porcelain Tile Co., of 51 Clifton street, Newark, the question is what actual improvement is effected in the tile by the elimination of the health-menacing lead process in manufacture.

The new tile is porcelain faced, thereby differing from the present tile of commerce—the "Flint Tile." Flint tiles consist of a white porous body, easily cut with a knife, one surface of which is covered with a layer of a transparent lead glaze. Flint tiles absorb water. Owing to the porous character of the underbody the tiles become stained and are liable to check or craze the latter fault being due to the great difference in hardness of coating and body.

Heretofore, according to the manufacturers of this tile, it has been practically impossible to manufacture an all-porcelain tile on a commercial basis, as the temperature to which the porcelain composition of the tile must be submitted, in order to obtain the qualities of translucency and impermeability, makes it impossible to obtain tiles uniform in size and shape. This difficulty has been one of the reasons why the attempts to successfully manufacture porcelain tiles at a price comparable with that of the ordinary flint tile have failed, it is said.

Charles Stegmayer undertook to work out the problem, especially as to the elimination of lead glazes in ceramics. The use of glazes containing lead has always been dangerous to the health of the employees coming in contact with them and various legislatures, particularly in New Jersey, have during the last few years taken up the question of their elimination; and as porcelain is one of the ceramic products that does not require the use of lead, the perfection of a porcelain tile had an added interest.

The two greatest drawbacks in the manufacture of a porcelain tile can be put down as follows: First, the high cost of the materials entering into the composition of the tile, and second, the loss through warpage during firing. Both of these difficulties were overcome by Mr. Stegmayer by backing a thin layer of a porcelain with a thick layer of a cheaper stoneware body, the latter constituting 11/12ths of the tile. With one move he reduced the cost of the tile and gave to it a backing which prevents warpage during firing.

Mr. Stegmayer has been working on the problem for ten years. It was necessary to adjust three different bodies, a stoneware body, a porcelain body and a porcelain glaze, in such a way that the three different compositions would work uniformily together through the stages of drying and burning, both of which involve a shrinkage of the three bodies. For the success of the process it was absolutely necessary that the rate of shrinkage of the three units be absolutely uniform.

The actual procedure in the manufacture of the tile consists of compressing under great pressure a thin layer of a pulverized porcelain body and a thick layer of a pulverized common Jersey clay, suitably mixed with chemicals to insure vitrification. The layer of glaze with which the tile is coated can either be united with the two previous layers in one operation or be applied to the tile in a secondary operation.

The tile is then placed in the kiln and burned to a temperature at which all three layers become thoroughly vitrified, the finished tile being obtained in one firing.

Metal Batten Strips.

ONE of the latest instances where metal is replacing wood in building equipments is reported from the Milwaukee Corrugating Company of Milwaukee, Wis. In this case it is in the form of a metal batten strip designed to do away with the warping that frequently follows the use of wood for this purpose. The method of fastening prevents slipping away from the boards and at the same time permits necessary contraction and expansion.

Novel Type of Mixer.

INVENTORS are constantly bringing out new devices for making the bath more luxurious and at the same time making it more pleasurable. One of the most notable novelties is the shower shown in the illustration. It combines the delightfulness of the ordinary fixture with some of the pleasures of the needle bath without the necessity of using a curtain of clingy, clammy mien.

This particular device is known as the Niedecken shower and is made by the Hoffman & Billings Manufacturing Company of Milwaukee, Wis. The simple, though effective system of mixing water makes the shower perfectly safe. There is no chance whatever of the water becoming any hotter or colder than the bather desires. It is suitable for the modern home because it is not expensive and is easily applied. The temperature control is fixable and when operating no sudden drawing of water from either the hot or cold faucet in another part of the premises can affect the water being discharged upon the bather.

Portland Cement Aggregates.

PRACTICALLY every specialist on concrete construction has a different code of concrete mixtures for different types of construction. With the idea of ascertaining the maximum density in concrete Albert Moyer of the Vulcanite Portland Cement Company, of 200 Fifth avenue, made investigations and found that arbitrary specifications without previous knowledge of the character of the aggregates that are used indicated as 1:2:4 or 1:3:6, etc., are meaningless.

It takes 110 lbs. of Portland cement to make 1 cu. ft. of paste. Opposed to the old plan of filling the voids in sand with cement, these voids must necessarily be filled with paste (cement and water), and that the study of the proportioning of aggregates must be based on the proper proportions of cement, water and sand to make a sufficiently rich mortar to bind together the large aggregates. The cement must be measured by weight, using 110 lbs. as equivalent to 1 cu. ft. of paste. If a 94-lb. bag is used as a unit for measurement, the proportions must be figured so that the same proportion of cement to sand is obtained as when based on 110 lbs. of cement per cubic foot of paste.

Self Shut-Off Sprinkler.

SOMETHING like $75,000,000 a year is paid by the insurance companies for losses caused by water flowing from sprinkler systems after these have extinguished the fires which set them going, according to Fire Prevention News. But a sprinkler head that automatically shuts itself off after the fire has been extinguished has been invented. That the sprinkler system affords the most efficient protection against fire ever devised is not contestable. In New York, in fact, its installation in factory and loft buildings is compulsory. There is not a case on record of a fire getting beyond control where sprinklers were in use and were not prevented from operating by untoward causes.

Usually they extinguish the blaze before it has had a chance to do much damage—few fires start that could not be put out with a pint of water if applied early enough—but the stream flowing from them in a heavy downpour continues necessarily until it has been shut off, and in the great majority of cases considerable time must elapse before this can be done. The result is the flooding of the building and destruction of the merchandise or almost irreparable damage to the machinery in it.

Another serious drawback to the sprinklers at present in use is that the sprinkler heads once started are useless until they have been put together again, so that after each operation they have to be replaced, which involves expense to the owners of buildings.

The most common sprinkling device is closed in some form or other by fusible metal in such a way that when the temperature at which it is designed to melt is reached the water begins the spray. Owing to the tendency of heat to rise and spread along the ceiling, sprinkler heads remote from the place of origin of the fire frequently are set off. All continue to flood the floor, although the jet from a single head may have sufficed to put out the fire.

How to overcome these serious defects of an otherwise admirable and in any case indispensable fire protective system is a problem that has exercised engineers and inventors not only in the United States, but in Europe. This problem has been scientifically and most effectively solved by a thermostatic head devised to throw water at any predetermined temperature. It continues open until the fire is extinguished and the temperature falls to a safe point, say 140 degrees, when it closes automatically, thus obviating any further waste of water and consequent damage. Should the fire revive, the sprinkler head promptly opens up again, and it will repeat this operation indefinitely. So simple is its construction that it is practically impossible for it to get out of order.

The invention has been subjected to the most exhaustive tests. It has never failed to perform its work with scientific efficiency. It has the added advantage, we are informed, of costing no more than any sprinkler heads heretofore in use.

CURRENT BUILDING OPERATIONS

To Complete "Avenue A" Block Model Tenements—The Entire Group Comprises Nineteen Structures, Giving a Total of 1056 Apartments

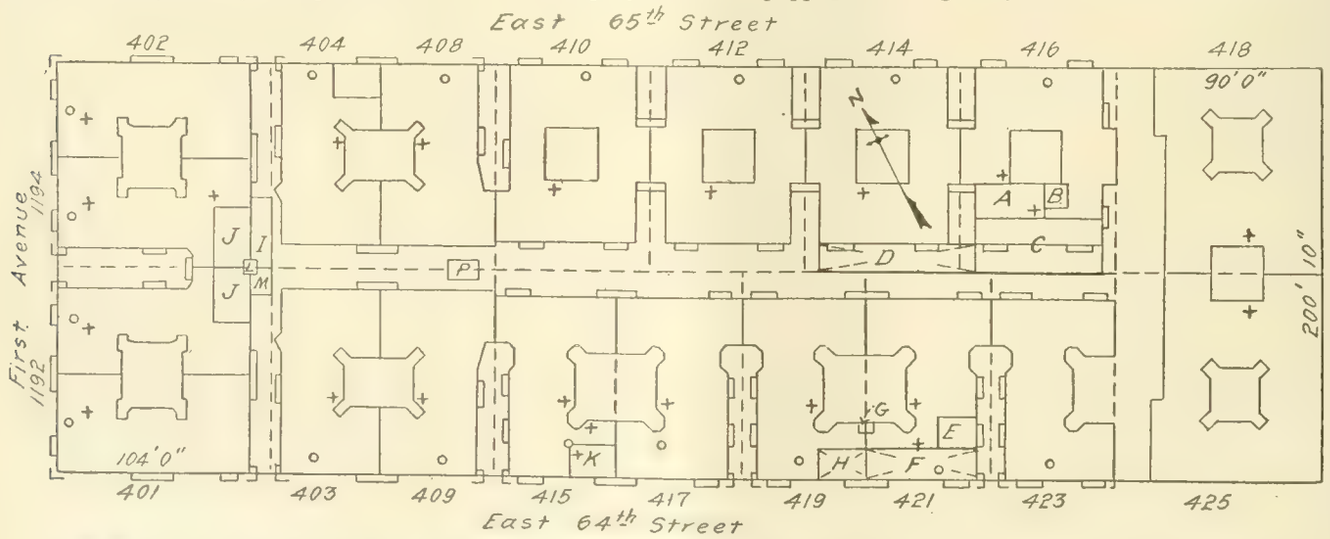
INTERESTING among the building operations now under way is a group of model tenements which will occupy the block front on the west side of Avenue A, between 64th and 65th streets, having a frontage of 100 feet in each of the latter streets. The City & Suburban Homes Company, through P. H. Ohm, architect, 15 West 38th street, is back of the project and was also instrumental in the erection of buildings of similar type which occupy the remainder of the entire block square, having dimensions of 613 x 200 feet. Foundations are now being laid for the new operation and the first tier of beams will soon be placed.

The main front of the new buildings is directly opposite the Rockefeller Institute for Medical Research, and offers a good view of the East River. In type the buildings will be similar to those constructed by this company in various parts of the city, and a number of improvements and refinements over former buildings will be introduced. The facades will be of a light buff toned gray brick, trimmed with white marble, simple and substantial in outline and with the detail and trimmings suggesting California mission. There will be accommodations for 195 families in this extension, divided into two, three and four-room suites, each with its own bath, a complete and modern kitchen, hot water supply and steam heat; the power being supplied from a centralized plant of 1,150 H.P., already in operation on the block. Liberal closet space has been arranged in the apartments and locker space in the basement; also public laundry arrangements are provided in the basement, including steam clothes drying apparatus.

Light and air sanitation, permanency and economy of maintenance are the essentials which have been kept in mind in arranging the construction and detail of these buildings. Central court entrances on the ground floor are also to be a feature. Plumbing and drainage system will be of the best and the comfort and convenience of tenants have been well provided for. The number of buildings in the group, including operation No. 5, totals nineteen, which will furnish 1,056 apartments, a village in itself.

MODEL TENEMENTS IN AVENUE A. P. H. Ohm, Architect.

The City and Suburban Homes Company, which has a capital of $6,000,000, was organized under the laws of the State of New York, in July, 1896, with the object of supplying to wage-earners improved, wholesome homes at prevailing rentals. The company owns several large model tenement estates, accommodating about 13,000 people, and a working girls' hotel for 327 guests, on Manhattan Island, and also a suburban estate, "Homewood," in Brooklyn, comprising 250 individual houses, detached or semi-detached.



The company has well-equipped architectural and construction departments which are utilized for its own developments, and are available for similar services in this and other cities. Fitness and convenience in building are thus placed at the disposal of those desiring to duplicate this company's work, at standard rates of compensation.

Bad housing exists in some form or another in almost every community of 100,000 population and upwards and in the long run is exceedingly costly. Improved dwellings are the best guarantee of civilization. The greatest number of wage-earning heads of families receive less than $800 per year. During the last seven years, out of total rents collected from the company's model tenements, amounting to $2,901,426.11, the loss in bad debts has been just $6,287.55, or a little over one-fifth of 1 per cent.

The Junior League House, the company's hotel for working women, located at 78th street and the East River, showed 11½ per cent. of vacancies at the close of the fiscal year. Subscriptions to the capital stock of this company to construct this unique building were made by Mrs. Willard Straight and 117 other members of the Junior League. In the same way money from time to time is subscribed to build the model tenements. A committee of the Junior League co-operates with the management of the company in operating the hotel.

The Junior League House is in no sense a "home" or an "institution." It is simply a hotel run without any other restrictions upon its occupants than those which would characterize an ordinary hotel, and with the object of realizing a similar financial return to that which comes from the company's model tenements. Everything that could be done has been done to make the hotel a healthy and comfortable residence for guests, and it can be said without boast that no similar place in this city, or elsewhere, offers as much for the money. Moreover, it responds to a real need for working girls.

The building is a six-story, fireproof structure, with all modern improvements. The prices in the main run from $4 to $6 a week, including two meals on week days and three on Sunday.

NEW PLUMBING ORDINANCE PASSED.

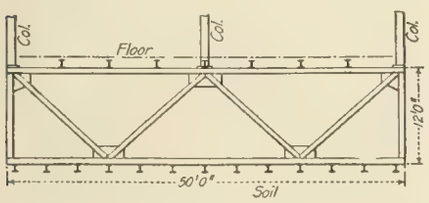
Defective Plumbing and Public Health, a Medical Opinion.

The new plumbing ordinance which has been the subject of consideration in the Building Committee of the Board of Aldermen and which has received the approval of the plumbing trade, was passed by the board November 11.

A statement having an important bearing upon the cost of constructing buildings, and especially upon the cost of installing plumbing systems, is contained in a recent number of the Journal of the American Medical Association (Chicago). In brief, this high medical authority states that neither typhoid fever nor any other kind of fever is caused by sewer gas, or by a bad smell of any description, and that "defective plumbing has about as much relation to public health as any other mechanical defect in house construction."



It is further charged by the Journal that city ordinances regarding plumbing are in this country drawn with no uniformity, and that what is required in one city may be prohibited in another. High authorities, we are told, maintain that the system of modern house-plumbing which is made legally obligatory on house builders in many places entails a large, needless and altogether unjustifiable expense, and that this is a barrier of cost which prevents progress toward better sanitation, and is a harm and not a help to public health.

In conclusion, the medical journal asks this question: "To what extent do the plumbing ordinances in our American cities represent the prevailing opinion of public health experts and trained health officials, and to what extent do they represent the efforts of commercially interested individuals or organizations to intrench themselves behind the active, if not always well-informed desire of the people to safeguard the public health?"

A new plumbing ordinance for New York City, heretofore discussed in these columns, was passed by the Board of Aldermen Nov. 11.

A Reminiscence.

George A. Just, president of the Board of Examiners, calls our attention to the first attempt to eliminate eccentric loading on the foundations of a building in this city. Eccentric loading originated in the old type of wall-bearing buildings with stepped-up brick foundations (because of the limitation of city lot or property lines) and had become an accepted form of construction.

"It was, therefore, a marked departure from previous architectural practice," says Mr. Just, "when about 1890, in building an addition to the Western Union Telegraph Company's building just west of Broadway and Dey street, the architect, H. J. Hardenbergh, to secure a uniform pressure over the soil, introduced riveted, wrought - iron trusses, one story deep, extending entirely across the lot, as shown in the accompanying diagram. The demolition of this building has progressed to such an extent that these trusses are now exposed to view.

"This particular foundation is mentioned in the Transactions of the American Society of Civil Engineers, Vol. 27, September, 1892, in the discussion of a paper by H. H. Quimby on 'Wind Bracing in High Buildings.' The contractor for the work was the then well-known Jackson Architectural Iron Works, the writer being at the time chief engineer of the company."

THE SUBWAY SITUATION.

Work Going Ahead on All Sections—A Test Case Probable.

The Public Service Commission gave a hearing in the case of the Bricklayers' Union against the subway contractors and has reserved decision. The charge of employing alien labor was formally made by the bricklayers' delegate, John Gill, and substantiated by the admission of one of the contractors.

The Public Service Commission hesitates to take swift, drastic action. Intimations are heard that as a test case will be made and carried up to see if the law is constitutional the court's decision will be awaited. In the meantime aliens have been laid off from six construction sections of the subway, but work has not been suspended altogether on any section. Secretary Crane of the General Contractors' Association said it is hoped it will not be necessary to discharge any more men pending the test in the courts.

Will Advise on City Planning.

The members of the advisory committee appointed to assist the City Plan Committee of the Board of Estimate in the consideration of plans, held their first meeting on Tuesday afternoon, at the Municipal Building, and organized for the work.

The members of the advisory committee are: Edward M. Bassett, Edward W. Brown, Arnold W. Brunner, Irving T. Bush, John M. Demarest, Michael Furst, Herbert F. Gunnison, J. Monroe Hewlett, Robert W. Higbie, Richard M. Hurd, Robert D. Kohn, C. Grant La Farge, E. E. Loomis, Milo R. Maltbie, Cyrus C. Miller, John J. Murphy, Charles D. Norton, E. H. Outerbridge, William Barclay Parsons, Frederick B. Pratt, William Allaire Shortt, F. De Hass Simonson, Daniel L. Turner and F. B. Williams. President McAneney is chairman of the City Plan Committee, which is charged with the work of formulating a general scheme of improvement with which all local improvements may be co-ordinated. George B. Ford is the consulting engineer.

Bowery Y. M. C. A. Plans Finally Approved.

Jackson & Rosencrans, 1328 Broadway, have just completed plans for the new Bowery Branch Y. M. C. A. building, already illustrated in the Record and Guide, which will be located in East 3d street, just off the Bowery. Harry W. Hoot, secretary of the branch, has been promoting plans for the last five or six years, and it is now announced that building operations will be started at once. It will be among the first buildings for men to come from the receipts of the $4,000,000 campaign fund. The building will be 64x135 feet, containing a barber-shop, reading rooms, gymnasium, shower-baths, roof-garden, hall for public meetings, moving picture shows, elevator, and 153 bedrooms. The cost of the structure with land is placed at $400,000.

Business Building for Scarsdale.

Laurence M. Loeb, of 37 East 28th street, Manhattan, has prepared plans for a bank and store building to be erected at Scarsdale, Westchester county, adjoining the postoffice on the south. The building will cover a plot 65x60 feet and will cost about $25,000. Estimates are now being received on all sub-contracts from a selected list of bidders. An unnamed syndicate is the owner.

Another Automat Restaurant.

Stuckert & Sloan, Crosier Building, Philadelphia, have plans in progress for another automat restaurant building to be erected at 604-606 Sixth avenue, Manhattan, for the Horn & Hardard Company, of 600 West 50th street. Construction will probably begin about January 1.

Masonic Temple at Elmhurst.

The Mizpah Lodge No. 738, F. & A. M., Elmhurst (Christopher Marsden, master), contemplates the erection of a Masonic temple in Grand street, near the Queens Boulevard, Elmhurst, Long Island. No architect has yet been selected.

NEW CHURCH EDIFICE FOR BROOKLYN

PLANS are under way for the new Catholic Church, in Italian Renaissance, now being erected at the southwest corner of Knickerbocker avenue and Weirfield street, Brooklyn. The parish of St. Martin of Tours, Rev. James H. Lynch, pastor, is the owner of this structure and the plans and specifications were prepared by John Bagley Day, architect, 1265 Broadway, Manhattan. The building is 86 feet wide and 157 feet in extreme depth, with its main entrance on Weirfield street, the rear facing Halsey street. The exterior walls are of buff Indiana limestone upon a granite base and the roof is of Spanish tile. The basement will be used for Sunday School and lecture purposes and will seat 900 people, and the first floor, used exclusively for religious services, will contain 1,200 seatings. The main entrance facade is opposite Irving Park and stands 36 feet from the street. Walls, partitions and floors are fireproof, a feature which should be more generally adopted for churches. This structure is being erected at a cost approximating $140,000 by P. M. O'Brien, 22 East 42d street, Manhattan, general contractor.

Inspecting Fire Hazards.

The Committee on Field Practice of the National Fire Protection Association has completed its two years' work in the compilation of an inspection manual. The publication is called "Field practice," to distinguish it from an ordinary fire protection hand-book, from which it differs radically in function. It is not a mere compilation of fire protection standards, but a hand-book designed to educate and serve the man who is undertaking inspection work, and who, possibly, has had very little previous experience.

The increasing inspection of premises by uniformed members of the fire departments and by newly constituted municipal inspection bureaus has made such a hand-book imperative, covering not only standard equipments, but covering what may be called points of relaxation from the standard which the inexperienced inspector does not know how to look for. This book is designed to point out the common faults in equipments and those points of deterioration difficult for inexperienced persons to discover, with methods and suggestions for their remedy.

The association has published a list of its pamphlets, standards, bulletins, fire reports, etc., which will be sent on application to the secretary, 87 Milk street, Boston, Mass.

ARCHITEC-TONICS, the Tales of Tom Thumtack, architect. New York, the Wm. T. Comstock Company. Cloth, illuminated, 5x7, 175 pages, 100 illustrations. Price, $1.50 net.

These are a series of tales about the experiences of an architect. They tell his views of life in little stories, about the things which happen when buildings are built, lived in and torn down, the tales of the office and the architect's views of the client. There is humor and fun and pathos. They are little tales from real life and they are told briskly and with lightheartedness. Nothing since the days of Cruikshank has equaled the cleverness of the illustrative sketches. The book will furnish recreation for many besides the professional man, and every one who knows an architect ought to have a copy just to acquaint himself more fully with the species.

A lot of us can guess who the clever author is—who it is that can write, sketch, plan a skyscraper and direct the work of ten thousand artisans, or do anything else that pleases him, and never let you think there is anything wonderful about it. In this book he chooses to be only "Tom Thumtack," but his next work may be either the writing of a learned scientific volume or the financing and construction of the biggest building in the world, and in either case you would not think of "Tom Thumtack, architect."

REOPENING OF STOCK EXCHANGE TODAY PUTS NEW ENTHUSIASM INTO THE MARKET—NOVEMBER PLAN FILINGS FAIRLY STEADY

No Sign of Brick Dealers Stacking
Leads Manufacturers to Hold Back

BUILDERS enter December with more grounds for optimism than they have had since the first of the year. Things were bad enough as far as the pressure upon purse strings was concerned prior to the outbreak of the war, but since the first of August there has been no more dejected aggregation of business men than those who depend upon easy money and prompt payments of building loans to keep their organizations together. But the opening of the Stock Exchange today for the sale of bonds, after three months' stagnation, puts a new light upon the entire construction and building material markets and business finds itself not only getting out of the dark woods, but with the Federal Reserve banking system has in its possession an asset that it did not have before.

The change for the better comes at a time when the material market had about reached its lowest levels with respect to price. When good common brick brings only $6.25, and under, in yard, Newark; and the best grade of Hudson and Raritan common brick in New York brings only $5.25 and under, and structural steel sells for $1.21 and $1.26, when it ought to be nearer $1.50, there is evidence aplenty that there is either no money available for building purposes or there is no demand for new building operations or alterations.

In the present instance, there is no lack of demand for new buildings. Plan filing has continued fairly uniform throughout the metropolitan district as a whole. November in the five boroughs of New York will show a slight decrease in November in number and value when compared with October. The actual figures for the four complete weeks just closed are: November, 612 new buildings valued at $3,630,963, as compared with 665 valued at $7,181,669, a drop of approximately 50 per cent in value. Westchester and East Jersey, however, bring this loss down to only 14 per cent. The total for the district for the month indicates a total of 802 new buildings valued at $6,993,010, as compared with 911 new buildings in October valued at $8,211,119, a loss of only 14 per cent. in value for the district.

This tightness of money has been the retardant factor in keeping dealers from stacking for the winter. Absence of speculation has caused prices to drop to encourage building as well as general buying, but despite the change in the money market dealers, except in a few instances, are passing the burden right up to the builder himself. If construction for December shows signs of gaining over November's figures, there is reason to believe that they will buy in anticipation of spring needs.

Manufacturers, however, are counting upon a heavy winter to bring back their prices. The market at present is not inclined to be too optimistic and the manufacturers are not inclined to supply it too liberally. The result is sure to be a gradual, though steady, recovery in prices of structural steel, common brick, yellow pine, spruce, hemlock, hardware, glass and steel tools. Nails may also advance. The linseed oil market is leading the way. Pig iron is expected to be the next to move.

Plan filings for the week in the five boroughs follow: In the corresponding week last year there were 178 new building plans filed, valued at $1,066,245.

COMMON BRICK.

Monthly Prices Averages for Last 24 Years Show Strength of Materials.

COMMON brick is the basic building material. The rise and fall of its price is a barometer of the state of the building business. There have been reports to the effect that there has been no market for material, but the state of the common brick market for the eleven months just closed has not borne out this contention. The average price for the eleven months of this year as compared with twelve months in any year since 1887 is far higher than in 1911, 1910, 1908, 1907, 1903, 1902, 1901, 1900, 1899, 1898, 1897, 1896, 1895, 1894, 1893, 1892, 1891, 1890, 1889 or 1888. In 1894 the average monthly price went as low as $4.50 a thousand in this market. In this year it is $6.04 per M.

In none of these years, save in 1907, was this country in a war and at no time was the stock exchanges closed with the resultant tie-up of building loans. The accompanying table shows, perhaps, better than any other way how well the building and material business has held up under the most trying conditions that American business men have ever had to deal with.

IRON AND STEEL.

American Radiator Buys Heavily in Pig—Steel Output Light.

WHILE there is not much improvement in steel, there is a better tone to the pig iron trade. This indicates future activity, although it now seems as though the steel interests will continue to sell freely in fabricating material, for the first quarter of 1915, at or about the prices now prevailing. If there is any upward change it will develop from unexpected sources, as there is not enough business in structural steel to promise more than 40 per cent. of mill capacity between now and the middle of next month. As November closes the capacity is somewhere near 30 per cent. The American Radiator Company has bought 110,000 tons of pig iron and other equipment interests have shown signs of coming in for first quarter supplies.

CURRENT BRICK MARKET.

Ten Covered Barge Loads Held for Special Call Taken Up.

COMMON brick arriving and selling at the wholesale market was in much better tone this week than last, despite the holiday. Prices are still weak, although there were ten unlisted covered bargeloads of special brick that have been held here for call that went to purchasers. Covering has not been generally practiced by shippers, although there are only eleven left over bargeloads with seven en route, with freezing weather imminent. Registered unloading was heavier this week by almost a million. Had it not been for the holiday unloading probably would have been still heavier.

Official transactions for Hudson River brick covering the week ending Thursday, Nov. 26, in the wholesale market, with comparison for the corresponding period last year, and a comparative statement of Hudson brick unloaded from barges for consumption here, follow:

GLASS.

Window Grades in Light Demand—Quotations Hold Firm.

GLASS of all kinds is in poor demand, but prices have remained steady at 90-10 per cent. on single thick and 90-15 per cent. discount on double thick from jobbers' list. The stocks here are not large because the demand has not warranted jobbers sending heavy orders, but time deliveries as of January subject to current manufacturers' quotations are said to be of large calibre. Producers are understood to be wary about making quotations later than Feb. 1, indicating that a change for the better is anticipated.

CITY PLANNING IN NEW YORK CITY

The City Controling Its Own Destinies—A Recent Charter Amendment Has Placed the Movement Under Official Auspices

By GEORGE B. FORD*

THE City of New York has officially recognized city planning. In fact, city planning work has become an integral part of the city government. A little over a year and a half ago, in March, 1913, Hon. George McAneny, then President of the Borough of Manhattan, took the first official step toward the recognition of city planning by the appointment of a commission of nineteen citizens to advise with the Board of Estimate and Apportionment on the regulation of the height, size and arrangement of buildings.

They presented suggestions for an ordinance limiting the maximum height of all buildings. This is now before the Board of Aldermen. Furthermore, they urgently recommended two amendments to the Charter of the City of New York. One of these charter amendments granted the Board of Estimate and Apportionment the power to district the city by different height and area regulations in different parts of the city, and the other amendment allowed them to district the city according to use of property. These amendments also provided that the Board of Estimate and Apportionment should appoint an advisory commission of citizens who would study the subject in detail, hold conferences and hearings, and report back to the Board of Estimate and Apportionment a plan for their consideration. These two amendments passed the Legislature at Albany and became a law in May, 1914.

Inception of the Movement.

Meanwhile, when the new administration of New York came into power on January 1, 1914, Mr. McAneny, now President of the Board of Aldermen of New York, recommended that one of the standing committees of the Board of Estimate and Apportionment be a committee on the City Plan and that all larger matters which affected the map of the city, other than those relating to transit and port and terminal facilities, should be referred to this committee. It consists of Mr. McAneny, as chairman, and the five borough presidents as members.

Each of the five Borough Presidents has had since 1902 a topographical bureau in his own borough, and all matters of purely local improvement, or changes in the map of the borough, have been worked out and passed upon by the local bureau. Furthermore, the Board of Estimate and Apportionment has had since the consolidation of the city a Bureau of Improvements in charge of Nelson P. Lewis as chief engineer. He passes upon all the local improvements from the standpoint of the interest of the whole city and presents a plan for the distribution of the paying for the work. In addition, he has developed a broad plan of general thoroughfares for the whole city.

All of the above bureaus continue, but now all the more important improvements which are of more than local character are referred to the new committee on the City Plan. This committee has offices in the Municipal Building, where a staff is employed on its work with Robert H. Whitten, formerly librarian-statistician of the Public Service Commission, as secretary, and George B. Ford, secretary of the Heights of Buildings Commission of 1913, as its consultant.

Under the authority granted it by the charter amendments, the Board of Estimate and Apportionment appointed a commission called the Commission on Building Districts and Restrictions. This commission of sixteen members, of which Edward M. Bassett is the chairman, is the direct successor of the Heights of Buildings Commission of 1913, and its function is to continue the program of the former commission. An appropriation has been put at its disposal and when it has reached definite conclusions, it is to report back to the Committee on the City Plan of the Board of Estimate and Apportionment. Meanwhile the latter committee has placed at the disposal of the commission its staff and rooms and material in the Municipal Building.

The New Advisory Commission.

The Committee on the City Plan has also appointed an advisory commission of twenty-four members, which is known as the Advisory Commission on City Planning. Charles D. Norton, who took a prominent part in the working up of the great plans for Chicago under the auspices of the Commercial Club there, is the chairman of this commission, and Frederic B. Pratt, of Brooklyn, who has been chairman for a number of years of the City Planning Committee of Brooklyn, is vice-chairman. The functions of this commission are to consider and report back to the Committee on City Plan on such matters as the latter committee may refer to them and also the commission is at liberty to consider and report upon such other city planning matters as it believes should be brought to the attention of the Committee on the City Plan. In other words, it is free to do creative city planning work.

As in the case of the Commission on Building Districts and Restrictions, the Committee on the City Plan has put its offices and staff at the disposal of the Advisory Commission on City Planning.

Tendencies of City Growth.

Aside from the routine work, which is coming up constantly before the Committee on the City Plan of the Board of Estimate and Apportionment, the staff is devoting most of its attention to the collection and presentation in graphic form of fundamental data showing the tendencies of growth of the city. For example, they are taking the population data from the censuses of 1910, 1905, 1900 and 1895, in as small units as they exist, and are showing upon comparative maps by dots and otherwise the distribution of population at these periods with a view to showing the tendencies of change and growth.

On a corresponding series of maps they are showing from data obtained from real estate and insurance atlases of the city at different periods the trend of distribution of buildings by different kinds of use and size throughout the city. Again they are showing the distribution of transit and transportation facilities at periods corresponding to those of the building and population data with a view to showing the effect of transit on the growth of the city.

Again, they are making complete time zone and fare zone maps of the city to show the effect of the distance and the time people have to travel and the fare they have to pay on the character of development in any given district.

Again, they are showing the distribution of property values throughout the city on a series of maps based upon the assessed valuation per foot of property and, in conjunction with this, they are showing the relative value of improvements as compared with value of land in different parts of the city.

They are also showing the distribution of factories of different kinds and the distribution of the working or day population of the city from data secured from the Department of Labor. They are also showing the distribution and intensity of use of the various waterfront and terminal facilities of the city, and the facilities for the transportation of goods.

Again they are showing on a series of maps the distribution of buildings throughout the city by height; the distribution by percentage of lot occupied, and the distribution by character of construction.

Usefulness of the Data.

It is felt that the preparation of data such as the above is of the greatest use not only to the Commission on Building Districts and Restrictions and the Advisory Commission on City Planning, but to a number of the other departments of the city in connection with the extension of their systems or work, and also to all such citizens or citizen bodies as are brought into contact with problems which are dependent on a knowledge of the tendencies of growth of the city.

In closing, I wish to say a word about the character of the above three commissions. In each case the members of these commissions are men of recognized standing, leaders and authorities in their respective lines. The commissions were intentionally made large, partly so that there could be representatives upon them from each of the five boroughs of the city and partly so that all of the leading types of professions and business and points of view could be amply represented.

The appointment of these commissions has been justified, for, at almost no expense to itself, the city has been and is securing the best thought and time of a number of its leading citizens.

GRIEVOUS INJUSTICE TO NEW YORK CITY

In the Over-Assessment of City Properties by the Adjacent Counties—Activities of the Real Estate Bodies—A New Secretary

DURING the summer a sub-committee of the Staff of Experts of the Advisory Council of Real Estate Interests made a very complete investigation into the assessments imposed upon the city's aqueduct property in the counties of the State, outside of Greater New York. As a result of the work of this committee, the Advisory Council has concluded that it would be wise for taxpayers to endeavor to obtain through the Legislature a more equitable assessment upon such property. In order to be thoroughly advised upon this question, William P. Burr, a member of the Board of Counsel of the Advisory Council, and former Assistant Corporation Counsel of the city, has prepared a comprehensive brief relative thereto. Because of Mr. Burr's knowledge of taxation problems, and his wide experience in the office of the Corporation Counsel, it was considered that a brief prepared by him upon the legal aspects of this question, as well as his advice, would be the best that could be obtained in the city.

Apparently there is a very grievous injustice done to the city of New York by many of the up-State towns through which the aqueducts of the city pass, in assessing this aqueduct property at not only an extremely high rate, but also including within the assessment the value of the property on the surface, as well as dams, and also aqueducts and tunnels beneath the surface, in taking the actual cost of construction to the city as a basis for the assessment. The increased assessment due to this standard of valuation rises almost as high as thirty million dollars, and consequently makes a large item in the tax budget of the city.

There has been considerable legislation from 1840 to 1901 relating to exemption from taxation of property belonging to the City of New York, situated outside of the municipal limits, and used for the introduction and maintenance of a water supply. The general Tax Law of 1896 took away this exemption, which had theretofore existed by right of Common Law. In 1897 the Legislature restored to the city such exemption from taxation and in 1901 the Legislature withdrew the exemption from taxation, and left municipal property not within the city limits subject to assessment from taxation, exclusive only of the aqueducts. Consequently, it is evident that merely the land through which these aqueducts run is legally subject to taxation, and not the property upon it, or the aqueducts through it.

High Tax Rates.

But within recent years it has even been the custom for many of the up-State towns to charge a very high tax rate on this city aqueduct property compared to the tax rates on similarly situated property belonging to their local taxpayers. For example, in the town of Southeast the assessment of the city aqueduct property was increased immediately after its acquisition by the City of New York from $100 per acre to $612 per acre, with a result that the City of New York owning in that town in 1910 but 16½ per cent. of the total area of the town (most of it acreage property lying outside of the thriving village of Brewster) paid, nevertheless, 45 per cent. of the taxation of the entire town.

In the town of Mt. Pleasant there is a plot of ground now included within the city's aqueduct property that is assessed at an average of $500 an acre, but a year before the city acquired it the rate was $100 an acre. In the town of Cortland the average assessment per acre is approximately $700, while the assessment against the City of New York is $4,348. In the town of Gardiner the assessment was $18.74 per acre, but after the City of New York took title to the property the assessment increased to $275 per acre. In Phillipstown an assessment of $68,803 was increased to $303,203 after the city acquired the property. In the City of Yonkers the assessment increased from $750,000 in 1913 to $19,000,000 in 1914. The city owns 5 per cent of the land and pays 50 per cent of the taxes in the town of Kent. In the town of North Salem the city owns 10 per cent. of the land and pays 55 per cent. of the taxation. In the town of Olive parcels were assessed before the city acquired the property at $1,500 and after the city acquired it at $17,700.

Co-operation Urged.

The United Real Estate Owners' Associations have been planning to effect some readjustment in the inequalities of assessment of the city property outside of Greater New York. The Advisory Council feels that it would be advisable for every association to re-enforce the work of the United Real Estate Owners' Associations in this respect. If amendments to the General Tax Law are obtained, as indicated in the report and brief of Mr. Burr, to the Council, the tax budgets of the City of New York and three hundred other municipal corporations will be vitally affected.

Such amendments will also eliminate the costly litigation which is pending in the courts with reference to a review of these inequalities and over-valuations of assessments of the lands of the City of New York in fifteen different tax districts. To-day one town finds its tax burden cut in two by its ability to raise the assessment on the dams and structures of the City of New York, while a neighboring town in which there are no structures, tries to achieve the same result by assessing the land of the City of New York at abnormal and ridiculous valuations, in comparison with adjacent and similar lands.

Thus, we have an unusual spectacle of municipal corporations, creatures of the State government, and controlled by the Legislature, engaged in bitter and costly litigation at the expense of the taxpayers of each community, all of whom are citizens and residents of this State, and each of whom is entitled to exact and equal justice at the hands of the Legislature. The question is simply this: Shall the villages and cities of the State which, by reason of the growth of population within their boundaries, are obliged to go into neighboring tax districts for a sufficient supply of water, be compelled to pay more than their just proportion of the tax burdens in such tax districts?

The State Association.

The first smoker of the New York City members of the Real Estate Association of the State of New York was held at the Hotel Astor this week. About fifty members attended and brought with them friends who they thought would be interested in the work of the association. The meeting was of an informal character, and the members grouped themselves around small tables and enjoyed the tobacco provided by one of their thoughtful colleagues.

The meeting was opened with an allegorical skit in the form of a dialogue between a real estate broker and an investor who had wandered into the land of "Topsy-Turvy," otherwise known as the Real Estate World. This skit was read by its author, Arthur M. Bier.

The president, M. Morgenthau, Jr., made a report on the work of the association to date and said that he had adopted as his motto, "Deeds, not words." He said that there had been some misunderstanding as to the character of the State Association and its purposes, and that this had led to a certain amount of opposition on the part of certain local organizations, which he felt was entirely unjustified. He made it clear that there is no desire on the part of the Real Estate Association of the State of New York to encroach on the province of the local real estate boards, whether in New York City, Rochester, Albany, or elsewhere in the State. He said:

"We have such a vast amount of work to do of a state-wide character that it is getting almost impossible to do it all and do it right. On such matters as are primarily of local concern, such as matters of particular interest to this city, which, however, require action by the State Legislature, our association would very much prefer to have the local organizations take the initiative, and we merely lend our assistance when the matters come up for legislative action."

President Morgenthau stated that he had had two meetings with Mr. McGuire, president of the Real Estate Board of the City of New York, this week, and had made the position of the State Association clear to him. He said further that the stronger the State Association becomes, the better it will be for the Real Estate Board; and the stronger the Real Estate Board, the better it will be for the State Association. Each must, therefore, assist the other in its development. Mr. Morgenthau said that he had received assurances from Mr. McGuire that this met with his earnest approval.

The work of the association was explained by Mr. Morgenthau. He said he felt that the most important work to be done at the present time is along the line of devising additional sources of revenue, so as to relieve real estate of the tremendous burdens under which it is laboring. No active canvass for members in New York City had been made, but in spite of this the membership in New York City had grown since his election to the presidency last month from about twenty to nearly one hundred. He explained "if the work of the association is to be carried forward, a very large membership is absolutely necessary, especially as the dues are only $5 per annum."

Other speakers were Clifford B. Harmon, Judson G. Wall, Tax Commissioner; Joseph M. Brody, of the firm of Brody, Adler and Koch, H. Fred Silleck, president of the Erie Basin Board of Trade, and State Senator J. F. Duhamel.

New Secretary for the United Owners.

J. Bleecker Miller has accepted the position of executive secretary of the United Real Estate Owners' Associations, with headquarters at 170 Broadway. Mr. Miller is a member of the bar and is an authority on real estate titles. Years ago he was connected in a prominent way with one of the title companies. As secretary of the League to End Death Avenue he was prominent in the campaign for West Side terminal improvements.

Wholesale Houses Supplant Retail Dry Goods Concerns—Projected Market a Unique Operation, Which Should Attract New Line of Buyers

WITH the filing of plans this week another step was taken in the new market operation, to occupy the building for many years tenanted by Stern Brothers, prior to the removal to West 42d street. As announced last July in the Record and Guide, Starrett & Van Vleck, Fourth avenue and 17th street, were commissioned to prepare the designs, which call for an entire remodeling of the old structure, so as to make it practical for the sale of foodstuffs. The top floor will be glassed over and converted for the use of those selling plants and cut flowers. If the present scheme is carried out the floor will be occupied for restaurant purposes. A seating capacity of 2,500 has been provided for. The cost of the alteration is $300,000.

HOME OF NEW MARKET.

"While Twenty-third street has lost its prestige as a retail dry goods centre," said Albert B. Ashforth last week, "still a new era has commenced which should bring this thoroughfare once again into its own. During the last year or so several important leases have been closed which assure the future of the section for many years to come. Large mercantile structures, which were occupied in their entirety by large merchants, have been sub-divided and are being taken by wholesalers. On the site of the old Stern Brothers' establishment a unique operation is about to be undertaken, which should have the tendency of drawing to the section an entirely new class of trade. I speak of the market project, already announced. Unless all present signs fail, work will be started in the near future and the altered structure ready for occupancy by May 1, 1915. At the present time a large number of leases have been signed and there is every indication of the success of the enterprise.

Unique Floor Arrangement.

"The floor arrangement is unique and has been so laid out that the tenants will obtain the maximum amount of space for the minimum rental. Wide aisles have been provided and as many 'corners' laid out as practical. On the first floor it will be possible for one tenant to lease more than one booth space, should necessity warrant. On the second floor practically all the space has been so divided that each tenant has four frontages, or a small block square. The advantage of this is two-fold. (1) That a larger amount of display space has been provided, and (2) that more customers can be handled at a single time. I feel that the project will be successful."

A. M. Cudner, real estate broker, summed up the situation when he said: "The exodus of several firms in one particular line of business has not taken away its value as a commercial center, and the time will come when there will be a turn. Best evidence of the fundamental strength of the district lies not only in recent important trade removals into the street, but also in the confidence which the local owners still retain. They refuse to acknowledge that present business conditions are anything but temporary and they are holding their property at what they consider good commercial values in both the selling and renting branches."

A notable phase in 23d street's new development, particularly between Fifth and Sixth avenues, is the tendency for the creation of a center of the glassware and crockery trades. The five-story building at No. 14, occupied for many years by the linen firm of James McCutcheon & Company, was leased last February for a term of fourteen years by the china and glassware firm of Lazarus & Rosenfeld, who moved from Murray street. The old Scribner Building, at 155 Fifth avenue, had already been taken over by L. D. Bloch & Company, in the same line of business. In 23d street, just west of Lazarus & Rosenfeld, are Bates & Ledden, pottery. On the same side of the street is the Colonial Cut Glass Company.

Glass Concern's Lease.

On the opposite side, the entire building at No. 37 is taken up by cut glass and crockery firms, the store being occupied by the S. Herbert Cut Glass Company. Just east, at No. 23, another entire building has become tenanted by similar firms, with the exception of the store, which is used by the Tower Brothers Stationery Company. In this building are located the Stewart Glass Company, the Irving Cut Glass Company and the Peters & Reed Pottery Company.

The Loeb & Schoenfeld Company, a prominent lace firm, now at 451 Broadway, has taken large space further west, at No. 31. S. Steinfeld & Company, jobbers and importers, also leased, several weeks ago, from the estate of William C. Schermerhorn, the store, basement and the first three lofts in 43 and 47 West 23d street, through to 24th street, formerly occupied by the furniture firm of George C. Flint Company. The lessees are now located at 600 Broadway and have been identified with the old wholesale district for over thirty years. At No. 49, in the new twelve-story loft building occupied by firms dealing in ladies' wearing apparel, there is only one loft vacant. The store and two upper floors houses the furniture firm of Geiger & Braverman.

That section of 23d street which lies between Sixth and Seventh avenues has apparently not been affected as much as the section to the east. Both sides of the street are filled with a miscellaneous assortment of retail establishments typical of all New York's East to West thoroughfares with crosstown trolley lines. The buildings are in the main old-fashioned dwellings which have been remodeled into stores, with the upper floors utilized for loft and light manufacturing purposes. Furniture firms are conspicuous, among them being the Cowperthwaite's Furniture Company, Lennon Company, Manges Brothers and the L. W. Ott Manufacturing Company. Other firms on this block are Weser Brothers, pianos; the Basket Importing Company, and Cassidy & Son, manufacturers of lighting fixtures.

Good Shipping Facilities.

One of the advantages of property in 23d street is that a large number of the holdings have frontages in 22d and 24th streets. This condition is specially favorable to the wholesale trade, as it affords splendid shipping facilities and relieves congestion. Another good feature is that the frontages are large and can be subdivided, should the occasion demand. There are also a large number of office buildings in the immediate neighborhood, such as the Fifth Avenue Building, the Flatiron Building and the Metropolitan Tower, which bring a vast army of people daily to the neighborhood. This in itself should create a demand and provide a purchasing power.

PROBLEMS IN DEVELOPING TRACTS

Relative Merits and Demerits of the "Checkerboard" and "Park" Plans Discussed—Architect Favors Latter Scheme

PROBLEMS relative to the proper subdivision of suburban tracts into building sites are continually facing the developer and upon the proper solutions hang the success or failure of the undertakings. Roughly speaking, the methods of improvement are divided into two classes, called for convenience sake, the checker-board and serpentine or park systems. Of course the size of the property must be considered and in some instances it is possible to combine both arrangements, though this is rather an isolated case than the general rule.

John Theodore Hanemann, the architect, has prepared two sketches of a property measuring 1,000 by 1,000 feet, which explains the typical problems usually to be overcome by the developers. The small tract has been taken rather than a large one, as all the principles are involved. This tract has been laid out in both ways and the advantages and disadvantages shown.

"That any development is a modest undertaking financially," said Mr. Hanemann last week, "should not necessarily mean that everything must proclaim it so, by poorly designed and second-rate habitations. The eternal dividing of property into oblong lots, with avenues at right angles, stretching to infinity is unfortunate and short-sighted. Yet, in many sections of the suburbs, this is the rule rather than the exception.

"The chief cause for this in the development schemes scattered about, is the lack of proper expert opinion at the outset. Due to the fear that this consultation of expert opinion is prohibitive for their finances, the course adopted seems to be to design and lay out tracts without the aid of men trained for the purpose, or where conditions seem insurmountable to employ a young professional man of unestablished reputation. For the sake of what? Economy.

"It seems extremely difficult, almost impossible, to dispel the prevailing opinion that the 'checker-board' lay-out is the most economical for the small property development. Personally I hold a contrary opinion. I believe where a settlement is grouped in a picturesque manner, where all mechanical and monotonous repetition is avoided, better results are accomplished.

"In answer to the usual complaint that a serpentine development involves too much outlay of money I will attempt to settle the question, for the benefit of the future unplanned developments and the conservation of the rapidly disappearing scenic beauty along our suburban railways.

"Given a tract 1,000 by 1,000 feet, I have prepared two plans. In the checkerboard scheme lots 25 by 100 feet have been laid out, so that it may be seen how many lots can be disposed of. For the sake of argument, I have imposed the condition that no owner may build under a certain sum and also that no structure can be erected on a site less than 100 by 100 feet in size, for the desire is to keep the development at least semi-urban in character. Fifty-foot roadways have also been provided. Highways are laid out and eighty houses can be built, row upon row, rigid, uninteresting and extremely monotonous. This scheme will always be unsatisfactory from the aesthetic standpoint no matter how much money is invested in shade trees, concrete walks, gate posts and all the other 'fixings and findings.'

"On the other hand the same property can be made much more attractive. Winding roads gracefully leading to all corners are built and cottages are erected along the roadside to the best advantage. In the scheme eighty-five dwellings are possible, an increase of five over the 'checker-board' plan, which in itself is a consideration. Picturesqueness, privacy, character and individuality are assets which also must be considered.

"In the first plan 4,000 feet of roadway fifty feet wide must be built, while in the second, though there is some increase in the amount of roadways, still the cost can be equalized, as all the roads need not measure fifty feet wide. Sidewalks are not essential in the latter plan, which is an additional saving.

"The planting and landscape possibilities are distinctly in favor of the 'park' plan, because the individuality of each cottage adds materially to the appearance of the whole park. There is no endless repetition or killing of individual effort. The increased expenditure necessitated by the longer line of sewers, seems to be the only disadvantage that the second scheme possesses. Much more could be said about the moral effect due to environment, etc., but the best results will be obtained by careful individual study—the question of dollars and cents and common sense. The two plans have equal restrictions and are drawn to the same scale, to facilitate comparison, the only dissimilarity being their respective treatment."

Conditions in the Suburbs.

Many observers of real estate conditions within the city declare that one of the most salient features of municipal growth is that the city is now rounding its growth instead of extending it lengthwise. Their concensus of opinion is borne out by the rapid growth of Queens borough, which six years ago hardly knew the presence of an apartment house or a two-family house; whereas now, there are hundreds of them built or in course of construction. Previous to the opening of the Queensboro bridge there was but fragmentary construction in Queens; here and there an improvement was made; but, now, the borough is rife with construction. The immense industrial establishments that have come into Long Island City, too, have augmented residence in the borough, as well as house building operations in order to meet the demand for living space.

Brooklyn is also a strong factor in the rounding process. Its suburban area is fast being abridged by urban living demands. The borough has grown in all directions. Its eastward boundary is so completely built up with homes that there is no structural line of demarcation between Brooklyn and Queens; and, when the extension of the Kings County elevated railroad is finished and in operation to Woodhaven, early next year, the southerly part of Queens will sink its structural identity with Brooklyn almost completely.

Since the subway routes through Queens and Brooklyn were determined upon, and the Queens trolley roads had their mileage extended, the perfect rounding of the city has been hastened.

THE LATE JOHN G. WENDEL

Prominently Identified With Manhattan Realty—Had Unbounded Faith in Future of City

JOHN G. WENDEL, prominently identified with real estate in Manhattan and the Bronx, died last Monday at Santa Monica, Cal., at the age of eighty years. Mr. Wendel was a large holder of property on Broadway, and, when taken together with other parcels under his control, ranked among the foremost property owners on this thoroughfare. It has been estimated that his holdings aggregated about $55,000,000.

Born in the residence of his father, John D. Wendel, in Maiden Lane, near William street, Mr. Wendel received his early education in private schools, and subsequently went to Columbia College, graduating from that institution in 1855. He also was a student at the University of Heidelberg and completed his education at Goettingen, Germany.

Following his return from Europe, Mr. Wendel went into the real estate business, and continued in this line until the time of his death. Following the rule established by his father and grandfather, Mr. Wendel never sold a piece of property, and continually added to his holdings as opportunity offered. Among the holdings in which he was interested was the block front on Broadway, between 38th and 39th streets, extending west to Seventh avenue. Half of the Broadway block front to the south was also under his control.

Playground for Dog.

Mr. Wendel's country residence was at Irvington-on-Hudson, and his town house was at the northwest corner of Fifth avenue and 39th street. Adjoining the residence on the north is a plot 50 feet front, enclosed by a board fence, which prevents people from looking in. The lot, valued at almost $1,000,000, was kept as a playground for his pet dog. The stock answer that Mr. Wendel gave realty brokers who desired to buy this plot was to the effect that while the breed of the dog was uncertain, still it was absolute that his playground never would be disposed of. Almost $20,000 a year in taxes was paid to maintain this playground.

Mr. Wendel would not have a telephone either in his residence or at his office, at 175 Broadway. Sixteen or so safes line the walls of his office, and opposite the main entrance is a sign, "No Property for Sale." It was a standing joke among real estate brokers to send some new and uninitiated clerk to call on Mr. Wendel and offer large sums for his holdings. Mr. Wendel invariably took the jest good-naturedly and gave the young man some good advice about real estate in general and Manhattan in particular.

Opposed to Concessions.

One of the things that Mr. Wendel was strongly opposed to was the free rent concessions, and all his leases were dated from the time of signature. Many interesting anecdotes are related in this connection. Friendship and fair dealing played a large part in his business transactions. In one instance he rented a store in Maiden Lane to a merchant who paid $5,000 annually. When the lease expired, an offer was received for the same store, at $10,000 a year. Mr. Wendel called upon the old tenant and asked him how his business affairs were progressing, and upon hearing that he was barely making a living the offer of $10,000 was refused and the old lease renewed.

It was Mr. Wendel's boast that neither he, his father, nor his grandfather ever sold a piece of property voluntarily, and at the time of his death he was engaged in litigation with the Hudson Terminal Company over condemnation proceedings, successfully begun, against the property at 40 Dey street, which he owned at one time, and which is now a portion of the Hudson Terminal Building.

When the company's officers asked his price, it is said that Mr. Wendel offered to dispose of the property providing that it was to be used for railroad purposes. When the condemnation commission awarded the property to the Terminal company, the matter was taken into court, Mr. Wendel contending that instead of it being used for railroad purposes it was occupied as part of an office building. He said recently that, if he could, he would take the matter to the Supreme Court of the United States. It is said that the award, $75,000, is deposited in gold in a safe deposit box, Mr. Wendel refusing it when tendered.

The grandfather of Mr. Wendel, who bore the same name, and the first John Jacob Astor were young men together in New York City. The elder Mr. Wendel also was in the fur business, as was his son, father of the late Mr. Wendel. It is related that whenever Mr. Astor would buy a parcel the elder Mr. Wendel would acquire as much property as possible in the same locality. Both had faith in the future of the city, and this trust has been handed down in both families for several generations.

Wendel Properties.

The following is a list of properties the owners of record of which are members of the Wendel family:

Georgianna G. R. Wendel, 27 Carmine st., 53 Spring st., 118 Sullivan st.; Georgianna G. R. Wendel, et al, 119 Mulberry st., 1393 Broadway, 133-9 West 38th st., 477 Sixth ave.;

NEW "MOVIES" IN UPPER BROADWAY

Gaetan Ajello, Architect.

AS time goes on, more and more moving picture theaters are erected and leased, and, judging from the attendance, it would seem that the projects are profitable. Among the latest of these structures is the "Claremont," occupying the block front in the east side of Broadway, between 134th and 135th streets. The building extends 199.11 feet on the avenue and 90 feet in each of the streets. The theater proper will seat 1,500 people, occupying 52x165 feet. It has just been leased to the Wallington Amusement Company, for ten years, at an annual rental of $30,000. The dance hall, on the second floor, including the roof garden, and store, in 135th street, has been leased to Ira Lester Wood, for ten years, at an aggregate rental of about $130,000. Gaetan Ajello, the architect, has provided a facade of the Italian Renaissance type, of limestone and white enamel brick. The building is absolutely fireproof, and should prove one of the safest structures of its type in the city. The land is owned by the Riverside Drive Realty Company. A. C. & H. M. Hall, and is held free and clear. It has been leased, for twenty-one years, to the Wayside Realty Company, which has a renewal privilege for a similar period. Slawson & Hobbs are the agents for the property.

Civil service employees accustomed to make educational tours to Europe every summer have imported many ideas that appealed to them and which have proved more or less expensive to New York City taxpayers. But the great and predominating idea in the civil service of foreign cities, namely, economy, they have not attempted to transplant.

The daily papers are beginning to take cognizance of the great economic movement among the taxpayers for relief from the consequences of misgovernment in the past and over-regulation in the present. The Sun says the city is trying to do too much. The Mail declares the government is over-manned. The Telegram observes that the people are paying an awful lot of money to legislators to make trick laws.

Everybody knows the real cause of the financial difficulties of the corporation of New York City. The government is over-manned. There are too many departments, commissions and committees; too many clerks, statisticians, inspectors, managers and foremen; and most of them receiving inordinate wages. That there are too many is apparent to every citizen visiting a municipal building. Many have hard work to keep busy. But there is one good thing in their favor; they are courteous and patient with the inquiring public.

Commenting on a remark by Cyrus C. Miller, of New York, that the United States is on the eve of the greatest real estate movement in its history, the Detroit Free Press says: "It is certain as any proposition can be that farm lands must steadily enhance in value, and perhaps within a decade the owner of 160 acres of tillable soil will be considered an enviable man." If we get our marketing conditions in the cities changed as they should be, it will have a very good effect on farm values. We wish the outlook were as good for New York City property.

Unemployment in New York City.

Although indications still point to a steady and general business improvement, the immediate effect of its improvement is not so widespread and considerable as could be wished. The improvement depends chiefly on three factors. In the first place, the financial system of the country has recovered its balance, capital has resumed its normal process of accumulation and of being invested, and by the middle of the winter the wastes of the war will not prevent money from being obtainable for all legitimate business purposes.

In the second place, certain branches of manufacturing have been enormously stimulated by the foreign demand, and as the war continues the volume and exigencies of this demand will be likely to increase.

Finally, American food products are being sold and will continue to be sold in large quantities, and at high prices. All of these sources of increasing business will eventually react favorably upon general trade conditions; but up to date they have not had time to do so. As a consequence of the war many particular industries which depended on foreign markets or foreign materials have been very much injured. Other industries have felt severely the effects of a diminution of demand, due to a prevailing disposition to economize.

For these and other reasons a great many people have been thrown out of employment, and the unemployed from all over the East have tended to drift to New York. The situation in this city is extremely serious. The charitable societies have an enormously increased number of cases with which to deal, while at the same time their resources have been curtailed.

Let us hope that it will not be an unusually severe and rigorous winter. The suffering will be great in any event, but intense cold will largely increase it. The emergency is one which calls for the exhibition of self-denial and an active desire to help others on the part of those who have the money to do so. Landlords who can afford to carry deserving tenants should avoid the alternative of eviction, except as a last resort. Families who are turned out on the streets just at the beginning of the winter are in a peculiarly pitiable and desperate condition. Everybody should contribute to relief funds according to his means; and if his means are small, he should keep the money for his own countrymen rather than for the Belgians'.

Finally, good citizens should not become panic-stricken in case the unemployment leads to anti-social agitation and even to disorder. The people who are suffering from want of employment will have a real grievance. They are thrown out of work, because of no fault of their own, and the State has neglected to adopt any sufficient measures which might distribute over a larger area the burden of loss and deprivation. The negligence of the State is no sufficient reason for anti-social agitation, but the existence of a real grievance should make good citizens look with tolerance upon any orderly expression of discontent. As long as such expressions are not stifled, they do little harm and may do some good, but if they are repressed they merely encourage agitators to adopt more violent tactics. Fortunately, the present Mayor of the city and the head of its Police Department can be depended upon to treat this dangerous question with a proper mixture of toleration, good nature and firmness.

Cheapening the Food Supply.

Several years ago the person who predicted that 23d street would soon become the home of the largest private market in the city would have been considered crazy. This most improbable event is, however, coming to pass, and everybody who appreciates the importance of the arrangement of a better and cheaper food supply for Manhattan will watch the success of the experiment with keen interest. What is being started is a big co-operative provision store, which should be able both to obtain its supplies at a smaller cost, handle them with a less amount of waste, and deliver them promptly and economically. It would have been difficult to secure a much more central location without the investment of a considerable larger sum of money. This aspect of the matter must have been carefully considered by the managers of the enterprise, and they must have figured out a practical method of attracting customers by supplying a better service at the same or a smaller cost than the local dealer could. It is very much to be hoped that such is the case.

Every successful attempt to cheapen the food supply of New York adds just so much to the industrial efficiency of the city and serves to check the rising tide of discontent at the increasing cost of living. In the end the city will have to create a system of municipal markets, situated in the vicinity of railway terminals which bring the producer of food more directly in touch with the consumer. The success of the new East Side markets shadows what can be done on a vastly larger scale as soon as better sites are secured and a more efficient method of collection and distribution devised. But market sites which are convenient for the producers are not equally convenient for the consumers. A producer's market is naturally situated somewhere on the margin of the city, so that it will be accessible by rail, steamboat or trucks. The buyer of provisions often prefers to pay somewhat more for his purchases in case he can make them at some convenient location.

Doubtless the originators of the 23d street market are counting on a motive of this kind. It will have to compete with the small local dealers in residential sections, on the one hand, and with the public markets on the other. The small local dealers have the advantage of being very accessible, but they are also very high in price. The public markets are cheap, but they are inaccessible for the majority of people and it is not easy to secure prompt and cheap delivery. The provision market in 23d street will probably have to charge more than the public markets and less than the local dealers, but it should have an enormous variety and an attractive display of its products, and it should be able to deliver with unusual efficiency. If it succeeds, it should have the same effect on the local dealers as the opening of the public markets have had. It should force them to meet the competition with cheaper prices.

On New Sources of Revenue.

President Morgenthau of the Real Estate Association of the State of New York has received from a lady who did important work for the City Economy League during Mr. Chesebrough's presidency, a letter containing among other matters suggestions as to other sources of taxation than real estate, from which the Record and Guide has permission to quote:

"As for other sources of taxation than realty, the most obvious and the one that has been proven thoroughly effective in many States is by a tax on merchandise. Throughout the South and West merchandise is taxed at the same rate and proportion as realty, regardless of debts, just as realty is taxed regardless of mortgages. Under the personal tax in New York, merchandise is supposed to be taxed, but as debts are offset results are negligible. It is as obviously fair to tax merchants for the privilege of doing business in New York and obtaining the splendid advantages of terminal facilities, subways, etc., that brings the world to their doors, as it is to tax realty for city improvements. And if the tax were placed on the whole stock it would be fair, as merchants do business with this stock in advance of payment, thereby giving them the same advantage the realty owner has through mortgages.

"Some of the objections to taxing merchandise are that the consumer will have to pay, thereby increasing the cost of living. But the tax on realty works the same way, by raising rents and thereby increasing the cost of commodities. Another objection is that the merchant pays rent, but so does the realty owner, mechanic, professional man, etc. Then the merchant is an expense to the city in police and fire protection and wear and tear of city streets through delivery wagons, and he pays the city nothing in return. According to statistics the combined profits of the merchants of New York State during a normal year amounts to between three and four billions of dollars, not one cent of which goes towards local taxation. Special legislation has guarded certain interests that come under the personal tax. But merchandise is as tangible and visible as real estate and should pay its proportionate share for benefits derived.

"It would need an act of the Legislature to change the law taxing merchandise in full and properly enforcing it, but it would need legislative action to introduce any of the reforms suggested in order to raise revenue from other sources than real estate. For instance, the repeal of the "Secured Debts Law" sounds splendid, but if you study it closely, there is every possibility that should this be done, an annual tax would be imposed on mortgages, as it would be hard to differentiate and know where to draw the line. Then the standardization and equalization of taxation throughout the State would require legislative action. A tax on occupation is being considered, which would also have to be legislated. This latter suggestion would, I believe, be experimental, whereas the tax on merchandise has been rigidly enforced for many years throughout the South and West with excellent results. Instead of working in the dark on such a tax it would be an easy matter to find out from the tax commissioner of Denver and Galveston or other Western cities how the tax is applied in those cities. It is an absolutely just tax. And if the people of other cities pay for the privileges of doing business why should not the merchants of New York, who have wonderful advantages found nowhere else, do the same?

"RACHEL ELLISON."

Why Not Untax Farm Buildings as Well as City Buildings?

Editor of the RECORD AND GUIDE:

It is claimed by the advocates of the proposed Single Tax law that the untaxing of improvements will be an inducement to owners to improve their property. In other words, if an owner of vacant property knows that if he makes an improvement on it, no tax will be levied on the improvement, but a tax will be levied on the value of the land alone, it will furnish him with an incentive to improve his vacant property.

This is a specious argument, for the reason that there is always an incentive, without any law, to improve vacant property, providing the contemplated improvement will pay when made. There can never be an incentive to improve vacant property, where the property will not pay after the improvement has been made.

To illustrate: Let us assume that one owns some vacant land in one of the streets of the Borough of Manhattan, where the locality is changing from a residential into a business section. Let us assume that the erection of a private residence on this property would not pay, because it could not be rented after it was erected. Would anyone think of erecting a private residence on the property in question, knowing that it could not be rented after it was erected, and knowing that his property would thereby sustain a very great loss in value? Unquestionably, he would not.

Nor would he erect a suitable business structure on the property until the time became ripe for it.

As soon as the time became ripe for the erection of a suitable business structure, which, when erected, would pay the owner handsomely on his investment, he would erect this structure, regardless of whether there was any law untaxing improvements or not. He would do this, because the very object of owning vacant land is to sell it to someone who will improve it. Land itself is of no value. It cannot be eaten or carried around with one. The rents, issues and profits arising from the land are what the owner desires to obtain.

No man buys land with the intention of just holding it. He buys it either to sell it at a profit to someone who can utilize it and obtain profits out of it, or to improve it himself. Therefore, the incentive to improve vacant land always exists when the owner can see that he can make a profit out of it, by erecting a suitable improvement.

The untaxing of this improvement would not alter the case one iota.

No owner of vacant property desires to hold the property for any great length of time in its unproductive state, and to pay out taxes, and to lose the interest on his investment, as well as the carrying charges and the interest on these outlays. No human being is fond of holding the bag. The inducement or incentive to improve all vacant land exists as soon as one can see a profitable investment from the improvement.

This proposed law, if extended to its logical conclusion, as it must be, will be seen to be absurd, for the reason that if it applies only to improvements in cities, it should also apply to improvements in the country.

The planting and raising of forests, for the purpose of obtaining timber, the labor and expense of agriculture in planting and raising vegetables and farm produce, are as much improvements on country property, as the erection of buildings from which profits may be obtained is on city property. Why, then, should not the value of the growing timber on forest lands, which timber was planted, cared for and raised at the expense, and through the labor of the owner, be untaxed, as well as an improvement on a city lot?

Why should not all vegetables planted by the hand of man, for the purpose of improving agricultural property, be untaxed? Is not this timber and these vegetables, regarded in law as being real estate, and improvements to the land on which they are grown?

Could a constitutional law be passed which would untax one kind of improvements on real estate and not untax another kind, both kinds of improvements being part of the real estate?

If permanent improvements on land are regarded as real estate, why should one part of an owner's real estate be exempted from the payment of a tax, and the other part be subjected to the tax? If these permanent improvements be regarded as personal property, for the purpose of argument, why should this part of an owner's personal property be exempted from the payment of a tax, when all of his other personal property (with certain exceptions, based on reason, such as secured debts) be subjected to a tax?

Above all, a tax should be uniform. Uniformity in taxation is equity. The property of one man should not be taxed either more or less than identically similar property of another man. To untax the improvements on real estate would be to levy no tax on part of an owner's real estate (assuming these improvements to be real estate) and to levy the same tax on another part of a man's property; also, real estate. No valid reason has yet been advanced for such an arbitrary discrimination.

Why the City Has a $200,000,000 Budget.

Henry Bruêre contributes an article to the December Bulletin of the Real Estate Board, giving reasons for New York City's $200,000,000 budget. The principal reason stated is that New York is a city of five million, developing necessary public improvements to serve a vast territory; that it is constructing the largest water system and the largest municipal transportation system that have ever been built in the world; and that it wants the best of everything, and this costs money. Furthermore, the annual budget does not represent merely the running expenses of the city, it represents as well each year's part payment on costly public improvements which have been bought on the installment plan.

The reader will get the idea early that the author's attitude is more defensive than critical. Mr. Bruère's point of view has changed since he wrote his series of articles on city expenditures in the Record and Guide. It will not be possible to make a material reduction in the city debt, with its enormous annual interest charge, for ten or fifteen years, he plainly says. But there are possible economies, and to some of the least known of these he alludes. When the Gary system is in full operation in the public schools, it may be possible to cut a million or two from the budget. Under the Gary system, school buildings are made to render a larger service; the hours during which they are in use are extended, and space heretofore little used in assembly-rooms, libraries, playgrounds and shops is utilized to the full for purposes of instruction. But Mr. Bruère agrees that it will never be possible to hold school expenditures down to a thoroughly efficient basis until it is somebody's business to give a continuous attention to the business side of spending $40,000,000 annually for education.

Mandatory legislation has cost the City of New York during the last few years a great deal of money. The largest item was the increase in teachers' salaries. The erection of the new county of the Bronx, for which Mr. Bruère can see no justification, cost the city $600,000. An effort should be made during the coming winter, Mr. Bruère advises, to obtain from the Legislature home rule powers for the City of New York that will be as unequivocal and as broad as the home rule powers granted the second and third class cities. The City of New York should be privileged to prepare its own charter. Concerted action by taxpaying and civic bodies urging their distinction during the coming session should bring about home rule for the City of New York by 1915; failing this, the next constitution, if taxpayers are vigilant and active, should bring this relief.

Mr. Bruère points out that never before has anything resembling the present effort of the city to bring about economy been put forth. In 1915 the administrative budget of the city, exclusive of education, will be $1,604,000 less than for 1914 for the departments under the jurisdiction of the Mayor; $33,000 less for the combined Borough President's offices, and $14,000 less for the Department of Finance under the Comptroller.

The year 1916 may see still further reductions in the budgets of these departments. To bring them about, however, it will be necessary to continue salary standardization of department methods, to eliminate present waste in supply purchases, all of which are recognized and are being effected, and to check for the time being postponable expansions in government service. In this program taxpayers can be of best help and mighty influence, in the City Chamberlain's opinion, if they will take the pains to acquaint themselves with any outline inaugurated and will support sincere effort to make these plans effective. No amount of personal invective, no general opposition to city social activities, will effect the retrenchment that the taxpayers' organizations demand. The city must continue to care for the sick, it must operate its hospitals, it must care for its poor. It must complete its subway construction and waterworks extension. It must have schools. From his experience of 8 years in the Bureau of Municipal Research, and nearly a year in the city government, Mr. Bruere says that the best plan which taxpayers as such can produce for themselves is the support of some such agency as the bureau to co-operate continuously and effectively with officials with their coats off and their sleeves rolled up, in the work of pulling government out of the morass of inefficiency up to the efficient levels achieved by the finest and cleanest American business enterprise.

SIXTH AVENUE EXTENSION.

Taken Under Advisement by the City Plan Committee.

A hearing was held on Friday afternoon by the Committee on City Plan of the Board of Estimate and Apportionment at City Hall, on a petition for the extension of Sixth avenue southerly to Varick street (or Seventh avenue extended). Two principal plans are under consideration. The first contemplates extending Sixth avenue through Carmine street to the junction of Carmine with the new Seventh avenue, which would be accomplished by widening Carmine street. There would be an elbow at the intersection of Sixth avenue and Carmine, and another at the intersection of Carmine with (new) Seventh avenue. Estimates of cost exceed one million dollars.

The other principal plan provides for cutting a straight course in a southerly direction through all the blocks now intervening between the present terminus of Sixth avenue to Varick street (Seventh avenue extended) coming out at the intersection of Broome street. The estimated cost runs into the millions. The Central Mercantile Association, an organization of West Side merchants, favors this route, which would affect about two hundred real estate parcels. Many short and irregular blocks would be created by following this line.

The matter was referred to the City Plan Committee by the Board of Estimate last June, and hearings were appointed and postponed at different times until July 9, when it was postponed indefinitely.

At yesterday's hearing, J. E. Kean, representing the Central Mercantile Association, stated that while the organization was interested in the project, it did not consider this an opportune time. It would be preferable, he said, to either entirely dismiss the proposition or lay it over indefinitely.

A representative of Trinity Corporation expressed the same sentiment.

In opposition C. C. Hickok stated that through a canvass which he had made, he had learned that 90 per cent. of the affected owners were in favor of the improvement and no good could be accomplished by withholding action further.

Mr. McAneny, for the committee, said that they would hold the matter under advisement and consider it in executive session. The same action was taken with reference to the proposed opening of the southerly end of Crotona Parkway in the Bronx.

QUEENS AND BRONX.

Where They Have Transportation Interests in Common—The Connecting Railroad.

The next regular meeting of the Chamber of Commerce of the Borough of Queens might almost be termed a "Bronx Meeting," for both Douglas Mathewson, President of the Borough of the Bronx, and Hon. Robert C. Wood, the new Public Service Commissioner, who resides in the Bronx, will be the guests of the Chamber on Wednesday afternoon, December 9th, and speak in regard to important improvements that will be of benefit to both boroughs.

The most pretentious railroad project that is now under way in New York City will give direct railroad connections between Queens and the Bronx. This is the New York Connecting Railroad, which will connect the New York, New Haven and Hartford R. R. system in the Bronx with the Pennsylvania-Long Island R. R. system in Queens. The massive bridge across Hell Gate, with its approaches, is over three miles long, and will cost approximately $25,000,000 to complete. This work is scheduled to be completed in July, 1916. The concrete archways ranging in height from 50 to 100 feet are finished, and the steel is now being placed on them. The massive abutments for the bridge are all completed, and the big steel arch, 140 feet above the East River, is now being started. This railroad will be a very important factor in the industrial growth of both Brooklyn and Queens.

The Dual Subway System will also give rapid transit connections between the two boroughs for a 5-cent fare on both the subway and elevated lines of the Interboro Rapid Transit Co. Travel between the two boroughs as a result will be made very convenient, and bring the residents of same in closer touch.

An important improvement of interest to both boroughs is the ferry service that has been established between College Point in Queens, and Classon Point in the Bronx. The Twin City Ferry Co. operates during the Summer months a ferry service between these points, and many employees of the large industrial plants in College Point go back and forth to their homes in the Bronx by this ferry, this being a shorter route than taking trolley cars into Long Island City, crossing the Queensboro bridge, and then traveling many miles northward to the Bronx. The ferry, however, stops operation during the winter months, as there is but very little auto service to help make it profitable. The Queens Chamber of Commerce believes that the city should make some annual payment to keep this ferry in operation throughout the entire year, just as the city pays an annual deficit for the operation of ferries between Manhattan and Staten Island.

Title Company's Calendar.

Following its usual custom, the Title Guarantee & Trust Company has distributed a calendar containing many features designed to appeal to the real estate broker, owner and others interested in realty. Red letter days are indicated on the calendar—those days which are of importance, for the property owner, to keep in mind. On the face of the calendar is a picture representing the embarkation of the Princess Amelia on August 16, 1647, an ill-fated ship. The subject was chosen because it was possible to group so many of the pioneer investors in Manhattan real estate. On the back of the calendar is a complete story of the incident, and subsequent events. The picture is reproduced from the painting by John Ward Dunsmore, owned by the Title Guarantee & Trust Company.

New Station Project.

Because of the active real estate movement at Baldwin, L. I., for several years past and a consequent building movement and increase in the number of commuters, the Long Island Railroad has prepared plans for a new station building at that place, composed of brick and stone, and surrounded with a concrete promenade. The crossing for passengers will be through a subway so as to eliminate accidents to passengers, while vehicles will pass under a viaduct carrying the tracks over the highway. The present station at Baldwin has long outlived its usefulness.

Running through the place is the large water main of the Brooklyn waterworks which extends from Queens to the Suffolk County line. Three blocks of the land under which this water course extends will be transformed into a public park, from Milburn avenue to Grand avenue.

Within the last two years seventy-five detached dwellings have been built at Baldwin Harbor alone; and plans are in course of completion for the building of seventy-five more suburban homes. An unusual feature of the new houses will be the installation of salt water for bathing.

Baldwin Harbor comprises both sides of Milburn Creek which is being deepened and straightened to Merrick road —while Parsonage Creek also penetrates the property. More than ten miles of streets and parkways are built through the property, while a bathing beach affords aquatic sports for residents.

W. R. Messenger a Delegate.

Governor Glynn recently appointed W. R. Messenger, of New York City, a delegate to represent the State of New York at the National Rivers and Harbors Congress to be held in Washington, December 9 to 11. Mr. Messenger was also appointed a delegate to represent the Atlantic Deeper Waterways Association.

—There are 7,202 vacant parcels in Manhattan, 34,337 in the Bronx, 50,381 in Brooklyn, 82,065 in Queens, and 19,092 in Richmond.

PRIVATE REALTY SALES.

Last Tuesday the first part of the Federal War Tax for raising additional revenue, was levied. Every deed now recorded has to be stamped to the equivalent of fifty cents for every $500 equity in the property to be conveyed. There was a considerable increase in the number of documents recorded at the Register's office on last Monday, the day before the new law went into effect, 103 transfers having been filed in Manhattan and 46 in the Bronx. A number of the deeds were dated back several years, and included documents drawn in 1905, 1908, 1911, 1912 and one in 1901.

Among the properties conveyed during the week was the four-story dwelling at 16 East 69th street, by Alice G. Vanderbilt to Cettie G. Shepherd, and the five-story dwelling at 1071 Fifth avenue, by the Charter Realty Company to Herbert T. Parsons.

The largest transaction of the week was an exchange aggregating about $2,500,000, and involving the twelve-story apartment house at the northeast corner of Broadway and 81st street, and the Law Building, at 259 Fifth avenue, and a loft building at 35 West 31st street. An interesting lease was consummated durthe week in the Herald Square section. A firm of jewelers leased a small store, 16 x 65, at the southwest corner of Broadway and 37th street, for $8,000 a year, or about $7.50 a square foot.

The total number of sales reported and not recorded in Manhattan this week was 16 as against 8 last week and 18 a year ago.

The number of sales south of 59th street was 8, as compared with 3 last week and 6 a year ago.

The sales north of 59th street aggregated 8, as compared with 5 last week and 12 a year ago.

The total number of conveyances in Manhattan was 262 as against 100 last week, 21 having stated considerations totaling $2,220,000. Mortgages recorded this week number 95, involving $5,577,319, as against 49 last week, totaling $753,292.

From the Bronx 8 sales at private contract were recorded, as again 7 last week and 14 a year ago.

The amount involved in Manhattan and Bronx auction sales this week was $1,323,385, compared with $585,917 last week, making a total since Jan. 1 of $39,336,542. The figures for the corresponding week last year were $715,001 and the total from Jan. 1, 1913, to Dec. 6, 1913, was $47,290,887.

$2,500,000 Exchange.

Tucker, Speyers & Company have sold for the Brogan Building Company, which is controlled by Klein & Jackson, to William Flinn, the Pittsburgh, Pa., capitalist, the twelve-story apartment house, with stores, at the northeast corner of Broadway and 81st street, fronting 102.2 feet on Broadway and 182.7 feet in 81st street. Mr. Flinn gives in part payment the Law Building at 259 Fifth avenue, a five-story commercial building on a plot 49.4 x 100, and the Standard Building at 35 to 37 West 31st street, and eleven-story mercantile structure on plot 33.4 x 98.9. The apartment house was erected by the sellers from plans by Gaetan Ajello at an estimated cost of about $1,000,000. There is a court on the 81st street side and a large entrance hall decorated with tapestry panels and Caen stone. An impressive archway leads into a reception room. The apartments are arranged in suites of 4, 5, 6, and 7 rooms and one, two and three baths. The transaction invoves about $2,500,000 and is the largest deal since the outbreak of the war. Title passed to all the parcels on Monday.

Private Sale of Auction Offering.

M. Morgenthau, Jr., Company, and Joseph P. Day, sold at private contract for the estate of Wolf Kronethal, Hugh C. Murray, trustee, the elevator apartment house at the southwest corner of Madison avenue and 91st street, a seven-story building, with two stores, on plot 100.8x66.8. The property was advertised to be sold at auction by Joseph P. Day on Tuesday. The reported buyer is Angelo A. Cole. The property is located in the block where Andrew Carnegie's mansion occupies the Fifth avenue block frontage.

Greenwich Village Deal.

J. Irving Walsh sold for Josephine A. Budke the northeast corner of West and Perry streets, known as 417, 418 and 419 West street, and 173 Perry street, three three-story buildings and a two-story frame house, having a frontage of 73 feet in West street and 86.3 feet in Perry street, to the St. John's Park Realty Company, of James H. Cruikshank and W. Douglas Kilpatrick. In exchange the company gave 315 to 323 West 69th street, three six-story new law houses, each on plot 41.6x100.5. Messrs. Cruikshank and Kilpatrick acquired the houses last July from the Greenwich Savings Bank.

Loft Building in Trade.

W. Emlen Roosevelt and others have bought from the Rexton Realty Co., through William B. May & Company, the modern seven-story loft building at 110 West 17th street. In part payment the buyers gave the property at 131 Maiden lane, which, until quite recently had been in the Newgass family since 1894.

Sale near Longacre Square.

J. B. English and S. Albert sold for George Bickelhouse the five-story loft building on plot 50x100.5 at 243-245 West 47th street, to Ambrose Hill who gave in part payment the four-story dwelling, 52 West 37th street, on lot 21.6x98.9.

Manhattan—South of 59th St.

THOMPSON ST.—Amos F. Eno sold, through E. H. Ludlow & Co., the 5-sty building, 101-103 Thompson st, on plot 50x100. It is reported that the buyer will erect a 6-sty model tenement.

28TH ST.—William H. Archibald sold the 5-sty flat, 319 West 28th st, on lot 20x98.9. Herman F. Bauer is the owner of record. Last month Mary A. O'Gary acquired from Catherine B. Cleary the adjoining house at 321.

44TH ST.—Martin P. Lodge bought from the estate of Lawrence Hughes, the vacant lot, 25 x100, at 530 West 44th st. The buyer owns the adjoining three parcels at 532 to 536, and now controls 100 feet frontage near the middle of the block.

Manhattan—North of 59th St.

68TH ST.—Rev. Nathan A. Seagle, as executor of the estate of Anna J. Dode, sold the 4-sty dwelling, 61 West 68th st, on lot 18x100.5, to Dr. Shirley E. Sprague.

78TH ST.—F. R. Wood, W. H. Dolson Co. sold for Mrs. Blanche P. Flanagan, 221 West 78th st, a 3-sty dwelling, on lot 20x102.2, to Susan Daly.

REAL ESTATE APPRAISALS.

The following values were placed on real estate properties this week by the State appraisers in transfer tax proceedings, affecting Manhattan holdings. The amount specified does not in every case indicate the equity or interest of the decedent. It merely quotes the estimated market value of the realty, regardless of mortgages or other liens:

STEPHEN UPSON.—85 Chambers st and 67 Reade st, 5-sty loft building, 25.8 in each street x150, $110,000.

OBITUARY

CHARLES J. CANDA, aged seventy-six, president of the Canda Real Estate Co., of 11 Pine st, and former business associate of Samuel J. Tilden, died on Sunday at his home in Summit, N. J. Mr. Canda, who was born in Paris, began his business career in this country with Arnold, Constable & Co. In 1865 he entered the foreign banking business in Chicago, after which he became interested in railroad enterprises. He became a Rapid Transit Commissioned in this city in 1875, and later became president of the Cleveland, Akron and Columbus Railroad Company. For many years he was treasurer of the Democratic National Committee, and was appointed Assistant United States Treasurer at New York city in 1886.

JOHN MILLER, a real estate broker, with an office at 767 Lexington av, died on Wednesday of a complication of diseases, at the Presbyterian Hospital. Mr. Miller was a member of the 7th Regiment Veterans' Association. He was sixty-three years old and unmarried.

EUGENE F. TERPENY, who retired six months ago as a battalion chief of the New York Fire Department, after a service of thirty-four years, died on Monday at Jamesport, L. I., aged fifty-five. He was appointed to the department in March, 1880, became a lieutenant in 1886, a captain in 1896 and was appointed a battalion chief in March, 1900.

GEORGE C. TILYOU, head of the corporation which operates a number of amusement enterprises along the Atlantic coast, died on Monday, aged fifty-three, at his home, 37 Prospect Park West, Brooklyn. He was prominent in the development of Coney Island, as the founder of Steeplechase Park.

CHARLES E. WHARTON, aged forty-five, an insurance adjuster, at 85 Maiden la, and residing at 500 West 150th st, died at the Hudson Street Hospital on Sunday.

REAL ESTATE NOTES.

HEIL & STERN have been appointed agents for 36-40 West 29th st.

NEHRING CO. has been appointed agent for 605 West 177th st.

LEO M. MOSAUER has moved his office from 951 Westchester av to 1165 Broadway.

HEIL & STERN have been appointed agents for the 11-sty loft building, 520-522 Broadway.

SCHINDLER & LIEBLER have combined their Washington Heights and Yorkville branches at their new offices, 1393 3d av, at 79th st.

WILLIAM A. WHITE & SONS have been appointed agents for 703-705 West 180th st, 50 West 56th st, 390 Broadway and 242 Canal st.

CHARLES F. NOYES CO. has been appointed agent for the 8-sty building at the northwest corner of White and Centre sts.

GAINES & DRENNAN CO. placed a loan of $14,500 at 5 per cent for 5 years on 13 West 90th st for J. C. Forster; also $14,000 at 5 per cent for 3 years on 237 Broome st for I. Cohen.

HENRY WACKER was the broker in the recently-recorded sale of 54 West 106th st, a 10-family flat, on lot 25x100, for George and John Kraus to John H. Muller. The sellers have held the property for twenty years.

HOME OF THE SONS AND DAUGHTERS OF ISRAEL has bought 230 East 10th st, a 4-sty building, on lot 25x92.2, adjoining its property at No. 232, and now controls a frontage of 50 feet.

CITIZENS of Boonton, N. J., have decided to exercise, in January, their option to purchase the plant of the United Water Supply Company, which now provides the town with water. The town officials are authorized to take over the plant at a cost not to exceed $175,000.

YOUNG WOMEN'S CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION has taken title to the plot fronting 204.1 in the north side of 176th st, 169 ft. east of Anthony av, subject to a mortgage of $44,500. It is said that the Bronx headquarters of the association will be established in a new building to be erected on the site.

GARFIELD REAL ESTATE CO., of Rochester, has issued Bulletin No. 35, "Farms for Sale in New York State," a twelve-page illustrated pamphlet. It gives the locations, sizes, prices and describes the features of a hundred different farms in a concise and informing manner.

HARVEY R. LINBARGER bought from John H. McCullough the real estate and insurance business at 197 North av, Plainfield, N. J. Mr. Linbarger formerly conducted an office at 146 Park av, and for fifteen years was manager of Elston M. French's real estate and insurance office.

EASTERN WAREHOUSE & REALTY CO., which has a 63-year lease on the McClure factory building in Long Island City, near the Queensborough Bridge plaza, has been acquired by new interests, the new officers being Jacob Freeman, president; Morris Rosenwasser, vice president, and Harry Rosenwasser, secretary-treasurer. The majority of stock of the company was owned by the late Colonel William De Hertburn Washington, whose estate has now disposed of it.

THE VAN SICKLEN TAXPAYERS, at a meeting held December 1 at their headquarters, favored the appointment of one examination or inspection bureau to replace the work of the various State and city departments in the inspection of buildings. It was the opinion of the members that one inspector assigned to a building, making periodic investigations, would do better work than that which is now accomplished by the separate inspections conducted by each department. Secretary David Gross was instructed to write to the State Insurance Department requesting that all territory from Sea Breeze av to Sheepshead Bay rd and from West 5th st to Ocean parkway be omitted from the conflagration zone. The purpose of the organization is to reduce the insurance rates.

AUCTION SALES OF WEEK.

[illegible] held, the properties [illegible] Adjournments for the week are noted under Advertised Legal Sales.

In the following list of property described as [illegible] amount.

The Auction Market.

Sixty-two properties were offered for sale at the Manhattan and Bronx Exchange Salesrooms this week and there were several interesting developments. While a majority of the offerings went to plaintiffs or other parties in interest there were enough outside bidders and buyers present to inject some of the old-time interest into the proceedings. The properties were of a wide and varied character and included a number of desirable investment holdings which attracted a large and representative crowd of well-known operators and speculators.

Among the holdings scheduled for sale by Joseph P. Day was the seven-story elevator apartment house owned by the Wolf Kronethal Estate, at the southwest corner of Madison avenue and 91st street, in the block where the Andrew Carnegie mansion occupies the Fifth avenue frontage. The M. Morgenthau, Jr., Company announced that the property had been sold at private contract. The property is assessed at $180,000 and rumor had it that the buyer was Andrew Carnegie. Among the outside buyers who made purchases were Jacob J. Tabolt, who paid $17,100 for the tenement at 64 West 100th street, and Augustus S. Frazee, who bought a Marble Hill plot for $4,900.

47 New Families A Day

Official figures state that every day in the year 47 new families locate in Brooklyn.

It is natural that these new residents demand living accommodations that shall be up-to-date and complete.

They are educated to the comforts and conveniences of modern life and they move to where they may obtain them.

Progressive Brooklyn builders and architects are aware of this fact and that's the reason why Electric Light is installed in 95 out of every 100 buildings erected; even to the low priced tenement.

BUILDING MANAGEMENT

INTERIOR ILLUMINATION OF TODAY

By CHARLES W. MacMULLEN, Consulting Engineer

Conducted by Raymond P. Roberts, Building Manager for the American Real Estate Co.

INTERIOR illumination represents a realization of the value of ceremonial and decorative use of light sources. When, a quarter of a century ago, the carbon-filament incandescent lamp came into general use, there followed a period characterized by an increasing tendency to flood everything with light. With the advent of the wire-drawn tungsten lamp, however, came an opportunity to demonstrate the value of decorative interior illumination. The undesirable effects due to the high intrinsic brilliancy, the glare, of excessive direct light had become recognized; also that suitably diffused and softened light produced a favorable psychological reaction on the individual under its influence. As a result of the development based on this theory there are in use today three systems of interior illumination: Direct (open and enclosed); Semi-Indirect and Indirect.

Direct Light.

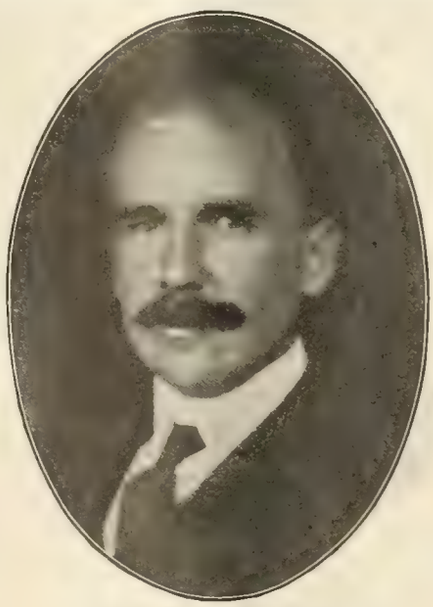
Direct light is obviously that obtained from the light units (the lamps and their equipment) directly, without reflection from the ceilings or walls. This will be recognized at once as a most efficient form of lighting. The open direct lighting fixture as supplied to industrial plants or business buildings is often made up of a single tungsten unit ranging in size from 60 to 500 watts. For general lighting, the ceiling fixture is usually hung with a short stem and the illumination is figured at from half a watt to 1.3 watts per square foot of floor area, depending on the conditions.



Reflectors have been developed principally in two types, the prismatic glass diffuser, and the steel reflector with an aluminum or porcelain reflecting surface or with corrugated silvered-glass to break up and diffuse the light. The reflectors are usually of sufficient depth to hide the lamp from side view and to control and direct the light at the most useful angles.

Enclosed Fixtures.

A further modification of the direct light is secured by the enclosed direct fixture, where the lamp is surrounded by an envelope of ground or art glass, the upper part being in some cases a prismatic reflector. The enclosing glass is made up in a one or two-piece design of varying forms. The fixture, which is of dustproof design, serves to soften and diffuse the light, at the expense of an increased loss of efficiency over the direct open fixture, varying in proportion to the nature of the envelope. Mere efficiency is not, however, the final desideratum, and direct lighting even with the enclosed fixture has failed to meet entirely the aesthetic requirements of modern illumination.

In the department store, for example, there is an increasing demand that the complete interior scheme shall present a refined and attractive setting. The prospective customer must not be met by a concentrated light. The psychological reaction produced on the individual should be rather that due to a refined and harmonious blending of soft illumination and decoration.

To meet this requirement there have been developed lighting fixtures from which the light is directly thrown wholly or in part against a light-colored ceiling, and reflected to the floor. In the semi-indirect fixture, the lamp is placed back of a bowl of ground or art glass, a small portion of the light coming through the glass to the floor, the rest being thrown upon the ceiling, to be redistributed. The effect produced is that of a softened and thoroughly diffused light. The shadow projections are less pronounced and the visual depression of the observer reduced. The artistic quality of the illumination is heightened and a number of effects are made possible through varied designs of bowl. There is, of course, a loss in efficiency as compared with the direct lighting fixture.

Semi-Indirect Lighting.

The light from a semi-indirect fixture can, however, be so effectively distributed that the actual increase in wattage for a given space need not be more than 25 per cent. to 50 per cent. greater than for direct lighting, in semi-indirect lighting the number of lamps per fixture may vary with the proportions of the bowl. With the high-intensity non-vacuum tungsten lamps, which will be referred to later, it is possible in many instances to use one lighting unit per fixture even in cases where large spaces are to be illuminated.

It is not easy to fix the relative proportions of the direct and indirect components of light from a semi-indirect fixture. It is usually considered that from 10 per cent. to 20 per cent. of the light should constitute the direct illumination, the remainder being cast upon the ceiling and redistributed. The obvious advantage of the semi-indirect design is that it combines the attractive features of direct lighting with the advantages of reflected distribution from the ceiling.

Indirect Fixtures.

The indirect fixture as originally designed, allowed for no direct component of light. The increase in wattage required for the indirect fixture as compared with the direct for the same conditions, may run as high as 60 per cent., depending on the conditions. An opaque bowl entirely shuts off from view the light source. The interior of the bowl may be white porcelain enamel or silvered glass, the surfaces being so designed as to break up and diffuse the light which is cast on the ceiling. The characteristic effect produced by the indirect form of light is that of uniform illumination, the absence of brilliancy, and excellent diffusion which eliminates sharp shadows and the glare from glossy surfaces. This form of lighting lends itself to soft and restful effects.

The indirect lighting fixture has been criticized because of the dark under surface of the bowl, which stands out disproportionately black against the light on the ceiling. To meet such criticism the so-called Luminous-Bowl, indirect fixture has been produced. In this fixture, the bowl is designed with a metal band to which is attached a translucent glass bowl. If the light source is simply one tungsten lamp, its end-on light is utilized to illuminate the bowl, the opaque reflector being so designed as to include an opening for this purpose, directly under the lamp. If several lamps make up the light source, a separate opaque reflector is provided under each lamp and a single, small-wattage lamp is placed in a central position under these, to provide illumination for the bowl.

Cove Lighting.

The success of this design draws attention to the fact that the gap between the semi-indirect and the indirect types is gradually closing. The possibilities and limitations of each form are being more clearly recognized and the conditions imposed by modern decorative standards cause the designer to lean now to one type and now to the other. Before leaving the field of indirect illumination, mention should be made of what is called cove lighting. The lamps in this case are concealed in a cove which runs around the room usually at the level of the cornice, the light being thrown from individual or continuous reflectors back of the lamps, to the ceiling of the room and thence to the floor. This design is applicable to a corridor or to a banquet hall.

The consumption of energy by an indirect light source is, other things being equal, greater than in the other forms of fixture. Approximations indicate that in the neighborhood of fifty per cent. or more of the light thrown on the ceiling is redistributed depending on the color of the ceiling. In allowing the necessary watts per square foot of floor area for indirect lighting, it is necessary to assume from .75 to 2.5 watts per square foot of floor area, the lower figure being suitable for lobby and corridor lighting, and the high figure applying to special display rooms. Owing to the collection of dust in the bowls, the semi-indirect and indirect fixtures should be cleaned at short intervals in order to avoid a material loss in efficiency of the reflecting surfaces.

Non-vacuum Lamps.

A factor of considerable importance in the success of the most recent indirect or luminous bowl installations has been the use of the non-vacuum tungsten lamp. In seeking a remedy for the black deposit from the filament which forms on the inside of the tungsten bulb after it has burned for five or six hundred hours, manufacturers discovered that a lamp of large wattage with a concentrated filament could be burned at very high temperature and efficiency in a gas such as nitrogen, without perceptible disintegration of the filament. A lamp of this type will show a life of 1,000 hours with but a negligible deposit on the inside of the bulb. These lamps are now produced commercially in certain sizes from 200 watts to 1,000 watts and with efficiencies ranging from .8 watts per candle-power to .55 watts per candle-power. The filament of this lamp is so wound that the light is concentrated in a small space. The lamp

USEFUL APPLIANCES

Novelties, New Applications of Familiar Devices and the Trend of Invention, Designed to Aid the Architect, Builder and Building Manager, Described Without Regard to Advertising Consideration

Fireproof Wall Windows.

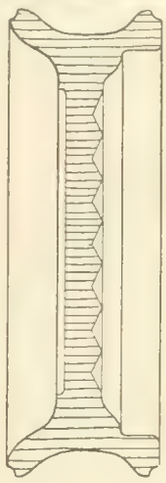
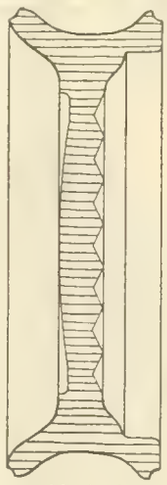
WINDOWS that are fireproof in a larger sense than has generally been known in this country prior to the war are now being introduced by Frederick L. Keppler, 101 Park avenue. They are shown in the accompanying illustrations, one of which show the fire resistive ability of this system. One side indicates the window as installed and the other after a hot fire had been applied to it for a considerable period. It will be seen that there was no positive fracture of the glass, although it checked. It was not possible for the fire to penetrate this frame.





The system of glazing now being introduced here has been in actual practice for some time in Russia, Paris and Berlin. It has been installed in the Chase National Bank of this city, of which R. B. Bowles was architect. The principal somewhat resembles that employed in making ferro-glass sidewalk vaults, being built up with cement and reinforcing rods. The lights are translucent and admit a maximum of light, but it takes the idea and makes it into walls and partitions and even goes so far as to make floors of lofts light carrying. But the application of the idea in exterior window glazing is somewhat new, especially in congested districts where the fire-spreading hazard is particularly great.

The concrete in the window frame protects the iron and keeps it from warping, thus retaining the glass and gives full protection even under extreme conditions. At the same time more and better light is said to be obtainable because the glass plates are prismatic. The sketch shows how the light is intensified.

Tilting Base for Flagpoles.

STEEPLE JACK services usually are costly and when the cloud-scraping job is done who is there to inspect the work to see how well it has been executed? With the idea in mind of saving this maintenance cost, a Chicago inventor has perfected a flagpole base that, counterweighted, permits the flagpole itself to be lowered and raised into position again with little effort. It has especial virtue in tall buildings where the danger is always great of high winds breaking off poles far above the sidewalk.

The socket is in two parts, bolted together so as firmly to clamp the butt of the pole for its entire length. It carries counterweights at its lower end, as stated, which are mounted by trunnions in the base which consists of a pair of castings. The pole is secured in vertical position by a flat bar running through holes in the socket and the base castings, and secured by a pin at the end and a key at the other. To lower the pole, the key is removed and the bar withdrawn, the pole being then readily swung down by hand. It can be secured in horizontal position if desired, to carry a flag in front of the building.

The device is made in several sizes, for poles 25 to 50 feet high, and weighs from 1,800 to 2,000 pounds. For a 40-foot pole, the side castings are 5 feet high, and the socket casting is nearly 6 feet high, with 3-inch trunnions and three sets of clamp bolts. The counterweights are cast-iron plates of suitable weight, bolted to the flat ends of the socket castings.

Diamonded.

Vaulted curved on both sides.

Considerable merit exists in the character of the base. It is so reinforced that the weight of the pole and the pull of the flag when aloft in a gale is perfectly distributed so that the anchorage is better and less destructive to the roof than rigid flagpole anchorages.

INTERIOR ILLUMINATION.

is an admirable auxiliary to the indirect fixture because of the concentration of large candle-power in a short filament.

It is not easy to lay down a set of rules governing the selection of fixtures for varying conditions of illumination. It is, however, possible to indicate some of the cases where the different types may be used to advantage. Direct lighting finds its greatest field of usefulness in loft buildings and in industrial work. The lighting of factories, of warehouses and yards, also highly localized work, such as printing, the lighting of show cases, garages and shops can be satisfactorily accomplished by the direct system. In general, direct lighting may be considered suitable in utilitarian surroundings, where the prime object is to secure highly efficient illumination.

The indirect forms of lighting find their use where aesthetic and decorative requirements are the deciding factors. Churches, department stores, hotels and clubs, theatres and the living rooms of residences offer a field for the indirect and semi-indirect light.

No Fixed Rule Can Apply.

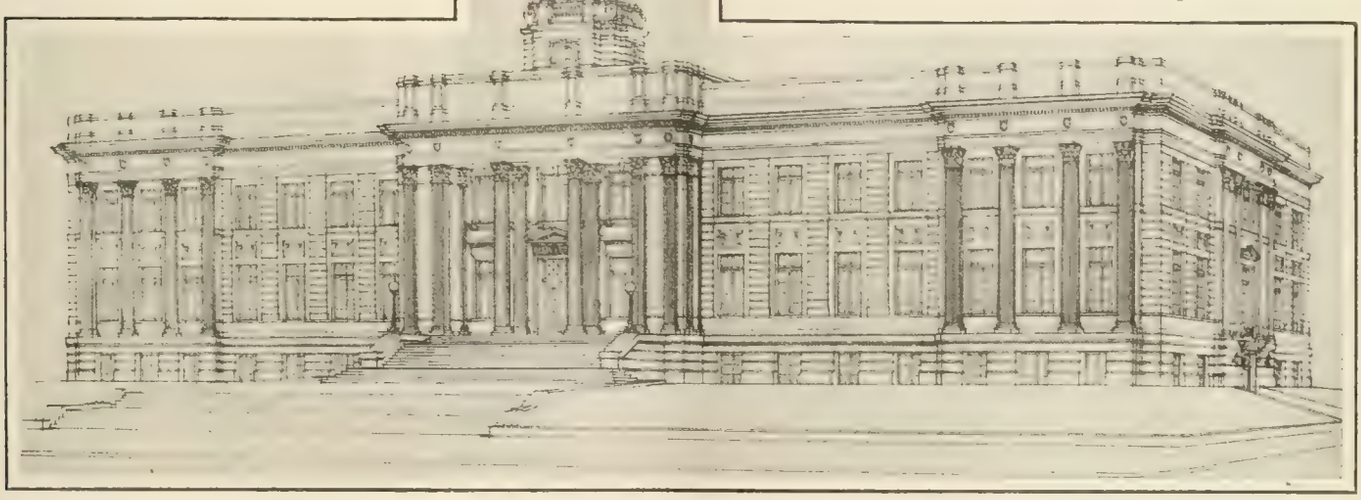
A decision as to the use of semi-indirect or indirect is not easily reached by the application of a general rule. The conditions surrounding each case must determine the question. It can be said, however, that the indirect fixture with opaque bowl may be used with propriety for the illumination of churches where subdued light is desired, also in class rooms, draughting rooms and places where decorative display is not essential. The semi-indirect and the luminous bowl fixtures meet the demand for the lighting of theatres, fine department stores, hotels, clubs, places where there is a need for artistic effects with the impression of cheerful illumination.



There is every reason to anticipate great advance in future interior lighting for there is today an appreciative realization by the architect and the owner of the results secured by the illuminating engineer. They have encouraged the expert and are co-operating with him, which should bring valuable results.

CURRENT BUILDING OPERATIONS

New City Hall Project, at Bayonne, N. J., to be Thoroughly Modern Structure, Involving Cost of About $400,000

BAYONNE as a community is growing rapidly and many improvements of different types, both public and private, have recently been completed, or are contemplated for the near future. The business activities of the city have completely outgrown the present facilities of the old City Hall and has made necessary the erection of a new and modern home for the city government and its various branches and departments.

John H. and Wilson C. Ely, architects, Fireman's Building, Newark, N. J., have been retained to prepare plans and specifications for the proposed new Municipal Building. Their preliminary plans were approved some time ago by the City Hall Commission, D. J. Murphy, president. It is proposed to erect this building within an appropriation of $400,000, which has already been voted upon and approved. Bayonne's new Municipal Building will occupy the block front on Avenue C, between 27th and 28th streets. The general dimensions of the plot allow for the recessing of the building on the front and both sides and affords ample space for lawns and landscape effects. The structure will be set back about seventy-five feet from the building line on Avenue C and will leave about thirty feet in both the 27th and 28th street sides.

PROPOSED CITY HALL FOR BAYONNE, N. J. John H. & Wilson C. Ely, Architects.

According to the preliminary plans the structure has been designed in strict accordance with the modern school of classic architecture and without excessive ornamentation of the facades, which will be faced with Indiana limestone or white marble. Much space, in the facades, has been devoted to windows, thus assuring an abundance of natural light and ventilation. To the general proportions of the building have been given much thought, with the fundamental idea of obtaining a thoroughly symmetrical treatment. The structure, rectangular in form, covering a plot 200 x 80 feet, will be two stories and basement in height, with a central clock tower. In general, the arrangement of the building consists of a central lobby, from which branch corridors lead to the different departments and business offices. Especial attention has been given to the location of each division or sub-division of the various departments, making them readily accessible to both employees and citizens. The stairway is centrally located and the elevator so placed that all departments may be reached with the utmost dispatch.

The basement contains quarters for the Board of Health, Poor Master, Playground and Park Commissioner, Sealer of Weights and Measures, and the Department of Water Supply, the Document room, storage, boiler, pump, and engine rooms, coal bunkers and public toilet rooms. The first story is devoted mainly to the administration departments of the city government, the business of which largely requires direct contact with the general public. The offices of the Collector of Revenue have been placed on the left of the main entrance, thus furnishing them with the best facilities for the entrance and exit of those having business in that office. The Tax Assessor's department is located in close proximity to the office of the Revenue Collector. The offices of the Comptroller have been placed at the north corner of the building, and the Treasurer's offices have been located so as to be as convenient as possible for the rapid transaction and administration of the city's finances. On this floor also have been placed the offices of the Water Department, the Building Department, Board of Education, and the City Engineer.

Upon the second floor the space is almost exclusively devoted to the executive and legislative branches of the city government. The Mayor's offices have been given the most important position and consist of large and well-lighted administrative and clerical offices with entrances from the main lobby. Directly adjacent to these and on the right are the quarters of the law department, with a private lobby, providing direct communication between the City Council Chamber and the office of the Mayor. The Excise Commissioners and the City Clerk have offices in the southwest corner of this floor, with ample fireproof vault space for storage of books, records and other documents. The north end of this floor is devoted exclusively to the legislative branch of the city government and consists of a large chamber and other necessary rooms for the deliberations of the Common Council. The District Court, with Judges' room, jury rooms, clerk's room, toilet rooms, etc., occupy the south end of this floor. The court and other assembly rooms have ceiling heights of fifteen feet and are particularly well ventilated and lighted. There will be one electric elevator, which will operate from the basement to the top floor.

SUBWAY PROGRESS.

How the Work Stands on Various Contracts—19,000 Men Employed.

There are now 19,223 men employed by the contractors for the Dual System. The construction work to be done by the city is divided into 83 contract sections. The report shows that contracts have been awarded for 64 of these sections, leaving only 19 yet to be awarded. The total contract prices of the 64 sections on city-owned lines already let is $146,253,346.59. In addition, the Interborough Rapid Transit Company has under way the third-tracking of the Manhattan and Bronx elevated lines, which, it is estimated, will cost from $8,000,000 to $10,000,000; and the New York Municipal has under way elevated third-tracking and extension contracts involving about $6,000,000, so that the grand total of work now going on in different parts of the Dual System involves an expenditure of about $162,000,000 contracted for up to date.

The commission is now advertising for bids for two additional contracts, one for the construction of Section No. 4 of Routes Nos. 4 and 36, a part of the Broadway subway lying in Seventh avenue between 51st and 59th streets, and the other for the reconstruction of the DeKalb avenue station on the Fourth avenue subway in Brooklyn. Bids for the former will be opened December 11 and for the latter on December 1. It is expected that two or three additional contracts will be advertised before the close of the year.

Last year the disbursements by the city to contractors on this work averaged about $1,600,000 per month. The average is now about $2,000,000 per month, and for the next year it is estimated payments will run from $2,500,000 to $3,000,000 per month.

Status of Work.

Lexington Avenue Line.—Contracts for the work north of 53rd street were awarded two or three years ago and the work on these sections is from 80 to 95 per cent. completed. The stretch from 43rd to 53rd street was awarded last July and the diagonal station connection across 42nd street in September last.

Jerome Avenue Line.—The subway section is 98 per cent completed. The elevated section has been under contract only since last winter, and the two contracts are respectively 18 and 16 per cent. completed.

White Plains Road Line.—A three-track elevated railroad, all under contract, and on its two sections work was begun respectively last December and last March. The former section, which is the northerly one, is 29 per cent., and the other 7 per cent. completed.

Southern Boulevard Line.—The underground portion is all under contract, and that part south of 147th street is 39 per cent. completed. The contract north of 147th street is 20 per cent. completed.

Seventh Avenue Line.—This line is entirely under contract. The different sections range from 3 to 37 per cent. completed.

Queens Lines.—Two separate lines of elevated railroad are being constructed in Queens for operation by the Interborough, but with trackage rights also for the New York Municipal Railway Corporation. They begin at the Queens end of the Queensboro Bridge, one running north through Second avenue to Ditmars avenue, Astoria, and the other northeasterly through Queens Boulevard and Roosevelt avenue to Alburtis avenue, Corona. The commission has agreed to extend the latter line to Main street, Flushing, as soon as the Board of Estimate can supply funds for the work. The Astoria and Corona lines are both under contract and well advanced toward completion. The structure on the former is entirely up and the work on the Corona line is about 84 per cent. completed. This line is 20,650 feet long, and the structure will be of reinforced concrete for 4,271 feet in Queens Boulevard.

Company-Owned Lines.

All the preceding lines are to be owned by the City of New York. In addition the Interborough Company will build at its own expense third tracks on the Second, Third and Ninth avenues elevated lines, an extension of the Second avenue elevated to connect with the Queensboro Bridge and the new lines in Queens, an extension of the Ninth avenue line from 155th street across the Harlem River and through 162nd street to the new line in Jerome avenue, and an extension of the Third avenue line from its present terminus through Webster avenue and Gun Hill Road to a junction with the new elevated road in White Plains Road. The contract has been let for the third-tracking work, which has been going on for several months. The company is now employing more than 1,600 men on this work. The contract calls for its completion in August, 1915. The company has submitted to the Public Service Commission a contract which it proposes to make for the construction of the extensions above named, but this contract has not yet been approved by the Commission.

New York Municipal Lines.

Broadway Line, Manhattan.—The line is entirely under contract with the exception of the stretch in Broadway and Seventh avenue between 38th and 59th streets.

AMERICAN ARCHITECTS.

Annual Meeting of the Institute at Washington—The Octagon House.

Washington.—Urgent recommendations for the complete restoration and preservation of Octagon House were made by the house committee Wednesday morning at the opening session of the forty-eighth annual convention of the American Institute of Architects, held in the ballroom of the Shoreham Hotel. In its report the committee stated that the property is in a poor condition.

Officers Elected.

The report of the committee on the nomination of officers showed the choice of the following, who were subsequently voted on: R. Clipston Sturgis, Boston, president (re-elected); Thomas R. Kimball, Omaha, first vice-president (re-elected); D. Knickerbocker Boyd, Philadelphia, second vice-president; Burt L. Fenner, New York, secretary, and J. L. Mauran, St. Louis, treasurer (re-elected).

The gold medal of the institute was presented to Jean Louis Pascal, in absentia, at 8.30 o'clock Thursday night, at the annual banquet, at the Pan-American Union Building. The French ambassador, Jules J. Jusserand, received the medal, in the absence of Mr. Pascal. Among those who made addresses were Secretary Bryan, Charles S. Hamlin of the Reserve Board and Charles A. Prouty.

MECHANICAL ENGINEERS.

Meeting of the American Institute a Notable Professional and Social Event.

The thirty-first annual meeting of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers was held in the Engineering Society Building, 29 West 39th street, December 1 to 4, inclusive. The attendance was large. The programs prepared for each day were both interesting and instructive, and the social events held in connection with this convention were well attended.

The first session was held in the auditorium at 8.30 p. m., Tuesday, and opened with an address by James Harkness, president of the society, his subject being "The Human Element, the Key to Economic Problems." This address was followed by the report of the tellers of election of officers which was followed by the introduction of the president-elect, John A. Brashear, of Pittsburgh. An informal reception was held after the opening session to the president, president-elect, ladies, members and guests of the society.

The first business meeting was held in the auditorium at 10 a. m., Wednesday, which was followed by a professional session at which a number of interesting papers were read. At the afternoon session papers were read by H. L. Gantt, on "Measuring Efficiency;" C. B. Auel, "Standardization in the Factory;" George I. Orvin, "Operation of Grinding Wheel in Machine Grinding;" P. F. Walker and W. J. Malcolnson, "Friction Losses in the Universal Joint." On Wednesday afternoon the ladies' committee held a reception and The Dansant in the rooms of the society from 4 to 6 p. m., which was well attended by the members and their guests.

The chief feature of the Wednesday evening session in the auditorium was the award of the John Fritz medal to Prof. John F. Sweet, honorary member and past president of the society. Addresses were made by Dr. James Douglas, honorary member and past president of the American Society of Mining Engineers, and Dr. S. W. Stratton, director of the Bureau of Standards. Thursday, December 3, a public service session was held in the auditorium at 10 a. m. The opening address at this session was made by Hon. John Purroy Mitchel. Henry Bruere spoke on "The Future of the Police from an Engineering Standpoint." Andrew Carnegie was also a speaker.

Papers were read by Morris L. Cooke, on "Some Factors in Municipal Engineering," Edward Flad, and C. E. Drayer.

At 1 p. m. Mrs. Harrington Emerson acted as hostess at a luncheon which was held at the Hotel Astor in honor of the visiting ladies. At 2 o'clock the second part of the public service session was continued, at which papers were read by Frederick W. Ballard, on "The Cleveland Electric Light Plant;" George S. Webster, on "The Handling of Sewer Sludge;" Clyde Dyndon King, on "Municipal Service in Germany," and Sanford E. Thompson, on "Cleaning Filter Sands."

Thursday evening at 7 p. m. a dinner-dance which was the main social event of the meeting was held in the grand ball room of the Hotel Astor, and the last professional session of the meeting Friday evening reunions were held by the Engineering Alumni of Brown University, Cornell University, Kentucky State University, Massachusetts Institute of Technology, Yale University and other colleges and schools.

Bronx Institute and Free School.

The Young Folks Circle of the Bronx and Forest Avenue Synagogue, of which Charles A. Miller, vice-president of the synagogue, is in charge, is having plans prepared by B. H. & C. N. Whinston, 148th street and Third avenue, for a Bronx Hebrew institute and free school, to be erected in the Bronx, exact location for which has not been selected. The building will be of fireproof construction, five stories in height, 50x100 feet, and cost about $50,000. It is undecided just how soon operations will be started.

A. C. & H. M. Hall to Build.

The Riverside Drive Realty Company, A. C. & H. M. Hall, 2789 Broadway, owners of the block front on the east side of Broadway, between 133d and 134th streets, expect to start work shortly on a nine-story fireproof storage warehouse, covering the entire plot. Each compartment will be fireproof, thoroughly ventilated and there will be a complete vacuum system in use so that all articles will be thoroughly cleaned before being stored, as well as disinfected.

Mrs. W. K. Vanderbilt, Jr., to Build.

Mrs. W. K. Vanderbilt, Jr., of 666 Fifth avenue, Manhattan, is having preliminary plans prepared by John R. Pope, 527 Fifth avenue, Manhattan, for a timber and stone residence, 2½ stories in height with dimensions of 35x75 feet, to be erected at Westbury, Long Island, at a cost of approximately $60,000. Definite details have not been decided, although it is expected that bids will be received by the architect from a selected list of contractors about December 10.

Disposal Plant at Great Neck.

The Watson Engineering Company, of 38 West 32d street, Manhattan, has preliminary plans in progress for a new sewerage system and disposal plant to be erected by the Great Neck Sewerage Commission at Great Neck, L. I., at a cost of $150,000. Further details are not available at this time, but it is expected that work will be undertaken by spring. Officers of the commission are J. Gillier, chairman; G. H. Kenahan, treasurer, and Benj. L. Coffin, secretary, all of Great Neck.

Nine-Story Warehouse in 107th St.

Wortmann & Braun, of 114 East 28th street, have been selected architects for a nine-story fireproof warehouse and garage structure to be erected in the south side of 107th street, 225 feet west of Columbus avenue, for the Chelsea Storage Warehouse Company, of which Louis Shram, 426 West 26th street, is president. The building will cover a plot 100x100 feet.

Astor Estate Plans Uptown Store.

The Estate of W. W. Astor, 23 West 26th street, Manhattan, is having plans prepared privately for a two-story brick and limestone store building, 50x100 feet, to be erected at the southeast corner of Broadway and 92d street. The general contract will be awarded to John J. Downey, Inc., of 410 West 34th street.

To Improve Brooklyn Block.

The Kraslow Construction Company, 188 Montague street, will improve the square block bounded by 63d and 64th streets, 21st to 22d avenues, Brooklyn, with apartment and store buildings. Plans will be prepared by Cohn Brothers, of 361 Stone avenue, and work will be started by Spring.

72d Street and Lexington Avenue Hotel.

The 137 East 72d Street Corporation, care of Van Wyck Thorne, 150 Broadway, contemplates the erection of an apartment hotel at the northwest corner of 72d street and Lexington avenue. No plans have yet been prepared.

NO ARCHITECTS SELECTED.

In this department is published advance information regarding building projects where architects have not as yet been selected.

BROOKLYN.—Frank Grossbard, proprietor of Somers Hall, contemplates the erection of an addition to the hall at 126 Rockaway av. No architect selected. Cost, about $15,000.

ROCKVILLE CENTRE, L. I. The Board of Education, W. T. Corbett, chairman, is ready to receive competitive sketches, which will close December 10, for a brick school to be erected here to cost about $40,000.

BRONXVILLE, N. Y.—Samuel Potter, Cassilis av, Armour Villa Park, Bronxville, contemplates the erection of a residence at Armour Villa Park to cost about $8,000. No architect selected. Project will probably go ahead about February 1.

MAYVILLE, N. Y.—The Town of Mayville, Pratt E. Marshall, superintendent of schools, Sherman, N. Y., contemplates the erection of a high school here. No architect selected.

CHATHAM, N. Y.—Henry O'Brien, Payne av, contemplates rebuilding the residence on Payne av recently destroyed by fire. No architect selected.

BINGHAMTON, N. Y.—Sons of Israel, S. A. Friedlander, care of Lion Store, 127 Clinton st, chairman of building committee, contemplates the erection of a 1-sty. brick synagogue and school at 73 Susquehanna st, to cost between $15,000 and $18,000. No architect selected.

KINGSTON, N. Y.—De Mork O'Meara, 574 Broadway, Kingston, contemplates the erection of a residence at Broadway and Delavan av. No architect selected.

UTICA, N. Y.—Henry and Arthur J. Lux, proprietors of the Alhambra Theatre, 108 Bleecker st, contemplates the erection of a brick moving picture theatre at Oneida Square. No architect selected.

ENDICOTT, N. Y.—The Board of Education of the Towns of Endicott and Union, George J. Ames, Endicott, president, contemplates the erection of a 2-sty brick and steel grade school, to cost between $15,000 and $20,000. No architect selected.

AUBURN, N. Y.—The Board of Education of Auburn, Henry D. Hervey, this place, superintendent, contemplates the erection of a new high school building to accommodate 2d, 3d and 4th years' classes. Nothing definite has been decided.

ELBERON, N. J.—The Elberon Hotel, care of Harry Smith, of T. P. Howell & Co., New st, Newark, contemplates rebuilding the Elberon Hotel on Ocean av. No architect selected.

ALBANY, N. Y.—The City of Albany Board of Contract & Supply, Isadore Wachsman, secretary, City Hall, contemplates the erection of a brick police station. No architect selected.

BINGHAMTON, N. Y.—St. Joseph's R. C. Church, Rev. Father J. J. McLoughlin, 9 Leroy st, temporary pastor, contemplates the erection of church here. No architect selected.

HANNIBAL, N. Y.—C. A. Cox, Hannibal, N. Y., contemplates the erection of a 1-sty cement block garage, 30x60 ft. No architect selected.

ALBANY, N. Y.—St. John's German Evangelical Lutheran Church, Rev. Oscar Krauch, pastor, 166 Central av, contemplates the erection of a 2-sty brick and stone parish hall in Robin st, near Central av, to cost about $30,000.

CORTLAND, N. Y.—The Board of Education of Cortland, J. R. French, city clerk, 19 Main st, Cortland, is receiving competitive sketches for a 2-sty brick and stone school at District 5, to cost about $20,000.

NEWARK, N. J.—The Consolidated Cork Specialty Co., on premises, contemplates the erection of a manufacturing plant of reinforced concrete construction, probably 2-stys in height, 100x150 ft., at 43 Barbara st, to cost between $100,000 and $150,000. No architect selected.

PLANS FIGURING.

APARTMENTS, FLATS AND TENEMENTS.

MANHATTAN (sub).—The Hudson View Construction Co., Henry Friedman, president, 189 Broadway, owner and builder, is taking bids on carpentry for three apartments in the north side of 160th st, west of Fort Washington av, from plans by Harold L. Young, 1204 Broadway. Total cost, about $430,000.

CHURCHES.

RIDGEFIELD PARK, N. J.—Bids will close about January 1 for the 1-sty church and 2-sty school at Mount Vernon st, for St. Francis R. C. Church, Rev. John M. McDonald, rector, 114 Mt. Vernon st. F. J. Schwarz, 113 Ellison st, Paterson, N. J., architect. Cost, about $30,000.

ELMHURST, L. I.—Frank A. Collins, 24 Locust st, Flushing, architect, is taking bids for alterations to the brick and stone church at the Queens blvd and Weimer st, for the First Presbyterian Church of Newton, L. I. F. D. Simonson, Elmhurst, architect.

PRICES WEAKER THAN A MONTH AGO—STEEL, BRICK AND LUMBER DULLEST FACTORS—MANY SIGNS OF IMPROVEMENT

Current Demand in Metropolitan District About the Same as Last Month—Plan Filings

NOVEMBER will have few equals as a month of mingled despair and hope for building material and investing interests. It opened with plan filings almost negligible and closed with building projections fairly numerous. It began with a feeling of indefinite hope, born of a feeling of uncertainty, regarding legislative programs. Before it was a week old the turning point of extreme pessimism was reached. There were signs in the election returns that business men had no trouble in reading and understanding. On the 16th about two hundred millions of dollars were released, in the New York reserve banking district, and twelve days later the New York Stock Exchange reopened, for bond trading.

December dawns with a large amount of money, that has been hoarded, going out into the retail channels, which is the quickest way for money to get back into circulation. Business, outside of building construction, began to feel tangible evidence that the financial situation was improving. In the textile lines, in table staples, silk and jewelry departments, freer buying and selling developed. No better time could have been picked out for the rehabilitation of the business world than the month of November, followed as it was by the heavy retail buying that always characterizes the month of September.

In the building material department, December opens with the pig iron producers offering their wares freely at the practically prevailing quotations for delivery during the first quarter, but rigidly refusing to make any quotations on pig iron for deliveries into the second and third quarters. Remembering that pig iron, after all, is the barometer of all the basic building commodities, there is significance in the fact that the producers are safeguarding themselves against a rise in price, after April 1, when the building season begins, and by which time the gigantic financial problems hurled upon this country, by the European war, will have been more fully solved.

Another significant factor about the current market is the attitude of the brick manufacturers in the Hudson district, in holding back their supplies right up to the very eve of closing of navigation, without even covering their brick or making provision for winter supply. This attitude is not surprising in view of the fact that prices are low and their stocks up the river are considerably reduced from the quantity usually carried into the winter. Cement producers are following practically the same tactics and the best advices received from lime centers indicate that there is not an over supply in this market and neither will there be during the winter.

Plan filings in the five boroughs for the week follow: In the corresponding period last week there were 201 new buildings, estimated to cost $2,382,552.

COMMON BRICK.

First Listed Covered Brick Reported—Prices $6 and Up.

BRICK continues dull. Registered unloading showed some improvement over last week, but wholesale market arrivals were in excess of sales. The first of the winter's covered barges were listed and some sales are reported, five being the total for the week. Prices are running over $6 for the best grades.

Official transactions for Hudson River brick covering the week ending Thursday, Dec. 3, in the wholesale market, with comparison for the corresponding period last year, and a comparative statement of Hudson brick unloaded from barges for consumption here, follow:

SAND AND GRAVEL.

Former Prices Steady—Latter Lower, But With Demand Greater.

SAND and gravel are in a contradictory market. The former is being held strongly at fifty cents a cu. yd. dock with demand only moderate. Gravel is off five cents from quotations of Nov. 1. The demand for large size is keen and increasing. Subway requirements are responsible for this condition. The mines will operate all winter, weather permitting. Sand is in liberal supply here at present.

LIME.

Manufacturers Lightly Stocking—Prices Steady—Demand Dull.

IN the absence of any effort on the part of building material dealers to stock in lime and other basic building commodities, the lime manufacturers are putting aside moderate stocks for winter requirements and are barely keeping their kilns going. There is some figuring reported, but actual buying, like other materials, is off.

LINSEED OIL.

Prices a Cent Higher Than Last Month—Buying Light.

LINSEED oil is a cent higher than it was a month ago, due to condition of the flaxseed market at Duluth rather than to any improvement in buying at this point. Forty-seven cents seems to be the prevailing card quotation today, but there are few takers, indicating conservative action on the part of paint and floor dressing manufacturers.

LUMBER.

Few Lines Holding Firm—Building Grades Slack—Prices Weak.

AUTHORITIES do not seem to agree as to the selling prices for standard building grades of lumber. There is a quoted list, but actual market transactions do not adhere strictly to it.

WILLIAM STREET SUBWAY A MIGHTY WORK

The Underpinning of Giant Buildings Will Be the Prominent Feature—This Will Cost $465 a Front Foot in Cases—Construction Methods Described

MORE publictiy has attended the various steps leading up to the construction of the subway through William Street than any other section. Almost every step has been a hesitating one. William street is only forty feet wide, divided almost equally between sidewalks and roadway. Seven thousand people pass one of its busy corners in a normal hour. Fearful that damage would be wrought to the buildings that line the street, many property owners were opposed for a time to the construction of the subway there, and latterly they entered a protest against the erection of trestles in front of stores and office buildings to carry gas mains and other conduits while the road is under construction.

The so-called "William street subway" will connect the Seventh avenue subway with the downtown business district of Manhattan, and with Brooklyn. The route leaves the Seventh avenue line at West Broadway and Park place and runs through under the Post Office property to Beekman street and thence into William. Then the route is down William to Old Slip and under the East River to Clark street and Fulton street, Brooklyn, to make a junction with the existing subway there.

The value of the property along the William street section is estimated at $40,362,000, as the lower portion of the street is flanked by some of the largest and most expensive buildings in the city. Most of them are built on quicksand, but the Public Service Commission, on the advice of its engineers, takes the position that the buildings can be adequately shored up, and if necessary caissons will be sunk to secure their safety.

The closeness of the excavation to the buildings, the unstable character of the soil, and the great property values at stake, are elements in one of the most difficult problem that the engineers have had to contend with. At stations the width of the excavation will be full forty feet between building lines, in order to provide for island platforms, and elsewhere the width will be twenty-nine feet. The gas mains will be carried in the gutters, except at street intersections, when they must be elevated to trestles.

The depth to subgrade will vary from twenty-five to thirty-one feet, through coarse sand, with some gravel, grading into fine sand which, below the waterline, becomes quicksand. At Pearl street the subgrade will be twenty feet below mean high water, and sixteen feet at Maiden Lane. Floor and sidewalls will be built with brick and mastic waterproofing, as a matter of course.

WILLIAM STREET, SOUTH FROM WALL.

Showing nature of buildings to be underpinned—National City Bank on the left; the Bank of America, Atlantic Building, Land's Court and Corn Exchange Bank on the right.

The great feat required of the engineers will be to keep the "swimming sand" quiescent and confined, when it possesses a high bearing value, but when released it becomes dangerous in a high degree.

Stations will be built to extend between John and Ann street, and between Cedar and Wall. The entrances will be, one on the east side of Fulton street, for the first-named station, and for the other station there will be one entrance on the west side, at Pine street, and one on each side at Wall. Some anxiety has been expressed by owners and tenants over the location of the Pine street station. The possibility of a kiosk six feet wide occupying a sidewalk nine feet eight inches wide has been apprehended, but this is something that will never eventuate, the Record and Guide is officially assured. The precise location of the stairway will be determined after negotiations with the owners of adjacent property, and it is highly improbable that it will be in a position where it will block traffic or injure private business.

A very difficult and trying part of the construction work will be the underpinning of buildings, it is almost unnecessary to say. The proposed method will be decided on by the contractor, but must, by the terms of the contract, receive the approval of the commission, because primary responsibility has, by the courts, been placed upon the city, for the first time in any contract for subway construction. At the same time the contractor has not been relieved of the usual full responsibility.

The established practice for work of this character is to provide adequate temporary support and then build permanent supports for the existing foundations from rock or hardpan beneath the piers or other points of load concentration. Between the piers there will be continuous bulkhead walls (either of tight sheeting or solid concrete), to stop any tendency of the quicksand to flow. Similar walls will protect buildings having adequate foundations, if unimpaired by the subway work. There are ten buildings of thirteen to twenty stories in height; twenty buildings ten to twelve stories high, and forty-five that have less than seven stories each, but all with foundations below the subway subgrade.

Assistant Division Engineer John H. Madden, in a report which is printed in the Survey (the official bulletin of the P. S. Commission), says the construction will probably be conducted from three working shafts, situated (1) at the southwest corner of Beekman street, (2) the northwest corner of Maiden lane, (3) and the northwest corner of Pearl street and Hanover square. A building is being razed to provide a site for the first shaft, and for the latter two the work will be prosecuted from overhead structures, which offer the minimum of obstruction to street conditions. The trucking will be done mostly outside of normal business hours.

Following the usual practice, says Engineer Madden, the pavement will first be removed in sections, the street decked over, and the excavating begun underneath. After ground water has been encountered an effort will probably be made to drain off the water through the face of the bank and lead it by gravity to a sump, or cistern, which will be sealed to prevent the inflow of surrounding material and from which the water will be pumped in the usual manner. The work offers a combination requiring careful prosecution, attention to detail, the exercise of ingenuity, but presents no features that have not already been successfully performed.

The lowest bid for doing the work was submitted by Smith, Hausser & MacIsaac at a total price of $2,254,670, based on the preliminary estimate of quantities. The cost per lineal foot of subway is estimated at $850. On the basis of this bid price the underpinning of the buildings along the section averages $160 per front foot, or $229 per lineal foot of subway, which represents about 27 per cent. of the total cost of the contract. The cost of underpinning a four-story building will be about $100 per lineal foot, and for a twenty-story building the cost will be $465 a lineal foot.

FACTORY BUILDING CODE PROMULGATED

Goes Into Effect November 15—Plans Must Be Filed With Labor Commissioner as well as With the Superintendent of Buildings

RULES defining fireproof and fire-resisting material, and prescribing certain specifications relating to construction and tests, were promulgated by the Industrial Board of the New York State Labor Department and will take effect November 15. They will apply to all factory buildings hereafter erected and to the alteration of existing ones, but not to any building in which no manufacturing is carried on.

The Labor Law requires that no factory shall be conducted in any building hereafter erected, more than one story in height, unless the building shall conform to certain requirements. If more than four stories high, it must be built "fireproof," and the roofs of "incombustible material." In existing buildings more than five stories high, interior stairways must be enclosed with "fire-resisting material."

At once, upon the enactment of the law, the Industrial Board was called upon by owners and builders to define what was meant by these terms. The rules under consideration constitute the answer which the board will make to all questions of this kind. A great number of old buildings will have to be altered, at considerable expense in each case, and a great deal of work will be provided for the corps of inspectors from the State Labor Department.

Examination of Plans.

In effect the rules constitute one more building code to which attention will have to be paid. They supersede all provisions inconsistent therewith in any special law or local ordinance. The duty of enforcing them lies with the Commissioner of Labor, who will, through his examiners, pass upon plans for the construction and alteration of buildings and issue certificates of compliance. The local Superitendents of Buildings will also examine the plans, as heretofore, to see that the provisions of the local building ordinances are complied with. At the same time, the Commissioner of Labor has power (see section 79d) to ask the assistance of the local Superintendents of Buildings in examining plans and making inspections of buildings. Architects will accordingly file copies of plans for factory buildings both at the Labor Department and at the Building Bureau, as in fact they have been doing in practice for some months past.

Fireproof Construction.

The law itself sets forth that "fireproof construction" means walls of brick, stone, concrete or terra cotta, and floors of brick, terra cotta or reinforced concrete between steel or reinforced concrete beams and girders. The regulations go a step farther and technically prescribe (a) for segmental brick arches certain curvature and thickness; (b) for terra cotta blocks, the thickness of shells and webs; (c) for reinforced concrete the proportions of the aggregate and the size of the crushed stone, and (d) finally permit any form of construction not less than four inches thick in the case of floors, and not less than three and a half inches thick in the case of roofs, which can pass a standard fire, load and water test.

The law on which the regulations are based require that stairways, elevator and dumbwaiter shafts shall be enclosed on all sides with partitions made of fireproof material. The new rule (501) permits any form of construction (as well as brick, terra cotta or concrete) which can pass a standard fire and water test.

All openings in such enclosures must, under the law, be provided with fire-doors, and the new rule (502) is that the doors may be tin-clad, or of plate iron, composit or any form of construction that can pass a standard fire and water test.

Rule 503 provides that any form of frame and sash that can pass a standard fire and water test will be acceptable to the department, as well as certain forms specifically described in detail. The name of the manufacturer must be placed on every fireproof window.

Stairway Enclosures.

Special authority was given to the Industrial Board to permit as a substitute for the forms of stairway enclosures elsewhere required, the use of partitions heretofore constructed of such fire-resisting materials as have heretofore been approved by the local authorities. Rule 504 therefore permits stairway enclosures to be constructed of wood studs lathed each side with metal lath and plastered with Portland cement mortar.

"Or, wood studs not less than 2 inches by 4 inches properly bridged to support filling and filled in with mineral wool, asbestos, gypsum, or other similar incombustible material, packed to density of at least 25 lbs. per cubic foot, or cinder fill one to ten mix, covered on each side with plaster board, or asbestos board, at least ⅜ inch thick, and plastered with Portland cement mortar, finishing at least 1⅛ inches thick, including board thickness, or covered on each side with metal lath or wire netting nailed directly to the studs, and plastered with Portland cement mortar, finishing at least ¾ inch thick;

"Or, wood studs not less than 2 inches by 4 inches filled in with masonry four inches thick, and plastered on each side with Portland cement mortar finishing at least ¾ inch thick;

"Or, existing wood stud, lath and plaster partitions, stripped of all wood base and other trim and covered with at least No. 24 U. S. standard gauge metal lath on each side, firmly secured to the studs by staples through the existing lath, and plastered on each side with Portland cement mortar, finishing at least ¾ inch thick.

"Any form of partition construction that has successfully passed a standard one-hour fire test."

A Wall of Protection.

Rule 505 says that fire-resisting partitions must be continued through wood floors or shall extend from the upper side of the wood floor in any story to the underside of the wood floor and timbers in the story above to which they shall be safely secured, and shall form, with the fire-resisting doors, floors and ceilings, an unbroken fire-resisting protection, separating the stairway and exit passageways from the non-fire-resisting portions of the building. In unfilled wood stud partitions, the space between the beams shall be fire stopped by approved fire-resisting materials.

In general, fire-resisting partitions must be self-supporting or safely supported on fireproof steel or reinforced concrete beams, girders and columns, or upon wood beams, girders and columns made fire-resisting by approved fire-resisting materials.

In special cases, in existing buildings, where the fire-resisting partitions are not in a vertical line, they may rest upon wood beams and girders, provided, that all the header and trimmer beams supporting said partitions are made fire-resisting by approved fire-resisting materials on that portion where the extreme fibre stress exceeds three-quarters of the safe allowable working stress.

Existing Partitions.

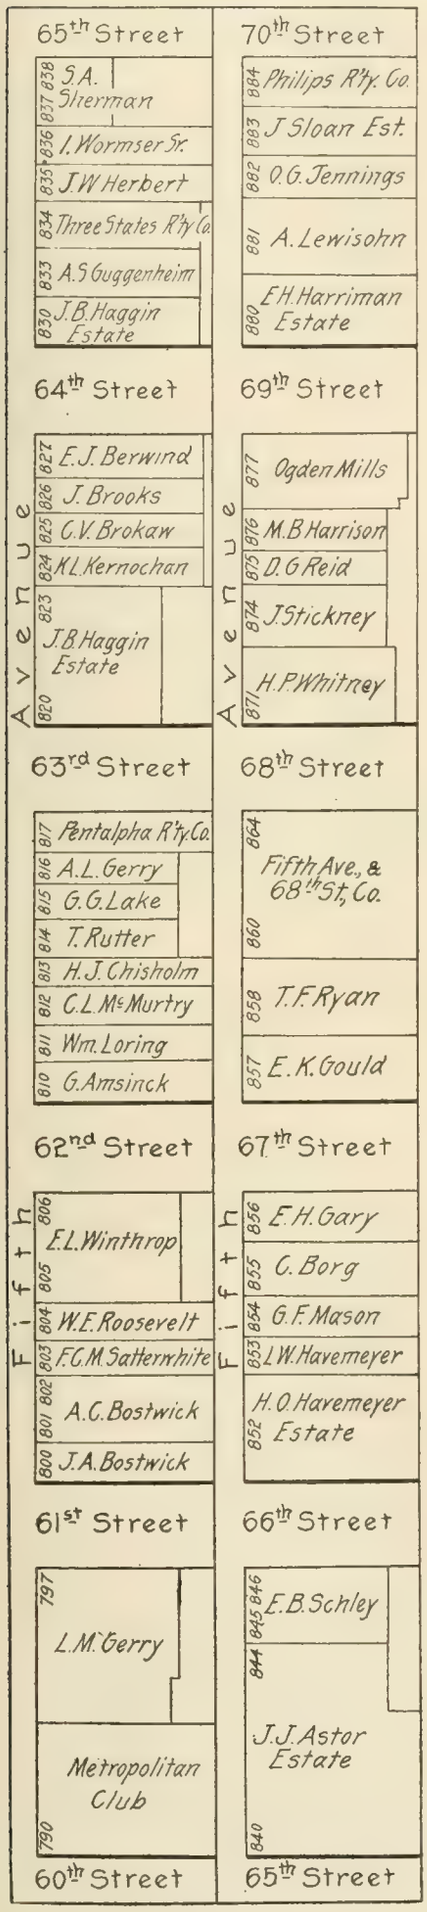
Fire-resisting partitions, now in place, constructed in such manner and of such fire-resisting material, as have heretofore been approved by the local authorities, will be accepted when complying with the following requirements (Rule 506):

"Each side of existing partition covered with ½-inch approved plaster board protected by not less than 26 U. S. standard gauge metal, both nailed to the woodwork.

"Each side of the existing partition covered with 2 thicknesses of ¼-inch approved asbestos board with staggered seams, provided that where in the opinion of the Commissioner of Labor protection is necessary against mechanical injury, such protection shall be provided.

"And in building not over 6 stories in height existing wooden partitions, double thickness, ⅞-inch board covered on both sides with 20 U. S. standard gauge metal, or with 26 U. S. standard gauge metal with lapped seams."



In an appendix are given the methods of conducting tests to determine the fire-resisting qualities of various materials and forms of construction used in building practice. These methods are stated in full detail, as to the construction of the test huts or chambers, the method of conducting the tests and recording the results, in order to fully set forth for immediate use the course of procedure to be followed for the purpose of obtaining the approval of any new material or form of construction.

Opening East 162d Street.

William Waldorf Astor owns all the land to be taken under condemnation proceedings for the opening of East 162d street between Sheridan and Sherman avenues, Bronx, a distance of one block. The preliminary report of the commissioners shows that the total expense involved in the proceedings will be $22,096; that Mr. Astor will receive an award of $19,712, and that he will be assessed the sum of $20,893.05; the remaining cost, or $1,202.95, is to be assessed upon an area comprising a strip 100 feet wide in the adjoining blocks to the east and west. Mr. Astor, through an attorney, asked to have the area of assessment enlarged, but the Board of Estimate decided as above.

ONE MILE OF RESIDENTIAL NEW YORK

Assessments on Fifth Avenue, Between Sixtieth and Eightieth Streets, Total $51,171,000—H. C. Frick's Residence Still Unfinished

WHAT is probably the most valuable mile of real estate, devoted to residential purposes, lies on Fifth avenue, between 60th and 80th streets, known as Millionaires' Row. Only seven parcels remain unimproved, and these are situated north of 71st street. The total assessed valuation of the mile stretch is $51,171,000, while the land value is placed at $37,735,000.

The north corner of 77th street, owned by Senator William A. Clark, bears the highest assessment of any corner, in fact, when the improvement is taken into consideration, the property is assessed for more than any single block front in the zone. The holding carrying with it the next highest assessment is the Henry C. Frick property, occupying the block front between 70th and 71st streets. The land is assessed at $2,650,000 and with the structure totals $3,100,000. The improved valuation is on the unfinished building and probably will be increased next year.

Three Important Blocks.

The block front, between 60th and 61st streets, occupied by the Metropolitan Club and the residence of Mrs. Louise M. Gerry, are assessed at $3,400,000, while the two block fronts, running from 67th to 69th streets, figure at almost the same figures, the former being $3,075,000 and the latter $3,010,000.

There is not a single block front in this mile that the assessment of the land is less than $1,460,000. The residence of Samuel Thorne, at 912 and 914 Fifth avenue, is the only improvement on the block front, between 72d and 73d streets, the south corner being owned by James Stillman, while Howard Gould is the owner of record of the north corner. Other vacant parcels along the "Row" include those owned by E. H. Van Ingen, at 904; Cornelius Vanderbilt, adjoining on the north; J. B. Ford, at 944; E. Hastings, at 952, and E. H. Van Ingen, at 956, south corner of 77th street.

One of the unique features of realty buying in this section is the fact that the owners, almost to a man, acquired their properties for their own occupancy, and not for speculation. It is one of the few sections of the city where rapid transit facilities are not essential, as all the residents have their private vehicles, which transport them to the nearest subway or elevated station.

Assessment List.

The following is a list of the assessments placed upon some of the principal corners: Metropolitant Club, $2,000,000; Mrs. Louise M. Gerry, $1,400,000; E. L. Winthrop, $775,000; J. B. Haggin Estate, $840,000; same estate (64th street), $530,000; S. A. Sherman, $575,000; J. J. Astor Estate, $2,175,000; E. B. Schley, $585,000; H. O. Havemeyer estate, $975,000; E. H. Gary, $660,000; E. K. Gould, $775,000; Fifth Avenue & Sixty-eighth Street Company, $685,000; Thomas F. Ryan, at 858, $1,550,000; Henry P. Whitney, $1,300,000; Ogden Mills, 69th street, $700,000; E. H. Harriman Estate, $875,000; Philips Realty Co., $515,000; H. C. Frick, $3,100,000; N. E. Baylies, $385,000; M. I. Burden, $500,000; James Stillman (vacant), $540,000; Howard Gould (vacant), $660,000; L. A. Palmer, $375,000; A. D. Pell, $650,000; S. B. Chapin, $285,000; C. H. Bertron, $775,000; E. F. Harkness, $540,000; Synagogue, $1,300,000; M. W. Wysong, $400,000; E. H. Van Ingen (vacant), $330,000; W. A. Clark Realty Co., $4,000,000; W. V. Laurence, $320,000; J. B. Duke, $1,585,000; I. D. Fletcher, $465,000; I. V. Brokaw, $560,000, and N. F. Brady, $300,000.

CONFERENCE FAVORS BOROUGH SYSTEM

For Consolidation of Building Departments, As More Certain to be Obtained Through Legislation—A Bill to be Introduced

THE Committee on Consolidation of Building Inspection Departments of the Advistory Council of Real Estate Interests, consisting of Cyrus C. Miller, chairman, and Messrs. Albert G. Milbank, Walter Linder and Henry W. Hodge, believes it advisable for all taxpayers' organizations and real estate associations to unite for the consummation of a plan to consolidate all building inspection departments into unified building departments in each borough, by affiliating themselves immediately with the concerted movement for this purpose, directed by Messrs. Robert E. Simon, George T. Mortimer and Warren Cruikshank, representing the Real Estate Board.

The Committee on Consolidation of Building Inspection Departments of the Advisory Council, has been for some time engaged in the difficult task of formulating a plan whereby it would be possible to unify the various building inspection departments under the separate borough heads, without simultaneously solidifying the opposition to the general principle of consolidation. Such a task is one of extreme delicacy and progress can be made but slowly.

The Easier Way.

Although there were many commendable features to the tentative bill recently drafted for public discussion, nevertheless the testimony at the public hearings devoted to the consideration of the merits of this particular tentative draft conclusively demonstrated, in the opinion of the committee as well as the affiliated bodies, that the principle of consolidation can best be accomplished at the present time by reserving to the separate borough presidents the supervision and control over the building departments which they possess today. They agree with President McAneny who observed, when testifying at this public hearing, that the principle of consolidation would be more feasible through borough departments than one central department.

However, it is the concensus of opinion of the members of the Committee on Consolidation of the Advisory Council that the principle of consolidation through borough departments should be supported by real estate bodies not merely because a fortuitous chain of circumstances assures the co-operation of the borough presidents themselves, in the accomplishment of such a program, nor simply because by a process of elimination it is evident that a consolidation through borough departments is alone certain of a chance of success in the coming Legislature. There are many forceful and practical arguments in behalf of unified borough building inspection departments in contra-distinction to one central building department.

Its Advantages.

For example, property owners, architects, builders, and engineers to obtain an opinion and decision from the central commissioner of buildings, do not have to journey to Manhattan continually, as they were forced to do under the central building department of 1898. Again, building is perhaps the most important local business. In every borough the best class of men should be chosen for Building Superintendents—a thing hardly possible when the borough representative of the department is only a deputy, as proposed in the plan for one central department. Such deputies do not have the authority to grant modifications or make unusual rulings so that the builders and others requiring such action must go to the commissioner as previously stated. These examples are but a few of the instances that can be cited as facts favorable to the installation of building inspection departments in each borough, and which commend this principle of consolidation in the several boroughs to the members of the Advisory Council.

Conference of Real Estate Bodies.

An important meeting of representatives of more than thirty real estate, civic and professional organizations was held at the Real Estate Board of New York on Monday last for the purpose of working out a practical plan to consolidate the various departments and bureaus having jurisdiction over buildings in New York City.

The conference was the second of the kind held recently with the object of focusing the efforts of various organizations that have been working independently along the same lines on securing some practical plan which might as nearly as possible meet the needs of the situation.

At the preceding meeting held on November 19 about twenty organizations were represented. In the interval the special committee on organization (Louis Schrag, chairman) brought into the conference several new associations.

As now constituted the conference includes Robert E. Simon, chairman; Richard O. Chittick, secretary; George W. Olvany, counsel. Executive Committee (for Manhattan): Stewart Brown, United Real Estate Owners' Association; Alfred R. Kirkus, Merchants' Association; Laurence M. D. McGuire, Real Estate Board of New York; Cyrus C. Miller, Advisory Council of Real Estate Interests; Allan Robinson, Allied Real Estate Interests; Robert E. Simon, Real Estate Board of New York; George H. Stege, West Side Taxpayers' Association. (For Brooklyn): W. B. Greenman, Brooklyn Builders' Association; Charles Partridge, Brooklyn Board of Real Estate Brokers. (For the Bronx): P. J. Reville, Builders' Protective Association; Clarence S. Shumway, North Side Board of Trade. (For Queens): Clinton T. Roe, Chamber of Commerce Borough of Queens; John J. Halleran, Flushing Business Men's Association. (For Richmond): Cornelius G. Kolff. (For New York State): Mortimer J. Fox, Real Estate Association of the State of New York.

At the meeting on Monday the various phases of the subject of how best to combine the inspection functions of various State and City Departments was discussed for more than two hours. The discussion turned on the State Factory Investigating Commission's tentative plan, which provides, chiefly, for a central Building Department under the jurisdiction of the Mayor. The various aspects of the subject were gone over, the point over which most discussion took place being whether the practical requirements of the situation and the convenience of the greater number of those who come in contact with the various departments did not demand a plan which would serve borough convenience and preserve borough autonomy, rather than the plan providing for a central Building Department in Manhattan.

The Borough Plan Decided on.

The sense of the meeting is expressed in two resolutions adopted:

"First, that the conference favors the consolidation within each Borough of all departments and bureaus now having jurisdiction over the construction, alteration, structural changes in and maintenance of and occupancy of buildings in New York City.

"Second, that the chairman appoint a committee of at least ten to confer with the Borough Presidents, the State Factory Investigating Commission and the various real estate interests, to get suggestions from them looking to the consolidation of the various departments and report their findings at the next meeting of the Conference Committee; this report, if found desirable, to be in the form of a tentative bill.

The executive committee and counsel met on Friday with representatives of the Mayor, the Borough Presidents and the State Factory Investigating Commission and started the important work assigned to it. The Conference Committee invites the co-operation of all organizations interested, and suggestions for working out the problem of securing effective jurisdiction over buildings, such suggestions to be forwarded to the secretary.

The Representatives.

The Conference Committee includes the following, represented at one or both of the recent meetings, one or two having communicated in writing their approval of the plan for a conference and nearly all of them being represented at the meeting on Monday.

American Institute of Architects, New York Chapter.—Julius Franke.

Advisory Council of Real Estate Interests.—Cyrus C. Miller, Birch Helms.

Allied Real Estate Interests.—Allan Robinson.

Central Mercantile Association.—J. E. Kean.

Citizens' Union.—Albert S. Bard, Mansfield Ferry, W. A. Youker.

Broadway Association.—Nathan J. Ottinger.

Bureau of Municipal Research.—Dr. F. A. Cleveland.

Fifth Avenue Association.—B. M. Falconer.

42nd Street Association.—Walter J. Salomon.

Harlem Property Owners' Association.—Dr. Abraham Korn.

Merchants' Association.—Alfred R. Kirkus.

New York Building Managers' Association.—B. E. Martin, Raymond F. Roberts, A. C. Bang.

Real Estate Board of New York.—Laurence M. D. McGuire, Robert E. Simon, Warren Cruikshank, George T. Mortimer.

Twenty-Third Street Improvement Association.—Louis Schrag, Joseph W. Cushman.

Washington Heights Taxpayers' Assn., Reginald Pelham Bolton; West Side Taxpayers' Assn., Frank Demuth, P. P. Chappel, C. H. Stege; United Civic Assn., Lucien Knapp; United Real Estate Owners' Assn., Stewart Browne; Bedford Park Taxpayers' Assn., Max Just; Builders' Protective Assn., P. J. Reville; North Side Board of Trade, C. S. Shumway, D. A. Trotta; Brooklyn Board of Real Estate Brokers, Charles Partridge, A. J. Murphy; Builders' Assn. of Brooklyn, W. B. Greenman; Citizens' Assn. of Bay Ridge & Ft. Hamilton, Arthur D. Constant, Jacob S. Glaser; Astoria Taxpayers' Assn., Henry Martin; Chamber of Commerce Borough of Queens, Clinton T. Roe; Flushing Business Men's Assn., John J. Halleran; Hillside Real Estate Assn., Thomas J. Dixon; Morris Park Citizens' Assn., A. J. Cisney; Staten Island Civic League, Mark Wiseman; Taxpayers' Alliance of Richmond, Edward P. Doyle; Real Estate Assn. of the State of New York, James J. O'Brien, Mortimer J. Fox.

FACTORY COLONY ON NEWARK MEADOWS

Bush Terminal Idea to Cover Vast Areas of Jersey Waste Land — City to Lease, Not Sell, Sites for Long Terms

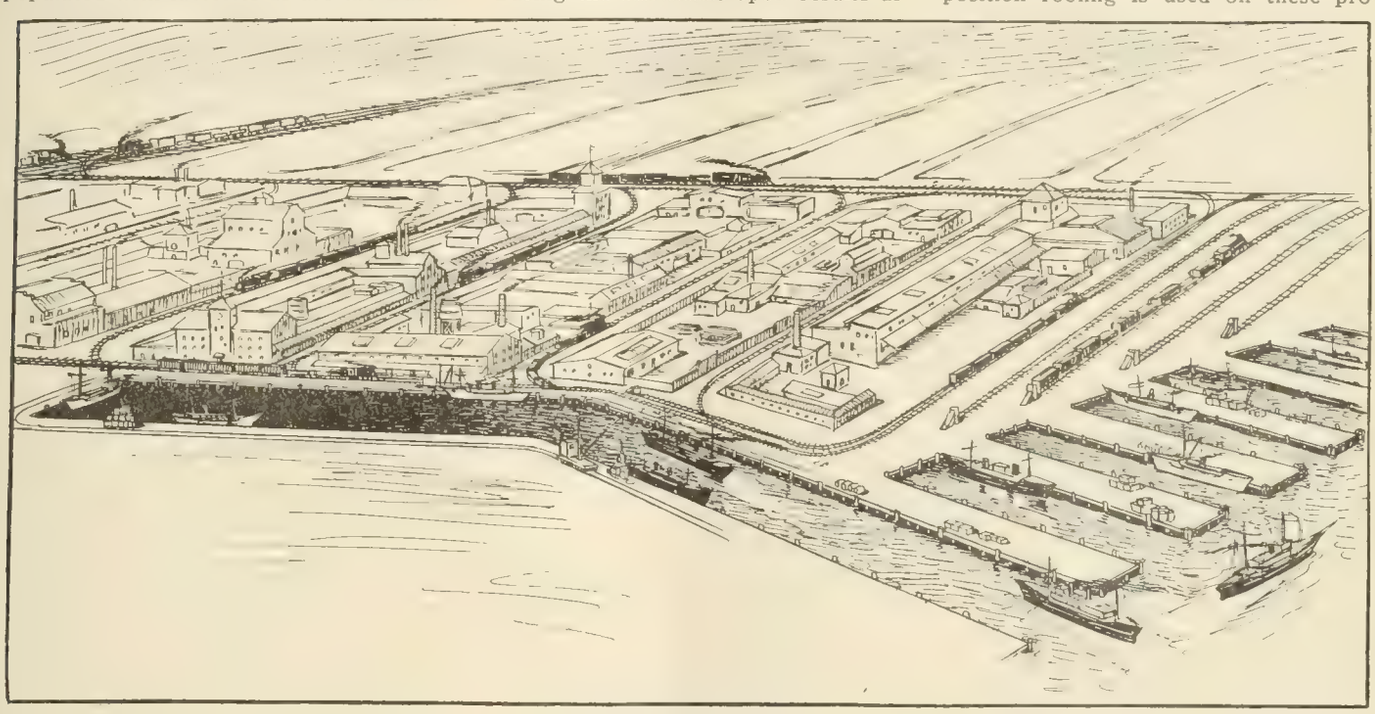
FEW cities have gone into the real estate business with profit. Newark, New Jersey, however, has attempted the problem by the adoption of big business methods. More than 400,000 people live within an area of 23½ square miles, one-quarter of which is waste meadow land. This population finds its sustenance mainly from its 252 distinctive branches of manufacture, making the city rank eleventh among those of the United States in the value of manufactured products. It has many trunk line railroads, all of which traverse practically six miles of city land that, until recently, did not even boast of a shanty.

In the next ten years Newark intends that this meadow land shall be as thickly populated with factories as are the Bush Terminals in Brooklyn. Railroads will bring the products of the country up to tidewater at Newark and freighters will load and pass cut through Staten Island Sound and Perth Amboy. This is not a fiction of the imagination, but a fact. What was once swamp land is now high above water. Factory buildings are beginning to locate there, the Guggenheim smelting establishment being one of many.

Active work was begun early this year on this project and has progressed to such an extent that $336,324.79 has been expended in the purchase of approximately 930 acres of meadow land lying within the development zone, this zone having a frontage of 4,000 feet on Newark Bay and a depth of 13,000 feet. The first contract, awarded in February of this year, was for dredging a channel 200 feet wide at the bottom and 20 feet deep at mean low water from the Government channel in Newark Bay to the shore line, and continuing 2,500 feet into the meadows, a total length of 7,000 feet. The excavated material, placed behind dykes on the meadow, will reclaim 156 acres of this marsh land, and the finished fill will be 6 feet above the present level of the meadows. Work under this contract was begun in March and should be finished within one year from that date. It is now about 60 per cent. completed. The amount of the contract was $153,402.86.

The second contract, awarded in September, was for the construction of a dock 4,500 feet in length, extending along the north edge of the channel, now being excavated, from the westerly or inshore end to the city bulkhead line. The third contract, also awarded last September, called for the bulkheading of an area in Newark Bay directly in front of and connected with the section being reclaimed under the first contract, and also for the dredging of an additional 200 feet bottom width for the entire length of the channel being made under the first contract. The city of Newark has shown faith in this project by expending and contracting for work to the amount of $1,473,258.99 prior to September 1, 1914.

Basing the statement upon results already accomplished, it is safe to assert that before December 31, 1915, the city of Newark will have added to its assets the following items:



A ship channel 7,000 feet long, 400 feet wide at the bottom and 20 feet at mean low water; a dock frontage of 4,500 feet, with the necessary derricks, tracks, etc., for handling freight; a pier 1,200 feet long and 150 feet wide, extending into the bay from the end of the dock or the city bulkhead, also equipped with tracks, etc.; a reclaimed area of at least 300 acres, available for factory sites with a system of improved streets; a railroad distributing and transfer system covering the reclaimed area and having connections with at least three trunk lines; at least one wide avenue of approach from the built-up section of the city; an undeveloped meadow land area of 870 acres, and a construction plant available for the reclamation of the remaining meadow land.

The total cost of these items will be approximately the $2,000,000 which has been authorized by the State Legislature of New Jersey for this work. This development is on the west shore of Newark Bay, with deep water approaches through the Kill von Kull and Arthur Kill, and approximately the same distance from the Narrows in New York Bay as in West 33d street, New York City, at its end on the North River. The work is being prosecuted under the direction of the Board of Street and Water Commissioners of the city of Newark, consisting of Charles F. Kraemer, president; Arlbert H. Biertuempfel, chairman Docks and Meadows Committee; Arthur R. Denman, Patrick H. Ryan, Charles P. Gillen; Morris R. Sherrard, chief engineer, and James C. Hallock, engineer-in-charge.

What this development means to building material interests may be shown by the fact that approximately 40,000 tons of structural steel will be required in the construction of this great factory district, involving a total of 30,000,000 common brick, about 22,000 barrels of Portland cement, 8,000 tons of wire lath and something like four square miles of window glass. If composition roofing is used on these proposed new buildings, the total quantity required will be in excess of four square miles, and about 8,000 piles for wharf purposes.

This is one of the biggest developments in progress in the vicinity of New York. Persons leasing factory buildings and space in lofts on the Newark meadows will eliminate entirely the cost of lighterage and trucking. Raw material will be brought direct to the mill by boat at tidewater and by the Baltimore & Ohio, Lehigh Valley, New Jersey Central, Philadelphia & Reading, Lackawanna, Erie, Susquehanna & Western, Pennsylvania, the New York Central and the New York, New Haven & Hartford via the Hell Gate Bridge and the Pennsylvania Railroad. This development will have direct rail connection with every railroad reaching every part of the country, cars being loaded in the factory and shipped through to destination.

In leasing this land no set rules regarding type of building will be encountered, save that of fire prevention in the use of materials selected. Frame structures will not be permitted. The whole plan has been designed to give ideal locations to all sorts of manufacturing interests from drop-forging plants to makers of gas mantles. The plot has been laid out solely with the idea of making manufacturing conditions ideal for the big shipper.

WHAT $2,000,000 IS DOING IN MAKING NEW JERSEY MEADOW LAND PRODUCTIVE.

If ignorance of the whereabouts of fire-escapes is largely responsible for the loss of life in tenement fires, then it is clearly a duty devolving upon the inspectors of the Tenement House Department, when making their regular rounds, incidentally to instruct the tenants, so that there shall be no fatalities where adequate means of escape have been provided by the owners of the property.

Both Brooklyn and Queens, encouraged by subway extension, are erecting more buildings than in recent years. Brooklyn especially has been ornamenting her streets with a notable variety of architecture, possessing merit and value much beyond the ordinary speculative work, and comprising fine churches, institutions and large apartment houses. Brooklyn is, in a word, going ahead decidedly.

Two more giant buildings have been set into the majestic structural mosaic of which the Grand Central Station is the centerpiece. The Yale Club and the Vanderbilt Concourse Building complete the setting for the west side of the "Gateway" proper. Millions upon millions of dollars in masonry are being piled up at this terminal, in one of the noblest building operations ever carried out by man.

Borough President Mathewson stated in open meeting that the plan of the Bureau of Standards for uniform salaries in city departments was, in his opinion, a scheme to wrap all the functions of the city government around itself. He further intimated his belief that no one but a member of the University Club would, under the standards of the bureau, be able to get a position under the city government. This information adds a new name to the list of social and professional bodies known to have designs on city jobs for their members. The political club as a job-getter is evidently less efficacious than of old.

The Over-Supply of Theaters.

One interesting fact connected with the real estate development of New York is the steady increase in the number of play houses, in spite of the fact that there are too many theaters already in existence. At the present time the theatrical business is exceptionally bad. While there are a small number of most emphatic successes, the proportion of failures is unusually large. Yet it is proposed to construct an additional theater in the Times square district. There can be little doubt that the huge number of the places of amusement is, in itself, an impediment to increasing public patronage. When there were not more than a dozen first-class theaters in the city, a person who was interested in the drama could follow them with discrimination and could pick out the plays, which were worth going to see; but now, that there are between thirty and forty theaters at which expensive entertainments are being offered, the labor of picking out preferred plays is excessive.

A confused impression is made upon the customers of the theaters who do not go as often as they used to go, and whose preferences, when they do go, are more likely to be determined by accidental reasons. The managers of theaters are alleged to spend much larger sums in advertising in order to attract public attention, and any play which does arouse popular interest draws such large crowds that anybody who wishes to see it from a good seat is obliged to pay an additional sum to the ticket agencies. Theaters are built in such large quantities, not because they are immediately profitable, but because managers need them in order to make productions in New York, which may subsequently be remunerative on the road. If they are willing to lose money in New York in the hope of getting it back from other parts of the country, that is their business. Probably theaters will pay very much better as soon as the new subway system gets into operation. Improved means of communication will do more for the business of providing amusements in Manhattan than it will do for any other class of business. It should eventually result in a substantial increase in prices throughout the whole amusement district—that is, from Greeley square to the Circle. Brooklyn and Bronx people, who want to shop, often have plenty of time and use the existing means of communication. But the same people are not so willing to be bored by a long and tedious journey at night. They will swarm to the theater district in much larger numbers as soon as they can obtain rapid transit.

The Uselessness of the Board of Aldermen.

Whatever else it contains the new city charter should certainly do away finally with the Board of Aldermen. Its existence has been continued in the last two charters, in spite of the fact that it was performing its meagre remaining functions very badly, but there is no excuse for keeping it any longer. It continues to be an excuse for supporting a few local politicians at the expense of the city, and the city not only does not get anything for its money, but its interests suffer because the money is spent for the maintenance of such a useless body. The Board of Aldermen tries, indeed, to justify its existence by lopping off a few hundred thousand dollars from the Budget every year; but a taxpayer should not be deceived into believing that he really saves anything by such economies.

The Board of Aldermen has used its power over the Budget chiefly for the purpose of vetoing appropriations whose expenditure promised to effect a really substantial saving in the city's expense account. During the late Mayor Gaynor's administration they prevented the organization of an economy commission whose activity would have saved the city far more than it cost. Recently they have shown a renewed disposition to hamper the Board of Estimate and the Mayor in carrying out a similar plan. Their interference is an embarrassment to the really responsible part of the city government without being of any help to the city.

Another of its major functions is that of passing ordinances regulating the construction of buildings. For years the building interest has been needing and demanding the enactment of a code, adapted to the changes which have taken place in the technique of building construction. The aldermen have proved to be incompetent to meet this need. They have made several attempts to do so, but every attempt has been unsuccessful and has had to be withdrawn, because of the opposition it encountered. The sooner the board is abolished and its work transferred to other departments, the better it will be for the city.

Business Claiming Madison Avenue.

The declared purpose of the church at Madison avenue and 57th street to sell its property may afford an interesting indication of the future development of that part of Madison avenue. At present the streets immediately north of 42d street have assumed a preponderously business character and of late years they have been attracting business of a very superior quality. In all probability there will, in a few years, be little to distinguish this part of Madison avenue from the corresponding blocks on Fifth avenue, north of the Ritz-Carlton Hotel. However, very little impression has been made by business upon the former residential occupation of the avenue, and this remains the case until the neighborhood of 59th street is reached. But the business which has been attracted to this part of Madison avenue is comparatively inferior. It consists of small shops, which cannot afford very high rentals and which consequently have not been increasing very rapidly. They are being built in larger numbers, not because they are very much needed, but because the property is becoming less desirable for residential uses; and its owners seek to attract trade to the vicinity. Under these conditions the occupation of the region between 48th and 56th streets by business is likely to be slow. There are many residences and apartment houses on these blocks, which are too valuable to be "scrapped" until their sites become worth more for business purposes than they are at present. Nevertheless, it seems written that Madison avenue will eventually become exclusively devoted to business from 42d to 62d streets. It may take fifteen years to accomplish this result, but it is coming. The avenue has been made undesirable for residences by the cars and it is undesirable for speculative apartment houses, because it is too narrow. The residences will yield quickly to business as soon as business really wants them. It will be interesting to see whether the 57th street corner can sell for a good quality of business improvement.

Is He Going Too Far?

The recent decision of the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court, First Department, in the case of the Fire Commissioner against the Greenwood Cemetery Co., is novel, rather than important to property owners. The Fire Commissioner brought suit against the cemetery company for reimbursement for the expense incurred by his department in extinguishing a fire in the building numbered 212-214 East 99th street, Borough of Manhattan, which had resulted disastrously because of the alleged failure of the defendant to obey a fire order requiring the installation of automatic sprinklers in the building.

In support of his claim the Commissioner relied upon two sections of the City Charter—section 773, which provides that a person who shall fail to comply with an order of the Fire Commissioner shall be liable for any costs or expenses that may be incurred by such non-compliance, and section 761, which provides that any person, for any fire resulting from his willful or culpable negligence, or criminal intent or design shall be liable for the payment of all costs and expenses of the Fire Department "incurred in and about the use of employees, apparatus and materials in the extinguishment of any fire resulting from such cause."

The cemetery company pleaded, by way of a demurrer, that the complaint of the Fire Commissioner disclosed no cause of action, which raised merely an issue of law, the allegations of the Commissioner as to the facts being conceded for the argument. Upon this issue, the decision of the Appellate Division upholds the law and remands the case for a jury trial to determine the facts. Two courses are open to the defendant corporation—it may take the case to the Court of Appeals for a review of the decision of the Appellate Division, or it may submit issues of fact for determination by jury. To warrant a judgment against the property owner the jury must find that the expense for which reimbursement is claimed was due to the defendant having wilfully disregarded a valid fire order, or that it was occasioned as a result of his wilful or culpable negligence.

The technicalities of legal procedure have obscured somewhat the real issue for laymen, but essentially the case is one wherein the City of New York is trying to bring home to the defendant the full responsibility for the spread of the fire in his premises, somewhat after the manner in which the City of Paris holds an owner responsible for damages if a fire, spreading from his premises, communicates to the premises of his neighbors. Our Fire Commissioner estimates that through the negligence of the defendant the city incurred an expense of $1,500 in extinguishing the flames, which sum he is trying to collect. It is a test case, inasmuch as the courts have never before been asked to pass upon the validity of the two sections of the charter on which the action is based, as the city evidently has never believed that public sentiment would support an attempt to enforce them; or, in other words, that a jury of citizens would do so. Here in America the people have been inclined to take their own view of things, and to hold fast to certain old-fashioned ideas of personal and political liberty, irrespective of what may be done in foreign cities under sterner forms of government. By the final decision in the present case we shall know if New York is to be stricter in enforcing fire-prevention laws than heretofore.

One Way to Employ Labor.

Editor of the RECORD AND GUIDE:

The most practical way of relieving the keen distress among the unemployed is for the committee on unemployment recently appointed by the Mayor to go about the matter in a skilful way and create work and a demand for labor. This is the self-respecting plea of Labor. The average workman with a family to support does not seek charity. How can work be provided?

The situation is so serious that whatever is done should be done quickly and intelligently; and if it is to be on the line of a business venture, the committee should figure on some ultimate benefit that would accrue to the city on capital invested and labor provided.

To this end we appeal to the civic pride of the committee to recommend to the Board of Estimate and Apportionment to pass a resolution to finance and build the extension of the Broadway subway from 242d street, and open up the Riverdale section. If unable, through lack of available funds, then allow private capital, which stands ready, to do so. This would not only give work to worthy men in the building of a much needed public improvement, but 5,000 individuals and estates, who have (by mass meetings and otherwise) been pleading for proper transit facilities and who pay annually $226,000 in taxes, would have the incentive immediately to start building along the route mentioned. Their improvements would employ nearly every kind of labor. The final result from the city's point of view would be a tax budget greatly increased by the necessary improvements made and, strictly speaking, a successful philanthropic and business venture.

In order to enlighten the Committee on Unemployment, would state that the property owners of the Riverdale section have been entitled to this much-needed improvement for years past, to open up what is conceded by all to be the most beautiful part of our greater metropolitan city, which, unfortunately, has been long neglected by the Public Service Commission. Why, then, further delay, when it can be done so opportunely now?

Will rival railroads, political or selfish interests, prevent the unemployed from working now? It is a mystery why the city decided to build a Jerome avenue subway to a graveyard, a White Plains road subway to a cornfield, and stop the Broadway subway at a swamp, overlooking the fact that the fine Riverdale populated section lay just beyond!

RIVERDALE.

Editor of the RECORD AND GUIDE:

The present condition of the laboring classes, about which so much is printed in the daily papers, the "Save-a-Home-Plan," and Municipal Employment Agency, and the other means devised to alleviate the present deplorable condition give rise to a great deal of thought. That the situation at present is bad and promises to be worse, must be admitted, but if we all go in and all give it earnest, determined and intelligent help, it must and will succeed.

I am interested particularly in the Building Industry. I was in a branch of it for years—have built several buildings—meet the contractors and sub-contractors every day, and consequently am familiar with the business. In that line things are as gloomy as in any other. Owners with property and money are afraid to build; speculator builders (and they are a very important factor) cannot get loans and are timid, and altogether the outlook for future buildings is very poor.

Now, how can that be helped? Today any owner who wants to build can find any number of good contractors who will take a contract to erect a building at cost (cost meaning cost of material and labor plus their overhead charges), sacrificing their profit for the benefit they would have in keeping their organization together, but apparently this is not enough. The cost of materials and the cost of labor and the additional cost of insurance under the new Compensation Law have made the cost so great that an owner can see no profit, especially so when the chances of renting are so slim.

Now, if we can show the owner and the speculator builder that by building now he can save enough to pay him a year's rent and can easily afford to carry his building idle a year, I believe a great amount of building would be started and a great amount of work provided for a large number of men who would and will otherwise be idle. This can be done if the labor unions, which control every branch in the construction of a building, will help.

The bricklayers now get $6 a day; the hoisting engineer, $6; carpenters, $5; iron erectors, $5; plasterers, $5.50; steam-heating men, $5.50; plumbers, $5.50, and so on. If these unions (for they are all controlled by unions) will modify their agreements so that for the next year they will work for $4 a day, you can readily see what a great saving in cost it would make, and the owner or builder would quickly figure out, that if he builds now and even has to carry the building idle for six months or a year, he could charge the rent against the construction cost and still be ahead. And why not?

The contractor is ready to sacrifice his profits to keep a-going—the price of steel has been reduced, brick, cement and other materials are low. Every one has cut his prices and sacrificed his profits, and why not labor? It requires no argument to show that $6 a day is better than $4, but five days a week at $4 a day is better than no work and no pay.

Contractors have told me that men are coming to them asking for work and saying, "Never mind the union wages, give us a job." All praise to them; they need work and individually are ready to sacrifice some of their wages, but this won't help. Just as soon as the job is started, the delegate comes around, starts a muss and trouble follows, and now is no time to be seeking trouble. But if the unions announce a reduction to last for only one year, so that a contractor can figure the reduction price without fear of delegates or other disturbances, he will go ahead.

This, of course, will start a row—"Capital crushing Labor"—and all that, and the delegate who draws his $35 a week, in good times as well as bad, will howl, but what about the men? This is what I mean by intelligent help, and I feel that if this is done a great stimulus will be given to the building industry and thousands of men will be earning some pay, enough to keep them, whereas they face a very sad future.

Very few plans for new buildings have been filed in the past six months, and most of these for large buildings have been filed to anticipate the new Building Code and the expected law to limit the height of buildings. If these half dozen large buildings, which the owners feel ought to be built but which they are afraid to go ahead with now, could by this inducement in cost be started next year, three or four millions of work would be provided, and just think how that would help. And then how many more are there that we have not heard of?

There will be thousands of good mechanics in the building trades out of work this winter and next spring and many will need help. Are they willing and brave enough to help themselves now? Our big business men tell us that prosperity is near. Good, the nearer the better, but it takes a full year of prosperity before the building interests feel it. Men do not spend their money for new and enlarged quarters or larger rents until they are sure they have made it, so even if we have good times from now on the building business for next year will be very poor. So let us get together; the supply man and the employers are ready to help and all that is needed is for the employees to do their share to help themselves. The unions are all united and can vote on it and act on it before Christmas, and the quicker the better. Will they help themselves?

Building Code Hearings.

The Building Committee of the Board of Aldermen granted a hearing yesterday on the ordinance setting apart the Suburban Fire Limits. Within these limits it will be allowable to erect only such frame houses as are detached and occupy less than a certain percentage of the lot. In the Record and Guide of September 19 (page 485) the limits are outlined. The ordinance was prepared by the Building Committee and will eventually become part of the Building Code. In its preparation the counsel of representative citizens and real estate interests in the four boroughs affected was sought, and at the hearing little or no opposition developed to the essential principle, which is to prevent the erection of frame buildings in rows. A few speakers asked that the restriction should leave 85 per cent. of the lot free for utilization by the building, instead of 80 per cent.

At the same time a hearing was granted on the pending ordinance for the regulation of elevators.

Subway Contracts Delayed.

Owing to the situation which has resulted from the contention of labor unions against the employment of alien labor by contractors for city work, and the decision of Justice Newburger of the Supreme Court that the alien labor clause is constitutional, the Public Service Commission has decided to defer the opening of bids for section No. 4 of the Broadway-Seventh avenue subway until December 29. This action of the commission is in order to give the bidding contractors an opportunity to revise their bids.

ELEVATED RAILWAY CASE.

Only Nominal Damages for New Station at 38th Street.

The value of the improved elevated railroad facilities, the erection of which is now rapidly progressing through the Boroughs of Manhattan and the Bronx, is shown by the refusal of commissioners appointed by the court to determine the effect of the construction of the new elevated station erected within the past year on Sixth avenue at 38th street to award other than nominal damages to the owners of abutting property.

A test case was made on the question of damages from that station structure to the abutting premises, Nos. 642, 661 and 666 Sixth avenue, one property in each of three blocks immediately adjoining that station. The commissioners find that the railroad benefits rather than injures the abutting properties by furnishing new facilities for rapid transit, and made an award of ony six cents or nominal damages to the property owners. The ticket sales at this station in October, 1914, were 178,825, and by the increase of traffic at this station since it was opened for the public, in January last, of approximately 50 per cent. shows that the public is quick to recognize and use these improved facilities and that property in the neighborhood of these improvements is greatly benefited.

Following is the report of the commission: "The commissioners in the matter of Manhattan Railway Company against Ughetta, et al., met at the premises at 38th street and Sixth avenue, Monday morning, November 30, and had an executive session on December 3, and after carefully going over all the documentary and other proof, and as a result of the investigation made by the commissioners, they have decided to award six cents, or nominal damages, in the case of each of the owners in fee of the premises affected by this proceeding."

For a State Canal Terminal.

At a meeting of the State Canal Board held at Albany December 4, a site on Flushing Bay was approved for the location of a Barge Canal Terminal. On account of opposition from the Astoria Taxpayers' Association to the proposed site on the East River just north of the Queensboro Bridge the approval of this site was laid over one week.

Borough President Maurice E. Connolly led a delegation consisting of William J. Hamilton, treasurer; Walter I. Willis, and Clinton T. Roe, of the Chamber of Commerce of the Borough of Queens; George W. Pople and Ira L. Terry, of the Flushing Business Men's Association, and presented the argument for the committee, stating that inasmuch as the total cost of the Barge Canal and Terminals would amount to $120,000,000 and as the assessed valuation of the Borough of Queens is 5 per cent. of the total assessed valuation of the State, that Queens should receive its proportionate share for the construction of terminals inasmuch as it would pay 5 per cent. of the cost of the canal. President Connolly pointed out the remarkable industrial growth that has taken place in Queens during the last five years, and proved to the satisfaction of the Canal Board, both the necessity and the justice of locating terminals in Queens Borough.

Although President Connolly, the Chamber of Commerce of the Borough of Queens, and more than thirty civic organizations of the Borough of Queens favored the location of a terminal on the East River at the foot of Rogers street, representatives from the Astoria Taxpayers' Association argued in favor of a location at Halletts Cove, and requested that the matter be laid over for a week in order to present a brief on the subject. President Connolly stated that if two terminals were to be located in Long Island City he favored Halletts Cove as the second one, but the site at the foot of Rogers street should be given preference in view of the fact of its being more centrally located to the vast numbers of factories in that section.

The location approved on Flushing Bay is on the west side of Flushing Creek, and on the north side of Jackson avenue, between Harper street and Delavel street, and comprises an area of about 400x400 feet.

Contracts for Elevated Stations.

The Public Service Commission has approved the award by the New York Municipal Railway Corporation to the P. J. Carlin Construction Company, the lowest bidder, of a contract for the construction of six stations on the Liberty avenue elevated railroad extension. The contract price is $232,000, and the Carlin bid was made in open competition at the solicitation of the company. There were eight other bidders.

The Public Service Commission will hold a public hearing on December 22 at 12.15 p. m. on the form of contract for the station finish construction upon the several elevated lines of the Dual System of rapid transit. The elevated lines in Queens are rapidly approaching completion, and the New Utrecht avenue road in Brooklyn and the roads in the Bronx are all under contract, except the Westchester avenue portion of the Pelham Bay Park line. The commission has prepared one form of contract to cover the station finish work on all such stations, and the public hearing will be held upon contracts for all elevated lines, including those upon which work has begun and those for which no contracts have yet been awarded. The station finish includes the stairways, rails, lamp standards, gates, turn-stiles, plumbing, etc.

Realty Interests Meet.

Last Thursday afternoon the annual meeting of the Allied Real Estate Interests was held in the rooms of the Board of Trade and Transportation, 203 Broadway, and the following directors were elected for the ensuing year: Edmund L. Baylies, Nicholas Biddle, Edward B. Boynton, Joseph L. Buttenwieser, William B. Cardozo, Charles A. Cone, Warren Cruikshank, G. Richard Davis, Joseph P. Day, William C. Demorest, Edward L. Devlin, Robert E. Dowling, Robert Goelet, Randolph Hurry, Walter Lindner, Alfred E. Marling, Lewis H. Pounds, Allan Robinson, Noah C. Rogers, B. Aymar Sands, William Shields, Robert E. Simon and Walter Stabler. The directors have not met, as yet, to elect officers.

The Unsightly Elevated.

Brooklyn is not likely to get rid of her unhandsome elevated roads for awhile. President Williams of the B. R. T. told the Committee of One Hundred that to substitute subways for elevated structures in central Brooklyn would be to upset the dual system plans and to insure tremendous expense without adequate return. P. S. Commissioner McCall and William R. Willcox said they knew of no source from which the funds necessary for this work could be obtained.

On the South Shore.

Because of the heavier traffic on the trolley road running through the southern part of Queens and Nassau counties, from the old Brooklyn city line to Hempstead, more frequent headway of cars has been put in operation. The last five years has witnessed a steady accretion of population in the territory that this line serves, especially in Nassau County. Oceanside, Baldwin Harbor and Hempstead are the salient instances of growth and structural improvements.

Rockville Centre and Freeport are on either side of Baldwin Harbor and they are logical retail shopping centers for household necessities for residents of Baldwin Harbor and neighboring communities because of the trolley service.

The entire area from Rosedale to Freeport is a chain of villages whose growth has been spelled by a five-cent fare for a ride between them. It is the old story of easy accessibility causing growth of population with a consequent increment in fee values.

Public meetings are being held in all of these south shore communities urging the federal government to build the proposed channel through the confluent bays of the inner coast line. Its sponsors point out that the heavy seas which have pounded the Long Island coast during the last week emphasize the necessity of an inside course for small merchant vessels.

Street Closing Proceedings.

For the year ending April 1, 1914, the Board of Estimate discontinued and closed two streets in Manhattan, twelve in the Bronx, and three in Queens.

PRIVATE REALTY SALES.

Whether the opening of the Stock Exchange today, permitting dealing under several limitations will be another important move in the direction towards the resumption of normal business conditions was the subject of comment this week. Just what the effect will be upon the real estate market is largely a matter of conjecture, although the optimism of investors and brokers was not reflected in any increased reports of business transacted. Several interesting transactions, however, were consummated this week, one of the more important ones involving the Hotel Continental, at the southeast corner of Broadway and 41st street, which was acquired by a new syndicate of hotel owners. The sellers acquired this property, as plaintiffs in foreclosure proceedings, several weeks ago. Other sales involved a valuable business property on Fifth avenue, and a loft building in the old wholesale silk district in Broome street. An important building operation is said to be pending affecting holdings in West 25th street, dependent upon the sale of an old church property. The important leases concerned a floor and a half in the new Equitable Building, a floor in the Lewisohn Building and the acquisition of a property in Broadway, near Canal street, by a large office equipment company which may indicate another trade center shift.

The total number of sales reported and not recorded in Manhattan this week was 17 as against 16 last week and 31 a year ago.

The number of sales south of 59th street was 5, as compared with 8 last week and 8 a year ago.

The sales north of 59th street aggregated 12, as compared with 8 last week and 23 a year ago.

The total number of conveyances in Manhattan was 102 as against 262 last week, 20 having stated considerations totaling $730,400. Mortgages recorded this week number 69, involving $870,612, as against 95 last week, totaling $5,577,319.

From the Bronx 16 sales at private contract were recorded, as against 8 last week and 15 a year ago.

The amount involved in Manhattan and Bronx auction sales this week was $653,770, compared with $1,323,385 last week, making a total since Jan. 1 of $39,990,312. The figures for the corresponding week last year were $587,909 and the total from Jan. 1, 1913, to Dec. 13, 1913, was $47,878,796.

Hotel Continental Sold.

The Hotel Continental, at the southeast corner of Broadway and 41st street, has been sold by Florence L. Mabee and others of Saratoga Springs, N. Y., who recently acquired it at auction for $750,000, as plaintiffs in a foreclosure action. The new owner is the 1450 Broadway Company, in which H. S. Duncan, present manager of the hotel, James McCullough, D. Howard Thurber, W. B. Franklin and Howard Hendrickson of Albany are interested. In the present sale is included the hotel furnishings. The new owners have renewed the leases of the Cafe Boulevard, I. H. Rosenfeld, and of the Schulte cigar store. The Continental Hotel, originally known as the Vendome, is nine and ten stories high and occupies a plot part fee and part leasehold. The corner proper, 31.2x93.4 ft., is the leasehold portion, while the adjoining fee property has a frontage of 80 ft. in 41st street and 23 ft. on Broadway, giving the entire property a frontage of 54 ft. in Broadway and 173 ft. in 41st street.

Carll Tucker Buys Residence.

Carll Tucker, son-in-law of the late Anthony N. Brady, bought through Joseph P. Day and William B. May & Company, from Eugene Meyer, Jr., the five-story dwelling, on plot 100.5x42.6, at the southeast corner of Park avenue and 71st street. The property was formerly owned by Senator Elihu Root, who acquired the site in May, 1903, and in the same year erected the dwelling from plans by Carrere & Hastings. Shortly after his appointment to the United States Senatorship, Mr. Root rented the dwelling to the late Paul Morton, while he was president of the Equitable Life Assurance Society and it was occupied by him until he removed to 844 Fifth avenue in 1909. Two years later, Mr. Root sold the property to Mr. Meyer.

Plot Under Negotiation.

Negotiations are pending for the sale of the old church property, at 235 to 243 West 25th street, owned by Hugo Distlehurst, to a firm of builders, which contemplates tthe erection of an eight-story store and loft building on the site. L. Sheinart is the architect who has prepared the plans. No papers have been signed as yet, though negotiations are well advanced. The building concern has obtained one tenant for the store, basement and two lofts, while two other floors in the structure are leased, provisionally. Only four lofts remain to be rented.

Three-Cornered Exchange.

The Benenson Realty Company bought from John Eggers the five-story building with stores at the southwest corner of Intervale avenue and 166th street, on plot 145x110. In exchange the buyer gave 366 to 368 East 154th street, a five-story new law tenement on plot 50x100. The Intervale avenue corner was later resold for the Benenson Realty Company to a client of Eugene J. Busher, who gave in exchange 311 and 313 East 149th street, through to 308 and 310 East 150th street, three and four-story buildings on plot 150x 180. The brokers in the other trade were Smith & Phelps.

Sale in New Retail District.

A. L. Mordecai & Son have bought from Daniel H. Morgan through the Douglas Robinson-Charles S. Brown Company the five-story building at 557 Fifth avenue on lot 25x100, which has been held at $400,000. The property is just south of 46th street and was acquired by the seller in 1906 from George Necklas, who had bought it earlier in the year from Henry H. Benedict. The block in which it is located has shown comparatively little changes in ownership in the last forty years.

Church Property on Market.

Trustees of the Madison Avenue Reformed Church voted on Wednesday night to place the church property at the northeast corner of Madison avenue and 57th street on the market for sale. The property measures 75 feet on Madison avenue by 150 in 57th street. The action resulted through the diminished activities of the church, owing through deaths or removals of the members of the congregation. The property is said to be worth in the neighborhood of $1,000,000.

$650,000 Apartment House Sold.

Realty & Commercial Company, Solomon H. Schatzkin, president, has sold the "Netherland," a twelve-story apartment house, on plot 100x102.2, at 340-346 West 86th street. ## LEASES.

Office Equipment Firm Lease.

Charles F. Noyes Co. has leased for the 412 Broadway Company the building No. 412 Broadway, through to Cortlandt Alley, to Cobb-Macey-Dohme, Inc., one of the largest furniture, office equipment and filing system firms in the country. The leasing company and its predecessors have been located for sixteen years at 343 Broadway. The Cobb-Macey-Dohme Co. is a recent combination, having taken over the business of George W. Cobb, Jr., Adolph F. Dohme with the Macey Filing System Agency, which department is managed by Harry S. Langdon, secretary of the company. In addition to its present quarters at No. 343 Broadway, this company now occupies a large warehouse in Front street, several floors in White street and the ground floor and basement at Nos. 47-49 Liberty street. After February 1st all these departments will be located at No. 412 Broadway.

Times Square Operation Pending.

If an option held by a company in which Lewis C. Van Riper, of Chicago, is said to be interested, is exercised before January 1st, a new Times square theater project will be undertaken, according to current report. The Record and Guide learned from a reliable source that the plan was still in its early stages and as yet involved only an option to lease part of the property, although Thomas W. Lamb, the architect, filed plans this week for Leonard L. Hill and others, owners, for a twenty-story office and theater building. The site is on the west side of Broadway, 93.4 feet north of 48th street, surrounding the northwest corner of 48th street and Broadway, and taking in the 119 feet frontage at 215 to 225 West 48th street, the Broadway frontage being 30.4 feet.

Motor Company in Lease.

The New York Electric Vehicle Association leased from Thomas Morgan and others the entire building at the southwest corner of Central Park West and 62d street. The Central Park West frontage will be used as a sales room for Rauch & Lang, Baker Electric and Detroit Electric cars, and the balance of the building will be occupied as a central electric garage for the storing and care of electric vehicles. Cross & Brown Company and F. & G. Pflomm negotiated the lease.

$1,250,000 Lease in Equitable.

The American Smelting and Refining Company, of 165 Broadway, has leased through the Douglas Robinson, Charles S. Brown Company the entire 34th floor and half of the 35th floor in the new Equitable Building, now nearing completion at 120 Broadway, for ten years at an aggregate rental of about $1,250,000.

McAlpin Hotel Store Lease.

"Rollins," the tailor, for many years in the Hotel Albemarle, has subleased through Edward Margolies, the Broadway store, 27x47, adjoining the corner in the Hotel McAlpin, for five years at an aggregate rental of about $75,000. At this rate, the annual rental is about $12 a square foot.

J. EDGAR LEAYCRAFT & CO. have been appointed agents for 764-766 8th av, 264 West 47th st, 71-73 East 128th st, 16 East 17th st, 635 West 42d st, and 424 7th av.

BRONX COUNTY PROPERTY OWNERS' ASSOCIATION will have a dinner in Ebling's Casino on Thursday evening, the 17th inst., for which the tickets will be $2 each.

J. B. ENGLISH announces that he was the sole broker in the recent sale of the 5-sty loft building 243-245 West 47th st for George Bickelhaupt to Leonard L. Hill, who gave in part payment the 4-sty building 52 West 37th st.

ELECTUS T. BACKUS has moved his office to 2457 Broadway. He has been appointed agent for the "Continental" apartment house at Broadway and 177th st and for 605 West 155th st.

CITY OF NEW YORK has contracted to purchase 10 to 14 Lexington av, three or four properties at the northwest corner of 22d st, on which will be erected a vocation school, as was announced a few months ago.

NEHRING CO. has been appointed agent for the 4 new apartment houses at the northeast corner of St. Nicholas av and 175th st and the northwest corner of Audubon av and 175th st, by the 175th St. Holding Co., David Zipkin, president.

A. J. MADDEN was the broker in the sale for William McVeigh to the Mott Aveneu Realty Co. of a vacant plot 50x125 on the west side of Vyse av, adjoining the property recently bought by them, making a plot 150x144. Buyers will improve with 5-sty apartments.

SMITH & PHELPS negotiated the exchange recorded last week involving the 5-sty flat at 743 East 182d st and the plot 100x90 on the west side of Anthony av, 135.7 ft. north of 174th st. The sellers were the 182d and Garden Sts. Co. and Edward M. Clarke, respectively. The same brokers also negotiated the recently-recorded sale of the 5-sty apartment house, 743 East 182d st, for A. H. Mittleman to the 182d and Garden Sts Co.

JAMES L. WELLS, State Treasurer-elect, has been elected to serve the twenty-second term as president of the Real Estate Auctioneers' Association. Other officers will be D. Phoenix Ingraham, vice-president and secretary; William F. Redmund, treasurer. The executive committee comprises Bryan L. Kennelly, Joseph P. Day, Hugh D. Smyth, Samuel Goldsticker and Lewis Phillips. The Association decided to begin a movement to make its position better known to lawyers, referees and judges of the court regarding public sales of real estate, the idea being to eliminate irresponsible auctioneers.

AUCTION SALES OF WEEK.

Except where otherwise stated, the properties offered were in foreclosure. Adjournments of legal sales to next week are noted under Advertised Legal Sales.

* Indicates that the property described was bid in for the plaintiff's account.

The Auction Market.

In contrast to the results of auction sales held in the Manhattan and Bronx Exchange Sales Rooms, for the last few months a great number of which have not brought the amount of encumbrances, was the sale of two Bronx properties this week to outside buyers for prices that not only exceeded existing liens but even returned a considerable sum to the defendants. The six-story apartment house at 899 Elton avenue was sold to Gustave Weil for $37,500, which was $10,000 above existing claims. Oscar T. Mackey paid $23,800 for the two-story dwelling at 2226 Loring place. Encumbrances on this property aggregated about $10,000.

Among the important offerings next week will be the block front on Fifth avenue, between 105th and 106th streets, one of the properties of the New York Real Estate and Security Company. This property was originally scheduled to be sold at auction on Nov. 17, but the sale was postponed until next Tuesday. The seven and eight-story office building at the southwest corner of Wall and Pearl streets will also be one of the offerings, as a result of an action brought by the Equitable Life Assurance Society to recover $292,307.

Manhattan.

The folowing is the complete list of property sold, withdrawn or adjourned during the week ending Dec. 11, 1914, at the New York Real Estate Salesroom, 14 and 16 Vesey st.

BUILDING MANAGEMENT

SUBDIVISION OF SPACE FOR TENANTS

By WILLIAM MILLER KNIGHT

Conducted by Raymond P. Roberts, Building Manager for The American Real Estate Co.

IS there an owner or manager who has not at one time or another longed for an ideal building? As one who has for a number of years watched the development of the office building and who has had some share in its erection, care and management, I have often tried to picture to myself the ideal building, a structure perfectly adapted to meet the needs of tenants, which lends itself most readily and economically to subdivision, needs no alterations and where remodeling is nominal; a building in which the plumbing and electric light outlets are always just where they are required to be, and in which the elevators are grouped and adjusted so as to meet successfully all traffic conditions; where radiators are never in the way, where the heating arrangements keep everybody satisfied and local renting conditions are the very best. Given such conditions, however, the position of manager of the building would be a sinecure; the veriest tyro could fill it, and some of us would be looking for a new job.

Old Construction Crude.

Looking backward, many of the older forms of construction, methods and ideas seem more or less crude when compared with present day standards. I refer to such features as heavy masonry piers and mullions and the deference shown by designers in subordinating space and utility to architectural effects. The store floor, which now pays taxes or ground rent, was frequently sunk below the street level or boosted three or four feet up in the air, creating either a subterranean chamber, damp and gloomy, or a high basement of doubtful value. Partition walls were seven or eight inches thick (a foot or more measured through the casings), doors were high and unwieldy, and corridors were vast, dim caverns containing dark unexplored recesses. Piers, buttresses and mullions cut off the daylight and deeply recessed windows suggested the embrasures of a fortress. The elevator service was slow, inadequate and insufficient and the hardware and plumbing and lighting fixtures nondescript in character.

Successful office building management is largely a matter of pleasing tenants by smoothness of operation and a readiness to comply with reasonable requests for improvements and alterations, having due regard for safety and reasonable cost. Whenever, therefore, an agreement, including alterations of leased premises, is entered into, the building manager in carrying out his part of the obligation, has to meet the following conditions: (a) Promptness of execution, entailing the best facilities for rapid work; (b) safety; (c) neatness; (d) minimum cost.

Division of Space.

First, perhaps, among the essential things demanded by tenants is a suitable division of office space. Time was when a mediocre stained pine or lath and plaster partition would fill the bill, but the necessity for economizing space, as rentals increased, and the imperativeness of maintaining and extending fireproof conditions led to the introduction of various forms of tile partition covered with plaster.

This question of subdividing offices is a most important one, involving, as it does, relatively large initial expenditures and, if not carefully planned with due regard to future possibilities, becomes an exceedingly extravagant proposition. It is customary in planning new buildings to estimate on a subdivision fund or set aside an amount in excess of the regular construction account and which also includes the cost of a certain amount of partitioning for leases arranged for during the construction period. A new building contract should contain, among other things, unit prices covering additional partitioning, wiring, plumbing, etc., and allowance prices for omissions. In this way the renting man can figure very closely the cost of any deviation from the original plan and estimate very nearly the cost of dividing up space additional to that provided for under the contract. Adherence, where possible, to typical divisions of space is most desirable and departure from these lines means future annoyance and expense. To arbitrarily subdivide a floor of a new building is too speculative a proposition to be entertained by any owner or manager.

IDEAL buildings are few and far between, but Mr. William Miller Knight, who has made the subject of building management a study, points out several instances where the ordinary structure can be improved and shows how mistakes can be avoided at the time the plans are drawn. The accompanying article is an excerpt from a paper read before the Seventh Annual Convention of the National Association of Building Owners, at Duluth, and deals principally with the subdivision of office space, lighting and plumbing.

To Get Maximum Depth.

It is generally conceded that a building planned to give a maximum office depth of not over twenty-six feet is a good rentable proposition, because there is no dark space and an inner and outer office or a typical "T" division can be arranged at a minimum expense and with due regard to economy of tenant's space. For spaces leased to large organizations a private corridor effect, for ready communication between the various departments, is often required. For this class of tenants it is desirable to use corridor end space on the lower floors where the inner offices are apt to be dark and are therefore regarded as more or less wasteful space.

Very generally the arrangement of office partitioning is a compromise between the manager and the tenant, although I believe there are but few, relatively, space seekers who really know their own needs. Perhaps not more than ten per cent. of prospective tenants have any adequate idea about laying out a working plan. It is right here that a careful renting man can save both client and customer money and earn, if not the gratitude at least the respect and admiration of his tenants by his suggestions and methods of handling the deal. All these things a renting man, who has studied his business and who studies his tenants, may do with advantage to all parties concerned.

In existing buildings as a rule no alterations should be made on a one year's lease, other than possibly the removal of a partition, the installation of a light, the furnishing of a movable vault or cabinet and some necessary plumbing. In such offices, renting for from $25.00 to $40.00, not more than half of one month's rent should be expended for decoration and the cost should be charged to repairs or upkeep. On leases of two, three and five years it is not unusual to spend for alterations sums varying from two months' to four months' rental.

Placing this question of expenditure on the square foot comparative basis the average cost of alterations in two of the older office buildings was, for a period of three years, eight and sixty-seven hundredths cents, and in a new building five and ninety-six hundredths cents per square foot of rentable area per annum.

Materials for Partitions.

Consult carefully the regulations of your local building department and of the fire underwriters, as to the nature of material and forms of partitioning which are acceptable under the rules of the various codes.

As to the material best suited for fireproof partitioning, there is in my mind only one material which most nearly meets office building requirements, and that is a tile constructed largely of gypsum with or without longitudinal reinforcement. I do not advocate this tiling for column coverings, corridor, stair and similar enclosing walls, generally referred to as permanent partitions, although I believe it may, with safety, be used for such purposes.

Gypsum tile numbers among its advantages the following valuable features in addition to its excellent fire-resisting qualities: (1) its lightness as compared with other materials; (2) ease of handling including rapid setting up; (3) quick drying; (4) absence of saltpetre or similar salts, which spoil decorations; (5) becomes, when plastered, a unit which in the future can be moved around intact within certain limits and in which door and other openings can be cut with ease without fracturing the plaster and with little or no "muss;" (6) when torn down it can be removed in large blocks which means less handling of rubbish, etc. The reasonable mobility of plaster tile partitioning I regard as a most valuable feature, as I have, during the past seventeen years, successfully moved thousands of square feet of it in units ranging from twenty square feet up to two hundred square feet and for distances varying from a few inches to fifty or sixty feet, at a cost of not exceeding the price of tearing them down.

Setting Up the Tile.

In setting up tile of this description the use of patent cement plaster in place of lime mortar is to be recommended. It is handy to cart around, sets quickly and is durable when set. Minimum quantity can be used, the same material being employed both for setting and plastering. The bottom row of tile should be well and evenly bedded on the concrete or tile floor and the cement slushed well into the openings, if any, between the adjacent wooden floor and the supporting medium below. This is done to prevent unequal settlement and to close openings which would cause draughts, thus encouraging creeping fires under the floors.

The use of studding partition, even when covered with plaster-board, is to be avoided unless specifically countenanced by city and insurance authorities. This form of partition, however, is valuable for use in older semi-fireproof buildings, being lighter than tile, reasonably efficient as a fire retardent and, moreover, it can be removed without serious injury to its structure.

Inner Office Partitions.

The question of inner office partitions should be studied very carefully, as a great deal of money and space can be wasted by erecting wrong types of partition. The standard type of office partition, having a tile base and the upper portion of wood framing and glass, holds its own in a majority of places. It is a more elastic arrangement than one, at first sight, would suppose and for initial layouts in the life of a building for long-lease tenants is excellent despite the thickness of its walls, mullions and other members. It is, however, more expensive, less adaptable or elastic, than the wooden sectional partition and occupies more floor space and obstructs more light. For upwards of twelve years I have equipped our sectional partitions with a paneled base of asbestos or transite lumber one-quarter of an inch thick which not only decreases the amount of combustible matter but also provides a surface closely resembling plaster which is easily decorated to match adjacent wall surfaces. In large offices occupied by insurance companies, corporations, and the like, where it is desirable to exercise a general supervision of the working force, departments may be economically and satisfactorily separated by railings in lieu of partitions. With this method of subdivision narrower aisles can be used, as the height of the railing as compared with a partition affords more passing room for employees and, in addition, facilitates transaction of business between departments. Moreover, the cost of this is low compared with standard forms of partitioning. More recently, steel sectional partitions have come into use.

Lighting of Offices.

The lighting of offices has been revolutionized and at the same time simplified by the advent of the tungsten lamp and the development of new systems of direct, indirect and semi-direct lighting. In buildings erected within the past two years the lighting problem has been simplified by the introduction of the newer methods of lighting. The side bracket has fallen into disrepute and a constant repair expense reduced accordingly. In its place we favor the flush wall socket or base receptacle, the tenant providing his own desk connection.

The laying out of ceiling lights is still a problem, but the introduction of single large candle-power high efficiency lamps in indirect and semi-indirect fixtures goes a long way towards solving it. With the exception of businesses requiring drafting and close application to detail work, which require drop or desk lights, the illumination afforded by the indirect type of lighting is amply sufficient for all purposes.

Types of Fixtures.

It is a mistake, I believe, to be too conservative or arbitrary in the matter of types of fixtures to be used. It is wise to have a building standard, but an occasional departure from a set rule appeals to a tenant as a great concession and often wins favor and patronage.

If you own or operate one of the older buildings erected twelve or more years ago, the problems of wiring, incident to revision work, will be numerous, difficult and, perhaps, serious ones. Rubber covered and braided conductors cleated to the fireproofing of the older buildings have fallen, somewhat unjustly, into disrepute. The ban of the fire underwriters, the civic inspection bureaus and the national electric code has also been placed, most unjustly and blindly, upon the use of rubber covered and braided lead-sheathed conductors for revision work. This official embargo has forced upon owners and managers of office buildings the alternative propositions of (1) using unsightly molding or a high-priced patented conduit, supposedly thin enough to be concealed under the plastering, or (2) doing serious and often irreparable damage to fireproofing of the buildings by installing iron pipe conduit in an endeavor to comply with the arbitrary requirements of the various codes.

Careless methods, poor material and workmanship are always to be decried; ultra-expensive and useless plans are equally foolish; and unwise restrictions and narrow interpretation of regulations are harmful to business expansion and progressive movement. The wiring of a suite of offices for electric lights, therefore, apart from what is known as "original outlets," is temporary in character and is substantially changed, in many instances, as often as once a year. For the past twelve years in Chicago we have used lead-sheathed wire extensively for revision purposes, finding that it can be (1) buried in plaster of minimum thickness, (2) is easy of manipulation, i. e., can readily be adjusted to any condition on walls or ceilings and requires no special tools, (3) the cost of installation is relatively very much less than the various forms of armored conduit. By careful original planning much of the cutting, patching and rewiring for alteration may be avoided, but as long as no two men have identically the same ideas, the location of lights, plumbing, etc., must, of necessity, be changed from time to time.

Roughly speaking, the number of "watts" to be allotted to a given space having a ceiling height of not over ten feet six inches is one watt to each square foot of space and, providing the walls and ceiling are covered with a reasonably good reflecting medium, this proportion may be reduced to one and one-fifth feet to each watt. In other words, an indirect fixture having one one-hundred watt lamp burning at full voltage affords ample general illumination for each one hundred and twenty square feet of floor space or good illumination for each one hundred square feet of floor space.

Plumbing Problems.

Any building which originally was insufficiently supplied with plumbing stacks is in poor shape to meet future conditions such as excessive subdivision of space or a change in the character of tenancy which requires a corresponding increase in the number of lavatories and changes in their location.

Modern plumbing is both complicated and expensive and ideas in regard to the same, particularly as to types of bowls and other fixtures, are constantly changing. Consequently, it is, I believe, the right policy to select a moderate priced stock fixture which one can afford to "scrap" at the end of a five-year lease, if the new tenant does not care to accept "damaged goods." Long plumbing runs are to be shunned, also the multiplication of lavatories in any one place, having, however, proper regard to the requirements of tenants having an unusually large working force.

With age faults develop in connection with waste and vent pipes, either clogging, rusting out or cracking from strains. The maintenance of vent pipes especially is a serious problem due to their deterioration from the action of damp, chemically active gases which are constantly present in these pipes.

Decorations Count as Repairs.

Decorations are properly repairs or upkeep unless they are of an unusual character. The practice followed most generally, I think, in Chicago, is to paint the walls and ceilings of our public spaces and calcimine the leased spaces, unless, of course, these latter spaces are more or less open to the public, such as a bank. This is done for two or more reasons. First, the atmosphere is laden with dirt, coal, gas and other active properties which rapidly discolor any type of decoration. Second, the settlement and vibration of buildings, many of them on clay foundations, combined with unequal structural strains and shrinkage of materials, inflicts constant damage upon plastered surfaces. The resultant cracks and scaling rendered annual decoration almost imperative in order to present a good appearance.

One word as to varnish; use, within reason, the best that can be procured and when making alterations take advantage of the opportunity to look over and renew the coating of the permanent woodwork, sills, etc.

Recapitulation.

Summing up briefly the foregoing remarks:

(a) Study your tenant and his business, with a view first of all to doing everything within reason to advance his interests.

(b) Combat, with argument founded on experience, any unwise ultra expensive or unreasonable requirements he may demand of you.

(c) Promise nothing but what you know practical men can carry out in a reasonably practical and inexpensive manner.

(d) Organize a shop or repair department and do your own alterations, if possible, but a reliable contractor with not too large a business will save you money. He will also take the risk. In using a contractor, you gain the benefit of his wider experience and have a comparison check on the work of your own employes.

(e) Give as much personal supervision as you can to the work in hand. You will yourself learn much in addition to checking waste of time and material and prevent many false and unnecessary moves.

(f) If you have charge of an established building, endeavor to simplify such building trim as forms part of your office partitioning. Cut out mitered and coped joints and use butt joints and fewer members and moldings. This remark applies equally as well to the method of wiring, plumbing, etc., originally established in the building.

Shop Floors.

Floors of wood block do not disintegrate or pulverize into grit which injure the bearings of machines and where impregnated with creosote oil they have an antiseptic property which adds to their value from a sanitary point of view and further makes them free from the action of acids and oils and impervious to moisture. Floors of this material have the same advantage of noiselessness that wooden paved streets enjoy.

Sharp-edged tools are continually being dropped on factory floors and in this way are often dulled and broken. Such is not the case with wood block flooring, because of its resiliency.

Factories which use the wood block flooring find that it has advantages when it is necessary temporarily to take up a portion of the floor in order to make repairs to underlying portion of the structure.

The ideal method of laying a wood block floor is to provide room for any possible expansion between each block. Specifications often call for a quarter-inch space left between the ends of each block to take care of this expansion element, but in actual practice it is often difficult to enforce its compliance.

One method of attaining proper spacing is the use of end lugs on the blocks which provide an automatic spacing between them, making it impossible for a workman to allow any closer spacing of the blocks than that which is called for in the specifications.—"Factory."

How to Sell Property.

1. Get a reliable broker. The one who is located nearest the property, all things being equal, is presumably the best for your interest.

2. Have him put a sign on the property. Buyers or renters like to first inspect the neighborhood they fancy or desire, and they approach the broker with the sign on the property with confidence.

3. Tell your broker to advertise liberally and back him up in the expense to be deducted from the real estate commission when paid.

4. In a large property extra printing, booklets, plans, etc., at owner's expense are necessary. Tell your agent to go ahead and do it right.

5. Never butt in on the agent's work. —Real Estate Board's Bulletin.

—Taxes are the price we pay for the privilege of being able to mind our own business.

USEFUL APPLIANCES

Novelties, New Applications of Familiar Devices and the Trend of Invention, Designed to Aid the Architect, Builder and Building Manager, Described Without Regard to Advertising Consideration

The Man With a Thousand Eyes.

MODERN invention has annihilated distance, made speed a play toy of man and now it gives him a multitude of eyes, ears and hands. The instrument that does all this is the dictograph, being introduced and put upon the market by the General Accoustic Company, of 220 West 42d street. It is not a fable but a fact. The efficient manager is one who not only can conserve his own time but make the time of others productive. It has been heretofore obviously impossible for a manager to call to his side all the heads of departments.

The dictograph makes this possible. According to K. M. Turner, president and inventor of the dictograph, the system works out in this way: The manager has many departments under his control. In the division of the day's work the time allotted to planning and creating new business is crowded into a small space by time spent in conference with others, dictating, telephoning and giving verbal directions. Another part is consumed by waiting to get attendance, or the attention of other people. By the use of the dictograph the time consumed on waiting on others is cut in half, confering with others requires less time and more than half of the day may be devoted to planning and creating work or business.

The two accompanying illustrations show the old and the new way of handling large organizations. The dictograph is entirely unlike an ordinary telephone. It is possible, however, to use the telephone wiring already in the building. Before the manager sets a box apparatus as shown. The circular space above is the dictograph receiving and sending. The keys connect with the various departments.

Each department head has a substation dictograph on his desk. It differs from the ordinary house telephone in that it has no mouthpiece and is permanently fixed to an out-of-the-way corner of the desk. The man answers the manager's call either by ringing a bell indicating that he has received the call or by simply speaking out his name. The turn of a switch permits the manager to hear his superintendent's reply just as though he should poke his head in the door and speak to him. It is not necessary for the manager to hold the trumpet to his ear. If the manager wants a foreman on any floor he merely speaks into his dictograph in an ordinary tone of voice and the name is spoken distinctly in every department of the building. The superintendent merely steps into the nearest station, lifts off the hook and holds a conversation with the manager, without any action whatever on the part of the executive. This is true where the man is talking in a noisy packing room or machinery hall, because a special apparatus is provided so that the man may shut out all sounds but his own voice. Still another advantage of the dictograph is that it helps to sort out and handle callers, with tact and dispatch. When a visitor hands his card to the girl at the door she simply presses the key, repeats his name and message through her substation instrument. The manager can either have her send the visitor in or talk to him through the dictograph. Or if the manager prefers he can hear what the caller has to say to the girl without the visitor's knowledge.

Wood Insulation for Steam Pipes.

HEAT radiation from steam pipes under pressure is great. The most eminent authorities on fire-prevention say that it constitutes an actual menace, not only in ordinary buildings, but in so-called fireproof structures for rapid changes in temperature within walls frequently causes quick oxication of metal, where dampness finds access. Architects, builders and owners, therefore, have for years been trying to find some method whereby positive insulation can be obtained, and yet reserve the heat radiation within the pipe itself and not diffuse it through a thick coating of heat absorbing material.

There are some who assert that there is no saving in heat when much of it is lost through absorption in insulation and that is why the idea has been worked out of using wood for insulating material, but first lining it with zinc where it comes into direct contact with the pipe itself.

In underground or basement work this type of insulation is said to absolutely prevent condensation no matter how humid the weather conditions may be. It has a special virtue in carrying hot water pipes because none of the heat usually lost through absorption can get beyond the tin or zinc lining so that the hot water first heats the pipe and the pipe, in turn, acts as a sort of inverted thermos bottle and keeps the hot water hot. The wood is white pine, entirely inexpensive, the coarser grained the better. The material is now on the market.

Automatic Thermostatic Mixer.

NO matter how small or how large the water system may be, a temperature equalizer is now possible to obtain, according to the Lawler Fire Prevention Equipment Company, Inc., 51 Chambers street. The accompanying illustration shows a device now on the market that was patented on Oct. 21, 1913.

This device is simple in design and is operated on a scientific basis with great accuracy. It will adjust water temperatures to any predetermined degree of heat and is equally applicable to lavatory, shower or bath tub. It makes scalding impossible, according to the manufacturers, and it is of such simple construction that it cannot get out of order. Furthermore it is said to reduce loss of heat through radiation to a minimum. There is nothing about it that can be tampered with.

Wax for Electrical Fittings.

TWO grades of wax, one having a melting temperature in excess of 100 degrees F. and the other having a melting point in excess of 200 degrees F., either grade furnished in red, brown, black or white, is being manufactured by the Insulating Materials Company, 805 Wesson avenue, Detroit, Mich. This product is manufactured under the requirements of the Underwriters' Laboratories as standard for ceilings, screw heads, nuts and other live metal parts of electrical fittings, wherever such ceiling is required by the rules of the National Electric Code. In the Underwriters' tests these waxes were subjected to severe examinations as to their electrical, moisture-proof and adherence properties, which points are of the utmost importance to the makers of electrical fittings requiring such wax. The company is prepared also to manufacture waxes specially designed to meet exceptional requirements.

A Good Policy.

HERE is a practical hint for the manager who is keen on meeting competition from other buildings and who wants to keep his tenants and make a good impression upon the strangers who pass in and out of his building by the management of the Hotel McAlpin: In every elevator in the building, freight as well as passenger, appears this sign, either illuminated by electric lights or in plain black letters on a white celluloid back ground:

> The only rule in this hotel is that the patron must be pleased under all circumstances.

Change the word "Hotel" to "Building" and you have the recipe for a successful property if you live up to it.

CURRENT BUILDING OPERATIONS

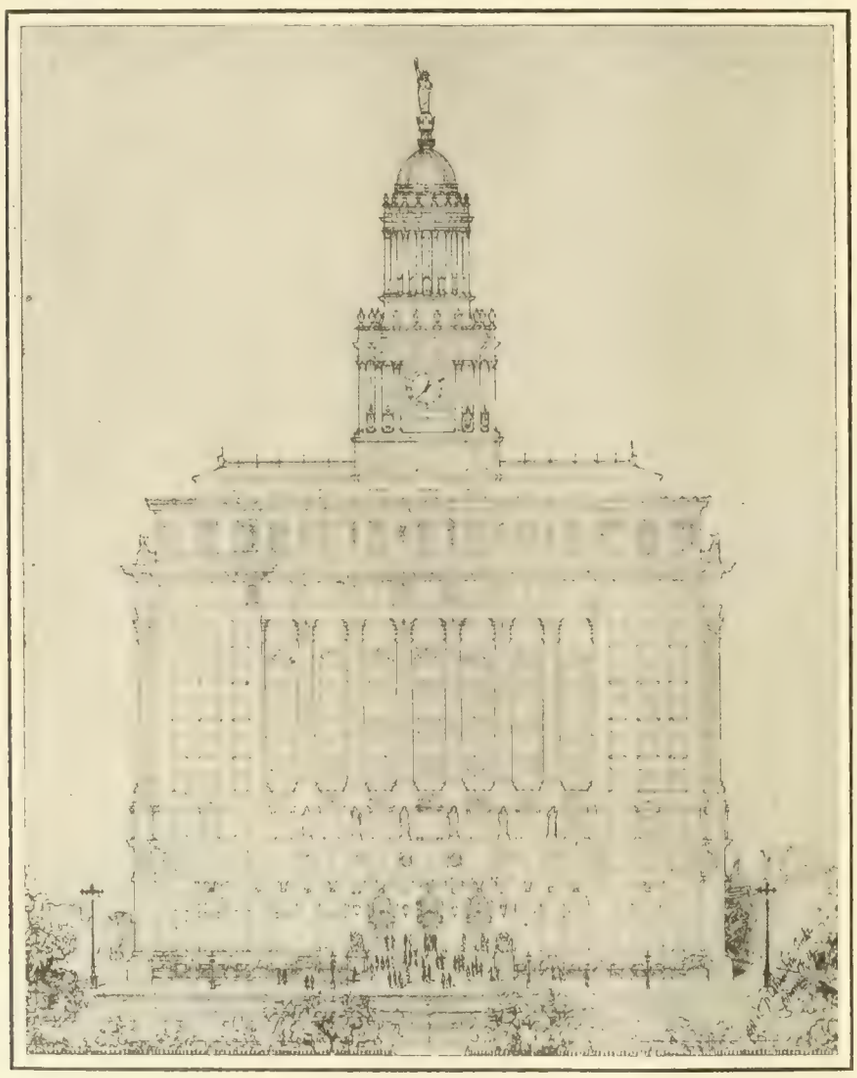
Suggested Designs for New Municipal Building for the Bronx—Unique Structure on Fifth Avenue

WHILE there is no possibility of anything being done at the present time, still, looking toward the future, there is little doubt but that there will have to be erected in the Bronx a new municipal building to care for the housing of the city and county officials. Many sections have been suggested, including Tremont, where the present building is located, at the north end of Crotona Park.

Plans of elaborate design have been prepared by B. H. & C. N. Whinston, architects, for a municipal building calling for the expenditure of about $900,000. The structure, as designed, is classic Roman in type and consists of a main building of stone and granite, about 175x80 feet in size, rising twelve stories above the street, and surmounted by a circular clock tower, 50 feet in diameter at the base and about 140 feet high, making a total height of the structure from the street to the top about 300 feet. The clocks in the tower will be visible for a long distance, on account of the high altitude of this section of the borough.



The building will contain, among other features, several court rooms, relieving the new, but overcrowded, County Court House, a spacious auditorium on the main floor for public assemblages, a restaurant for public employees and officials, space for a branch of the Public Library and an observation balcony from which the surrounding country for many miles around would be visible.

The total available space for the city and county offices would be approximately 160,000 square feet, which should be sufficient for the needs of the municipality and county for many years to come. It has been suggested that in the meanwhile the surplus space could be leased to private concerns, which would help to reduce, somewhat, the cost of maintenance for the building.

B. N. Whinston, speaking of the project, said: "The structure could be built for about $900,000 and a site near the present municipal building obtained for $200,000, making a total expenditure of about $1,100,000. These I consider conservative figures and might be reduced.

"This amount might be raised by a bond issue, the interest being borne by the city and county jointly. The entire interest on the issue, together with the cost of maintenance, would be about $85,000 annually. The city now spends about $112,000 on rentals, so this project would mean a saving of about $25,000 a year.

"The realization of this project would create a civic center for the Bronx which would be a noteworthy one. With the northern end of Crotona Park as the central motive, later public buildings could be grouped so as to produce a combination at once beautiful and stately. It is well worth noting that the borough is practically devoid of any civic centres, and, as we now stand, the Bronx is far behind Brooklyn in the number of our public buildings."

B. H. & C. N. Whinston, Architects.
PROPOSED BRONX MUNICIPAL BUILDING.

Home for Edison Disc.

In the construction of the new home for the Edison Diamond Disc Phonograph at 473 Fifth avenue, the endeavor has been to make it the equal of any structure on Fifth avenue. To attain the desired end there have been employed a wide latitude in architectural form, a choice of unusual and beautiful structural material, and the free use of color. The plans were prepared by Shape & Bready, architects, 220 West 42d street.

Shape & Bready, Archts.
NO. 473 5TH AVENUE.

The general style is Italian, with a facade of structural and ornamental terra cotta to the cornice line, and the character of the ornament, generally, is Byzantine—the latter chosen as lending itself most perfectly to the cream and gold terra cotta of the screen or insert carried from second to fourth-floor levels.

Granite terra cotta was used as the structural material to enhance the entrance and display window; particularly is this true in respect to the texture achieved in the sculptured and ornamented panels of the arch. Sober and dignified this treatment is, and was meant to be in order that relief by the cream and gold of the screen above might be finished out in moulded facia and cornice done in color.

The reception room on the first floor has been treated in American walnut, a somewhat neglected wood. Color is used in the decoration of the ceiling and the tapestries and hangings in this room (as throughout the building) were specially woven for this purpose. The furniture and furniture coverings were designed and made to preserve the effect of general harmony. In this room, which is of unusual ceiling height, the note of simplicity and dignity has been emphasized without oppressive formality.

On the second floor is the record room, a beautiful rest room and many booths for the trying of records. On the third floor are three private demonstration rooms, richly treated.

BRONX OPERATIONS.

Spending More Money Per Capita Than Any Other City.

It is generally conceded that the progress and development of a community are reflected in its building operations and its prosperity increases or diminishes in proportion to its activity in building construction.

The past ten years have marked an era in the building industry throughout the country and a tremendous activity has been prevalent. The Borough of the Bronx has been signally fortunate in this respect and during the priod cited over $300,000,000 have been invested within its territory for the construction of buildings, which proportionately is a better showing than any other city or community in the United States has made.

The following table has been prepared, showing the operations during the past ten years, 1904 to 1914, in the Borough of the Bronx and in the nine largest cities in the United States (exclusive of Boston, whose operations are unobtainable at this time):

| | Pop. July 1, 1914 | Bldg. Opers. 1904 to 1913 inclusive | Opers. per capita |
| Bronx | 641,980 | $305,257,317 | $475 |
| Chicago | 2,393,325 | 769,608,190 | 321 |
| Philadelphia | 1,657,810 | 358,363,145 | 222 |
| St. Louis | 734,667 | 207,953,618 | 283 |
| Cleveland | 639,431 | 142,859,581 | 223 |
| Baltimore | 579,590 | 81,699,790 | 141 |
| Pittsburgh | 564,878 | 140,863,447 | 249 |
| San Francisco | 448,502 | 285,114,950 | 635 |
| Buffalo | 454,112 | 91,730,267 | 202 |
| Cincinnati | 402,175 | 89,134,285 | 221 |

The building operations per capita are given as a basis for comparison. The record of the Borough of the Bronx is a remarkable one, which no other city approaches, excepting San Francisco, which is to be expected, as that city has been practically rebuilt during the past ten years.

There has been a little depression in the building industry during the past year, a condition which has prevailed generally throughout the country, but the depression in The Bronx has been relatively less than in any other section. This condition has been due to the tightening up of the mortgage market, which has temporarily stagnated building, but all indications now point to more liberality by the loaning interests, and a healthy revival of business in the early spring may be confidently expected.

ROBERT J. MOOREHEAD,
Borough of The Bronx.

INSURANCE RATES LOWER.

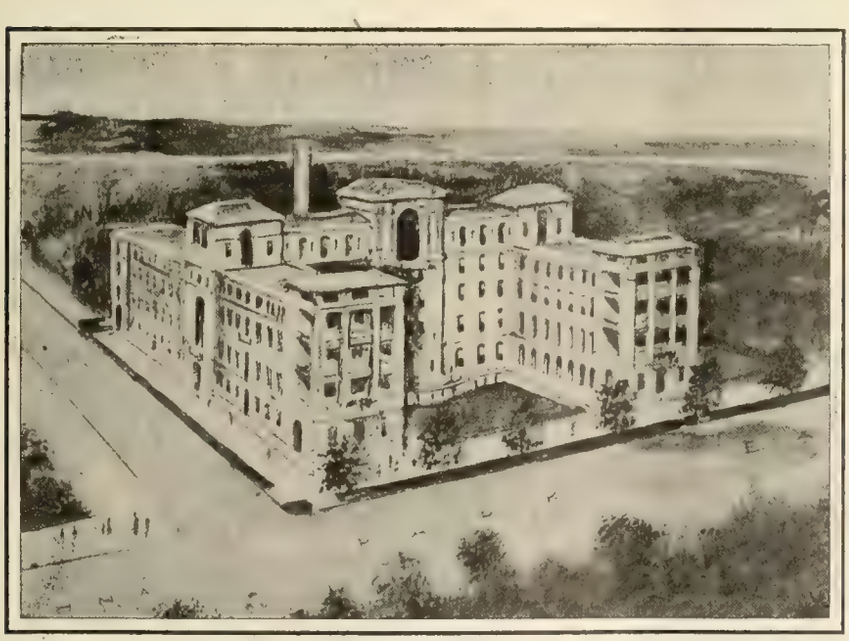
Substantial Reductions for Compensation Insurance by the Rating Committee.

Employers of labor in the State of New York will be interested to know that substantial reductions in rates charged for compensation insurance are being promulgated from time to time by the rating bureau having control of rates charged. The new Workmen's Compensation Law effective in the State of New York is gradually getting on a practical working basis, and the underwriters responsible for the creation of rates to be charged for insurance protection are daily compiling new data which enables them to decide the reductions to be allowed.



A general reduction of all rates has not been effected, but the experience on each Schedule of Operations is being considered, and where the experience justifies, reductions are allowed. In some instances the rates have been reduced more than 40 per cent., and it is the purpose and intention of the Rating Board to continue along the lines of their investigation until all rates are based on actual experience.

When reductions in rates are promulgated, the stock companies are allowing the new rates to apply on all wage expenditure on and after the date on which the new rate was given out. It is important and necessary that the schedules showing the reductions are watched carefully, and that employers have their policies amended to show the new rates so they will receive full credit.

|---|---|
| Steam heating—laying of mains and connections | 4.05 |
| Dredging—excavation by means of suction dredges only including loading and unloading | 4.05 |
| Elevated railroad "iron work"—erecting steel and iron frame structure (no bridge building). Payroll to include drivers and drivers' helpers | 13.77 |
| Fireproof construction—by means of wire lathing and concreting, excluding roofs, floors and horizontal surfaces | 6.16 |
| Fireproofing—plaster block partitions—erection inside of buildings (not fireproof tiles) | 4.05 |
| Fireproofing—tile construction and repair | 6.16 |
| Electrical light and power companies—operation, etc. | 7.29 |
| Mosaic work—floors only within buildings; payroll to include shop work preparatory to the laying of mosaic floors | 1.30 |
| Portable buildings, erection | 2.43 |
| Refrigerators, erection, installation and repair | 2.43 |
| Sewer cleaning | 6.48 |
| Theatre stage rigging, setting up ornamental architectural and theatre iron work and all mechanical effects over stages of theatres, including hanging of signs, setting stairways, iron beams and lintels all included in the operation of stage rigging | 6.48 |
| Wirework, interior erection only | 1.62 |
| Plasterers | 2.27 |
| Metal ceiling work—installation away from shop | 2.27 |
| Metallic lathing | 2.27 |
| Plaster block partitions—erection inside of buildings (not fireproof tile) | 2.27 |
| Plaster board—erection away from shop. | 2.27 |
| Waterproofing cellars and foundations.. | 2.27 |
| Lathers | 2.27 |
| Waterproofing in or on structures by means of felt, paper, burlap or pitch (no roofing or subaqueous work). (Not available for division of payroll) | 2.27 |
| Hod hoists, installation, operation and removal, etc., 50 cts. per day of time per hoist, etc. | |
| A blanket policy may be issued requiring that all hod hoists used by the assured be covered during the time that the policy is in force. | |
| Cesspool cleaners | 3.24 |

NEW BRONX HOSPITAL IN PROSPECT

LEWIS ALLAN ABRAMSON, Architect, 220 Fifth avenue, Manhattan, is preparing plans and specifications for the new hospital buildings to be erected by the Bronx Hospital Association at the southeast corner of Charlotte street and Crotona Parkway, the Bronx. The structure will be four or five stories in height, built of brick and terra cotta, with limestone trimming. It will occupy a plot 50x127 feet and will be semi-fireproof. The hospital when entirely completed will consist of a very complete hospital group, capable of the treatment of many patients in its various departments and will represent a total expenditure of nearly $300,000. At the present time, however, it is proposed only to erect one wing at a cost of $50,000, and the balance of the group will be erected when additional funds are secured.

Edison Works to Be Rebuilt.

Active plans are under way to immediately start the work of rebuilding the plant of Thomas A. Edison Company at West Orange, N. J., which was practically destroyed by the disastrous fire on Thursday last. The buildings which were entirely destroyed were for the most part one-story and two-story frame structures which were an easy prey for the flames, while the buildings which were gutted or only partially destroyed had concrete walls and floors, window frames, sash and doors of wood.

The following buildings were entirely destroyed: Tool room, carpenter shop, puncture press department, record stock room, cabinet wood-working department and cabinet finishing department. It is planned to erect in the place of these buildings modern structures of reinforced concrete which will be fireproof in every respect. The record building, office and works building, approximately 300 and 400 feet long, six stories in height, were partially destroyed.

Chief Engineer Hutchinson, in speaking of the fire, stated that a number of important things had been demonstrated by the catastrophe, the principal one being that concrete buildings are the most practical for a plant of the Edison type.

H. I. Meyer, 375 Fulton street, Brooklyn, the engineer, who designed and superintended the erection of a number of buildings at the plant, will probably have charge of the rehabilitation of the plant, which according to a preliminary estimate will cost $1,250,000.

Rumor of New Theater.

The Hoffman Company, Globe Theater Building, Juniper and Market streets, Philadelphia, Pa., announce that they are preparing plans for a theater of brick, hollow tile and steel construction, one story high, 150x100, to be erected in 42d street, near Fifth avenue, having a seating capacity of 2,200 people, and to cost about $200,000. No details as to exact location are available. Walter J. Salomon, who is the lessee of the majority of the Hoffman holdings in that neighborhood, said to a representative of the Record and Guide yesterday that none of the parcels under his control were involved in the deal.

For a $1,000,000 Court House.

The Board of Supervisors of Westchester County, E. P. Barrett, chairman, 2 Grand street, White Plains, has appointed a special committee to investigate requirements for a new court house to be situated in the south side of Main street, between Court and Grand streets, White Plains, to cost $1,000,000. The construction will probably be of granite. There will be court rooms and offices of the various departments of the county and a county jail. Operations will not be undertaken for some time yet. No architect has yet been selected.

Taxpayer for Jerome Avenue.

H. M. Singhi, Jerome avenue and Fordham road, will soon start the erection of a two-story taxpayer, 68x100 feet, at the southeast corner of Jerome avenue and 183d street, Bronx. Plans have not been prepared and no architect has been selected.

NO ARCHITECTS SELECTED.

In this department is published advance information regarding building projects where architects have not as yet been selected.

MANHATTAN.—Ambrose Hill, care of J. B. English, 1531 Broadway, contemplates altering the loft building at 243-245 West 47th st. No architect selected.

LONG ISLAND CITY.—Dr. J. J. Kindred, Wolcot av, contemplates the erection of an apartment house on the north side of Ditmars av, between Goodrich and Merchant sts. No architect selected.

RED BANK, N. J.—George H. Patterson, Monmouth st, contemplates making fire repairs to the store and office building at 60-62 Broad st. No architect selected.

SCHOHARIE, N. Y.—Fire Co. No. 6, T. D. Vroman, Chief, contemplates the erection of a 2-sty brick or concrete block opera house, 120x70 ft. here. No architect retained. Cost, between $15,000 and $18,000.

NEWARK, N. J.—The Young Men's Catholic Institute and Knights of Columbus, Harry Henegan, on premises, contemplate making alterations and additions to the brick clubhouse, 76 New st, to cost about $10,000. No architect selected.

ONEIDA, N. Y.—Coles Tool & Machine Co., William H. Merrill, manager, Cedar st, contemplates the erection of a 1 and 2-stry hollow tile, steel and stucco garage, 164x64 ft., in Main st, to cost about $15,000. No architect selected.

NEWARK, N. J.—The Consolidated Cork Specialty Co., on premises, contemplates erecting a reinforced concrete manufacturing plant at 43 Barbara st to replace the one recently destroyed by fire. Cost, between $100,000 and $150,000.

OSWEGO, N. Y.—Oswego County Fruit Growers' Association, Ralph M. Pierce, chairman of building committee, Fruit Valley, contemplates the erection of a reinforced concrete cold storage between D. L. & W. R. R. and N. Y. C. R. R. tracks, near East 6th st, to cost about $10,000. No architect selected.

DUNKIRK, N. Y.—The Knights of Columbus, C. M. Harrison, 303 Lyons st, contemplates the erection of a 2-sty frame club house at East 4th st and Park av. No architect selected.

ALBANY, N. Y.—Elini Home for Negro Girls, on premises, Mrs. Mary H. Halicons, contemplates the erection of a brick training school at 333 Orange st, to cost about $25,000. No architect selected.

NEWARK, N. J.—Christ Episcopal Church, Rev. Frank H. Hollock, rector, 81 Congress st, contemplates the erection of a parish house in Congress st. No architect selected.

WESTFIELD, N. Y.—St. James' R. C. Church, care of Rev. Father Monihan, this place, is raising funds for the erection of a church here. No architect selected.

ROCHESTER, N. Y.—The Knights of Pythias, care of Maurice Ellenbogen, 34 Trust Building, Rochester, contemplates the erection of a $45,000 temple. No architect selected. Maurice Ellenbogen, 34 Trust Building, is chairman temporary building committee.

BUFFALO, N. Y.—Frederick Ulman, 606 Mutual Life Building, contemplates the erection of a theatre here. No architect seletced.

DOLGEVILLE, N. Y.—The village of Dolgeville and town of Manheim, Warren Bacon, village clerk, Dolgeville, N. Y., contemplates the erection of a village hall on Helmer av, to cost about $10,000. No architect selected.

PLANS FIGURING.

APARTMENTS, FLATS AND TENEMENTS.

LONG ISLAND CITY.—The East River Building Co., 57 East 111th st, is taking bids on carpenter work for the 4-sty apartment in Barclay st, between McClellan st and Ditmars av, for John Katzman, 790 Riverside Drive, Manhattan. Edward Hahn, Bridge Plaza, architect. Mason Construction Co., 661 Tinton av, Bronx, mason. Cost, about $150,000.

THOMPSON ST.—The Thompson Construction Co., 226 Lafayette st, owner and builder, is taking bids on subs for a 6-sty tenement with store, 50x100 ft., at 101-103 Thompson st, from plans by Louis Sheinart, 194 Bowery. Cost, about $35,000.

CHURCHES.

ELMHURST, L. I.—Frank A. Collins, 24 Locust st, Flushing, architect, is taking bids for alterations to the church corner of Queens Boulevard and Weimer st for the First Presbyterian Church of Newtown, L. I., F. D. Simonson, chairman.

RIDGEFIELD PARK, N. J.—Bids will close about January 1 for the 2-sty school and 1-sty church in Mount Vernon st for St. Francis R. C. Church, Rev. John M. McDonald, 114 Mt. Vernon st, rector. F. J. Schwarz, 113 Ellison st, Paterson, N. J., architect. Cost, about $30,000.

DWELLINGS.

HACKENSACK, N. J.—Bids will close December 15 at the office of L. S. Beardsley, 38 West 32d st, Manhattan, architect, for a 2½-sty hollowe tile and stucco residence at the corner of Union and Berry sts, for Henry Eckerson, president Jersey City Dairy Co., Atlantic st. Cost, about $22,000.

ELIZABETH, N. J.—Robert P. Smith, 498 Summit av, Jersey City, N. J., has completed plans for two 2½-sty frame residences, 22x30 ft., on Westfield av, Elmora section, to cost about $4,000 each. Harry A. Smith, Westfield av, agent in charge, is taking bids on mason and carpenter work.

HARTSDALE, N. Y.—John F. Rowley, architect and owner, is taking bids on general contract for a 1½-sty frame residence at Greenacres, to cost about $6,000.

GREENWICH, CONN.—Slee & Bryson, 154 Montague st, Brooklyn, architects, are taking bids for a 2½-sty terra cotta block residence for W. C. Parsons, 357 Ovington av, Brooklyn. Cost, about $12,000.

FACTORIES AND WAREHOUSES.

BROOKLYN.—The Independent Wet Wash Laundry Co., Nathan Boslefsky, 207 Thatford st, owner, is taking bids on revised plans for a 4-sty laundry and stable, 65x100 ft., in the east side of Ames st, near Riverdale av, from plans by E. M. Adelsohn, 1776 Pitkin av. Cost, about $15,000.

PUBLIC BUILDINGS.

ST. GEORGE, S. I.—The Libman Contracting Co., 126 West 46th st, Manhattan, is figuring the general contract for the Richmond Court House from plans by Carrere & Hastings. Sub bids are desired prior to December 18.

ST. GEORGE, S. I.—Additional figures are being received for the 4-sty court house, 150x150 ft., at DeKalb to Wall sts, Stuyvesant to Jay sts and Hamilton st, for the City of New York, Charles J. McCormack, Borough President. Carrere & Hastings, 225 5th av, Manhattan, architects. Cost, about $350,000.

SCHOOLS AND COLLEGES.

BRONX.—John J. Van Pelt, 381 4th av, architect, is taking bids for a 4-sty brick parochial school at 2506 Marion av for the Church of Our Lady of Mercy, rector, Rev. Father P. N. Breslin, 2496 Marion av. Cost, about $100,000.

BRONX.—The City of New York, Department of Education, Park av and 59th st, is taking bids on general construction and plumbing and drainage to close December 21 at 3 p. m. for the 5-sty P. S. 54 to be erected on the west side of Intervale av, from Chisholm st to Freeman st from plans by C. B. J. Snyder. Cost, about $320,000.

THEATRES.

MANHATTAN.—Fred Lang, on premises, owner, is taking bids for alterations to the two residences 266-268 East 78th st into a moving picture theatre and loft, from plans by Otto Spannhake, 233 East 78th st. Cost, about $6,000.

MANHATTAN.—Thomas W. Lamb, 644 8th av, architect, is taking bids on masonry for alterations to the garage 2182-2186 Broadway for a moving picture theatre and stores for the Coe Estate, 69 Wall st. Continental Motion Picture Co., care of architect, lessee. Cost, about $15,000.

SCRANTON, PA.—The Libman Contracting Co., 126 West 46th st, Manhattan, is figuring the general contract for the Stand Theatre here from plans by Thomas W. Lamb, Manhattan. Sub bids are desired prior to December 7.

CONTEMPLATED CONSTRUCTION.

Manhattan.

FACTORY CONSTRUCTION

Fire protection, maximum lighting capacity, greatest space for machinery, elimination of lost time through repairs—these are some of the more important features considered in factory construction.

Factories are one of the main foundations of a nation's financial prosperity. Progress in factory construction is an indication of progress in all other lines today.

The fact that modern factory construction is practically all of reinforced concrete shows that—

LYONS, N. Y.—The Marshall Barrick Hardware Co., Canal st, Lyons, contemplates remodeling the front of a business building in Canal st. Plans will be prepared privately.

PERSONAL AND TRADE NOTES.

THE ALTMAN department store, in its new and enlarged form, is valued by the Tax Department at $14,450,000.

PRESIDENT SHONTS of the Interborough says the Steinway Tunnel will be ready for a shuttle service not later than April 1.

THE CERESIT WATERPROOFING CO. of Chicago has opened a New York office at 35 Nassau st, under the management of Royal E. Clark.

NEWARK CORNICE & SKYLIGHT WORKS, 9-15 17th av, Newark, N. J., has opened a New York office at 30 Church st, room 508. Telephone Cortlandt 1198.

HENRY W. HODGE, of the firm of Boller, Hodge & Baird, consulting engineers, has been chosen as chairman of the recently formed building code committee of the Advisory Council.

C. T. S. GARWOOD, for a number of years office manager for J. Gamble Rogers, architect, 470 4th av, has resigned to accept a position as superintendent of construction for the U. S. Treasury Department, Washington, D. C.

JULIUS COHEN, for many years connected with Saltzer & Weinser, plumbing supplies, Brooklyn, has opened a plumbing supply business under his own name at 795 Flushing av, Brooklyn.

AMERICAN BRIDGE CO., which is fabricating the steelwork, will also erect the arch of the Hell Gate Bridge and is at present erecting the temporary backstays, which are needed for the erection of the arch by the cantilever method.

N. SERRACINO, architect, 1170 Broadway, N. Y. C., has returned from an extensive trip abroad made for the purpose of making an exhaustive study of the art and architecture of the European cities.

GENERAL ASBESTOS & RUBBER CO., of Charleston, N. C., recently opened a branch store at 58 Warren st, New York City, where they will carry a complete line of packings, brake linings and asbestos textile materials. R. S. Sanders is in charge of the branch office.

BUREAU OF FOREIGN AND DOMESTIC COMMERCE, Washington, D. C., has received copies of programme and regulations governing the forthcoming Australian Parliament House competition, which may be examined at its main office in Washington, or at its branches.

A DELEGATION from the North Side Board of Trade leaves on the "Congressional Limited," from the Pennsylvania Station, at 3.30 on Tuesday, to attend the National Rivers and Harbors Congress, at Washington, to urge the needs of the Bronx in the matter of waterways improvements. They will return on Sunday.

HON. ROBERT ADAMSON will address New York Chapter of the National Fire Protective Association on next Monday evening at the City Club, 55 West 44th st, on "The Fire Alarm System of New York." Chief Bates will give an illustrated lecture on the same subject. Rudolph P. Miller is president of the chapter.

WILLIAM BARCLAY PARSONS, consulting engineer, was recently appointed a member of the Advisory Commission of City Planning, which is to assist the committee on city plan of the Board of Estimate and Apportionment of New York City. Daniel L. Turner, deputy engineer of subway construction, Public Service Commission, has also been appointed to serve on the same committee.

MICHAEL FRIEDSAM now assumes control of the entire management of B. Altman & Co. and also is president of the Altman Foundation. Mr. Friedsam is the largest individual owner of shares of stock and bonds of the corporation and has been the controlling force since the firm became a corporation on February 16, 1909. Mr. Friedsam has also for years been a large operator in real estate.

DEPARTMENT OF ARCHITECTURE OF NEW YORK STATE has opened a branch office in the Woolworth Building, 233 Broadway, N. Y. C., to take care of the local business of the department. Announcement was recently made from this office that Edward Metzger will assume charge of all work in the western part of the State formerly supervised by A. C. Browne. A. H. McPhee will have charge of construction work at the Long Island State Hospital. J. H. Verbach will assume charge of all work, now under construction, at Bedford Hills.

PATRICK MURRAY, oldest employe of the Building Bureau, was retired on a pension from the Bureau of Buildings, Manhattan, by the Board of Estimate at its meeting yesterday. He was born in Kings County, Ireland, in 1839, and came here when a child. At the outbreak of the Civil War he enlisted with the 22d Regt., N. G. N. Y., which was called to repell the Confederate attack on the National Capitol. He has been a member of Veteran Post, G. A. R., No. 436 for thirty years. From 1869 to 1872 he filled a position in the Register's Office under Register Connolly. In 1885 he was appointed a clerk in the Custom House under President Cleveland and continued there until Dec. 10, 1895, when he was certified for the position he now so reluctantly leaves. Extensive preparations have been made by the younger members of the office staff for a pig roast to be held as soon as Mr. Murray receives official notification that his working days are over.

OTTO SINGER, one of the best known builders in Brooklyn, filed a petition in bankruptcy, declaring his liabilities to be $92,503.97 and his assets but $500. In the petition, Mr. Singer names 166 creditors, and of these the largest amount is owed to Colonel Andrew D. Baird & Sons, for material figured at $30,000. Notable among the activities Mr. Singer was interested in was the erection of an entire block of stone buildings at Park pl and Nostrand av, in the St. Mark's section, valued at more than half a million dollars, and on the Park Slope, where he erected forthy-three model American basement houses in 4th st, near Prospect Park West. He has also been active in the Stuyvesant Heights and Bedford sections. In recent years he was very active in the Kings Highway and Sea Beach sections, erecting hundreds of fine homes. It is said that he has built close to 1,500 buildings.

OBITUARY

STEPHEN WARREN, a retired painting and interior decorating contractor, died of old age at the home of his daughter, 326 Eldert st, Brooklyn, Thursday, December 3. He was born in Ireland seventy-eight years ago, and had been a resident of Brooklyn for about five years. He is survived by two sons and two daughters.

KOSEN M. TAKAHASI, Japanese artist, architect and writer, died in the Christian Hospital, St. Louis, Friday, December 4. Mr. Takahasi was thirty-seven years old and had lived in America for fifteen years. His home for the greater part of that time was in New York City, where he became well known as an artist and landscape architect. Many Japanese gardens and fine country houses throughout the United States were designed by him. One of the notable works of Mr. Takahasi was the "Tekko Gate," designed for the World's Fair in St. Louis. This gate is still standing.

TRADE AND TECHNICAL SOCIETY EVENTS.

EIGHTH ANNUAL CONVENTION of the Chicago Cement Show will be held at the Coliseum February 10-17.

TECHNICAL LEAGUE OF AMERICA.—Regular meetings third Friday of each month. Walter L. Smyth, secretary, 74 Cortlandt st, N. Y. C.

NATIONAL BUILDERS' SUPPLY ASSOCIATION.—The annual convention will be held in Chicago, Ill., February 8-9, 1915. Headquarters at Hotel Sherman.

NEW YORK RETAIL HARDWARE ASSOCIATION.—Annual convention at Syracuse, N. Y., February 16-19, 1915. Headquarters will be at the Yates Hotel.

NEW YORK CHAPTER, AMERICAN SOCIETY OF HEATING AND VENTILATING ENGINEERS, regular meeting third Monday of each month, Engineering Societies' Building, 29 West 39th st.

SECOND INTERNATIONAL EXPOSITION OF SAFETY AND SANITATION will be held at the Grand Central Palace, N. Y., December 12 to 19, 1914.

ARCHITECTURAL LEAGUE OF NEW YORK will hold its annual exhibition in the Fine Arts Building, 215 West 57th st, February 7 to 27. The annual dinner of the league will be held Friday evening, February 5.

INTERNATIONAL ASSOCIATION of Master House Painters and Decorators of the United States and Canada will meet in annual convention in Washington, D. C., Feb. 9 to 12, 1915. The headquarters will be at the Hotel Raleigh. A. H. McGhan, Corcoran Building, Washington, D. C., chairman of Convention Committee.

INTERNATIONAL EXPOSITION OF INVENTIONS will open at the Grand Central Palace, New York City, December 12, and continue until December 19. During the week of the exposition a series of lectures have been planned, which will be delivered by competent authorities, on the interests of American inventors and patentees.

THE AMERICAN SOCIETY OF Engineers, Architects and Constructors at its monthly meeting held in the United Engineering Societies Building on Thursday, Dec. 10, passed the following resolution: That in view of the complex nature of modern engineering and architectural construction, which demand practical knowledge far in excess of the limits of one man, that it is desirable in the interests of our cities that their municipal authorities should at times call in the assistance of experts for consultation with their own engineers.

BUILDING TRADES ATHLETIC ASSOCIATION will hold its second annual ball at Palm Garden, Lexington av and 58th st, Friday evening, December 18. The association was organized for the purpose of creating better social relations among the employees of the various concerns represented through competitions in baseball, bowling, etc. The following concerns active in the building trades in this city are represented in the association: Post & McCord, N. Y. & Queens Electric Light & Power Company, Levering & Garrigues, John Simmons Company, General Vehicle Company, W. H. Jackson Co., Turner Construction Co., Cauldwell-Wingate Company, National Bridge Works, Wm. Bradley & Son, Lord Electric Company, John W. Rapp, Thompson-Starrett Co., and C. T. Wills.

TRADE LITERATURE

New Cement Booklet.

The Atlas Portland Cement Company, of New York, Chicago, Philadelphia and Minneapolis, has just published a special limited edition, covering a description of the material, the various mixtures and their uses. The volume is handsomely compiled and contains profuse illustrations of buildings in which the company's output was used.

Special emphasis is placed upon the Atlas-White Portland cement, a white, non-staining product, which has been used successfully for decorative purposes. This particular cement has been on the market since January 1, 1910, and since that time has been used widely. The volume, just off the press, should prove of value to architects, builders and contractors.

CURRENT PRICES WEAK AND LOW, BUT QUOTATIONS ARE GUARDEDLY GIVEN ON EARLY 1915 REQUIREMENTS

Money Situation Expected to be Helped by Christmas Retail Buying

MONEY continues to be the retarding factor in building material consumption, but the tendency is toward an easier condition. At the same time, alteration work is progressing more favorably in Manhattan and the Bronx, where new operations are the most inactive, and inquiries for future requirements like steel are of larger size and show signs of becoming more numerous.

Staples, however, are passing through what promises to be the dullest month of the year, according to the leaders in the various departments of the market. Common brick is in light demand, purchasing being of the hand-to-mouth order and practically all other commodities are not only low in price, but even those quotations are being shaded. Equipment items like pipe can be bought in quantity below trade lists, the reputed price of $17 having been accepted from a large purchaser, according to trade rumor. Portland cement has been quoted according to similar reports, as low as seventy cents mill by minor interests, and leading grades of building lumber are reported to be easing on lists for immediate specification. Some grades, like African mahogany, the source of supply of which has been shut off by hostilities have advanced and probably will lead the pace for higher prices for some time. Circassian walnut, which comes from Turkish provinces, also is dearer.

Builders offer hope to skilled artisans for relief before the winter is over, because they expect that the great volume of money released during December in Christmas buying will throw some of the money that has been hoarded in the past back into circulation. In and adjacent to New York there is something like $7,000,000 to be released, by banks, in payment of Christmas savings funds, practically all of which will be thrown into immediate circulation through payment of taxes, purchasing of gifts or permanently deposited in banks. Such an amount of money placed in circulation, at one time, is prolific of much good in helping to free investors and mortgage interests of the ultra conservatism that seems to have settled upon them since the war began.

Builders say that by the middle of February, at the latest, the real beneficial effects of the new Federal reserve law will begin to be felt in the building department. By that time business interests, which have been trying to obtain financial help in order to enable them to meet the exigencies of the foreign trade already beginning to develop, probably will have met with more encouragement.

Building material manufacturers are anticipating this possibility, at any rate. They are quoting low on immediate delivery, so low as to leave little profit for themselves, but they are extremely careful about tying up on contracts at current prices calling for delivery into the third second quarter. Some are even going so far as to limit operation of present quotations to sixty days, showing that the trade is looking for better things with the turn of the year.

Plan filings in the five boroughs for the week ending noon Friday follow. In the corresponding week last year there were 192 new building plans filed of value estimated at $2,347,445.

| | Week Ending Dec. 4 | | Dec. 11 | |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| | No. | Est. Val. | No. | Est. Val. |
| Manhattan | 5 | $134,000 | 2 | $353,500 |
| Bronx | 8 | 21,600 | 5 | 75,550 |

IRON AND STEEL.

Buying of Former Slackens After Brisk November Market.

IRON has weakened after a promising November business. There seems to be an impression in equipment centers that it will drop a little lower or that prices now being quoted for first quarter deliveries will be extended into the second on immediate orders. So far the companies have held firmly to their determination to quote only on January, February and March business at the low levels now ruling.

Structural steel has a little better outlook. Outside of New York there is more inquiry and some contracts have been taken by such firms as the McClintic-Marshall Company and other large operators. Railroad work seems to be predominating, although this is said to be confined only to such cases where repairs are imperative. There has been no change in quotations on either steel or iron in this market and none of the big companies reported any improvement in local inquiry.

HARDWOODS.

Veneer Interests Hard Pressed for High Grade Woods.

WAR is playing havoc with some of the fine veneer woods. Circassian walnut, which comes from Turkish provinces, can no longer be obtained and the same is particularly true of South African mahogany. Mexican mahogany is also extremely scarce. Some of the hardwoods of central Europe are also shut off—woods that have been used to imitate mahogany of the finer grades. Whole forests have been destroyed because they were in the way of gun fire, or have been accidentally fired by soldiers in camp. The prospects are that some woods, like mahogany and circassian walnut, will be extremely scarce for many years, according to lumber men interviewed this week.

As for our domestic hardwoods, there is a possibility that a handsome export business will be developed by manufacturers before long and naturally they are not inclined to sell too cheaply. That is said to be the real reason why hardwoods have held their price levels, and in some cases even have stiffened during the recnt slump in building construction. One big hardwood firm has sent its representative into England and France to look over the situation with respect to possible trade opportunities after the war ends. It was said by a man in this lumber house this week that if his house could get the contract for supplying American hardwoods in the public buildings that have been damaged during the war, he would be satisfied.

"We are not worrying," he said, "regarding the outcome of the building situation in New York, or anywhere else for that matter. Our eyes are centered upon possible trade fields abroad, and believe me, we are not the only ones that are looking with interest across the pond. Hardwoods are going to be in demand after this war is over. Europe cannot resurrect its destroyed lumber industry at once. Transportation lines must be opened and reforesting must be started because great hardwood producing areas have been devastated in Europe and in Africa."

CRUSHED STONE.

Prices Slightly Lower—Quarries Working Nearly Full.

QUARRIES stand out conspicuously among building materials manufactories as practically the only branch that is working at or nearly full capacity. This activity, however, is not due to building construction, but to subway requirements which are increasing rather than diminishing. Prices in both trap rock and blue stone are lower. See December quotations adjoining.

WHOLESALE COMMODITY PRICES.

Iron and Steel Among Items That Dropped During Last Year.

WHOLESALE price trend in leading articles of building consumption and staple articles of various kinds in 1913-1914 down to the period of the European War had a decided downward tendency. Simultaneously there was a rapid rise in the price of food stuffs, according to a pamphlet just issued by the Department of Commerce through the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce.

The booklet is published under the title of "Wholesale Prices of Leading Articles in United States Markets"—Miscellaneous Series No. 19—and may be obtained from the Superintendent of Documents, Government Printing Office, Washington, D. C., for the nominal sum of five cents. It contains a weekly record of the price fluctuations of the principal basic articles of industry, such as iron and steel, petroleum, cotton, wool and tin, and of leading foodstuffs, including wheat, corn, sugar, coffee, tea, rice, pork and beef.

Cottonseed oil, manila rope, pig iron, steel billets and blooms petroleum, copper, silk, tin, spelter and silver were in each case at a lower price level in the closing week of July last than in the corresponding period a year ago, and this was also true of sugar, coffee and rice. Wheat, corn, cattle, cotton, leather and domestic wool ruled somewhat higher than in the preceding year. Australian wool showed a precipitate decline immediately following the date at which wool was transferred to the free list, the average price drppoing from 82 cents per pound on Dec. 5, 1913, to 61 cents on Dec. 12 of that year. The range of prices of these numerous other articles by weeks from Jan. 1, 1913, to Oct. 31, 1914, is shown in the pamphlet.

LUMBER.

Producers Waiting for Marked Demand Before Cutting Stock Further.

RELIABLE reports from lumber manufacturing districts indicate little movement in soft pine, a decided curtailment in the production of yellow pine and only moderate call for hard woods.

Hemlock is stagnant, cypress has little call, and shingles and lath are practically without a market. Plain oak is moving fairly well and there is no further depression reported, prices being regarded as at a fair buying point. Quartered white oak is hardly to be reported as active. There is some demand for both red and sap sum, on which prices are quoted that are attractive. Advices from Memphis are that there is likely to be a falling off of nearly 50 per cent. in the lumber production of that section this winter, as logs are being moved in slowly.

The red cedar shingle market is still in the dumps and no immediate prospect of recovery is held out. Quotations are the same as quoted a month ago.

According to recent reports the quantity of dry hemlock on hand is uncomfortably large. However, many of the mills have shut down for the season. Many of those that are accustomed to run through the winter will not do so this year. Prices may be quoted at something like $4 or better off the list.

There has been much curtailment of production at the yellow pine mills and this has resulted in many broken stocks, so that buyers are not having the easy picking they have enjoyed at times in the past few months. In fact, there is no continued depression in the market, nor, can it be said, is there much of an advance. The only certain thing is a gain in sentiment and a more hopeful prospect for values than has been displayed for some time.

BRICK.

Raritans Stiffer at $5.75 to $6—Hudsons Steady.

RARITAN river common brick is strong at $5.75 to $6, few companies refusing to load for delivery under that figure. Hudson river brick prices are practically unchanged.

Official transactions for Hudson River brick covering the week ending Thursday, Dec. 10, in the wholesale market, with comparison for the corresponding period last year, and a comparative statement of Hudson brick unloaded from barges for consumption here, follow:

REAL ESTATE RECORD AND BUILDERS GUIDE.

CITY HEALTH DEPARTMENT UNDER FIRE

Two Views Expressed Before the Society of Medical Jurisprudence—Held that Property Interests are Jeopardized by System

Last Monday evening, at the annual meeting of the Society of Medical Jurisprudence, at Hosack Hall, 17 West 43d street, the activities of the Department of Health were dwelt upon at length, Laurence M. D. McGuire, president of the Real Estate Board of New York, taking the viewpoint of the householder; Dr. E. Eliot Harris, president of the American Society of Medical Economics, that of the physician, and Dr. Haven Emerson, Deputy Commissioner of Health of the City of New York, that of the Department of Health.

THE activities of the Department of Health were discussed at the annual meeting of the Society of Medical Jurisprudence, last Monday night, both sides of the question coming up for consideration. Laurence M. D. McGuire, president of the Real Estate Board, took the part of the householder, and said in part:

"Few know and perhaps still fewer realize the tremendous power of the Board of Health, originally organized for the purpose of making and enforcing sanitary regulations. Although from the first it was contemplated that its extraordinary powers were only to be used in times of plague or pestilence, it has become, by legislative enactment and by judicial interpretation, the most powerful department of the city government. It has, in fact, become the personification of the police power of the State, and as this vague and indefinite power has never been clearly established and defined by constitutional limitation, it may accurately be said that the department may, at any time, by majority vote of its members, suspend all constitutional guarantees of individual and property rights.

Legislation Proposed.

"Two years ago two lives were lost by elevator accidents. It was seriously proposed, in consequence, to enact legislation to compel a safety automatic closing device on all elevator doors at a cost of many millions of dollars, although there was no possible way of connecting either accident with any failure on the part of elevator doors as equipped to properly close. In fact, the expenditure of millions has been forced from property owners and rent payers of the city.

"The Board of Health may imprison or may fine individuals and order the destruction of property and yet is subject to no court review and its resolutions, when adopted, have always the force of law. One cannot enjoin the Board of Health, as other departments of city government, and no suit can be brought against it or against its officials. It has the power to remove and imprison any person suspected of having disease deemed by it to be contagious or infectious. It has the power to order buildings vacated, to close streets, avenues, even whole sections of the city. It can isolate New York from other sections of the country and impede commerce to the injury of business and do all by a resolution of its own board, either by the adoption of sanitary regulations or by a declaration of imminent peril.

Power of the Board.

"It is neither entirely a city or State body. One member is Health Officer of the Port of New York, appointed by the Governor; another the Police Commissioner, and the third and executive member the City Commissioner of Health. Therefore, the Board of Health has practically behind it the power of the State, the city, and naturally the police force.

"The constantly increasing budget appropriations will partly illustrate the growing activities. In 1905 the department expended $1,763,873.89; in 1906, $1,889,321.15; in 1907, $2,079,413.40; in 1908, $2,507,212.89; in 1909, $2,584,603.27; in 1910, $3,768,115.41; in 1911, $3,830,243.68; in 1912, $3,076,343.47; in 1913, $3,366,365.39; in 1914, $3,534,240.50, and in 1915 the department requested $3,621,738.58.

"In a period of ten years the expenditures have increased approximately $2,000,000, which increase has added about three points to the tax rate throughout the whole city. Each year there has been a substantial increase in its expenditures and there is expended for administrative purposes alone, in the main office, $144,000 yearly.

Work of Department.

"The department maintains a Bureau of Education, of Statistics, of Public Health, of Infants' Milk Stations, of Infectious Diseases, of Sanitary Inspection and of Food Inspection, a Laboratory, a Bureau of Drugs and a Hospital Service. In addition to the hospitals supervised, it operates a tuberculosis sanitarium at Otisville, N. Y. It is the largest employer of physicians, surgeons and nurses in the city, and I am informed employs more than 1,200 physicians. In the Bureau of Public Health there are 154 medical inspectors. In the Bureau of Infants' Milk Stations there are 23 medical inspectors; Bureau of Infectious Diseases, 74; Bureau of Sanitary Inspection, 11; also 11 dentists, 15 veterinarians, 2 surgeons, 588 nurses, a large number of sanitary and food inspectors, chemists, bacteriologists, bacteriological diagnosticians and a pathologist, many clerks and stenographers.

"There are 3 captains of boats, 7 boatmen, and deckhands, a number of pharmacists, 6 laboratory assistants and a dietitian. All these are in addition to the forces required in the various hospitals.

Justification of Expense.

"The justification for this enormous expense is the claim and popular belief that the department has succeeded entirely by itself in reducing the death rate in the city. Credit unfortunately is not given the advance of modern science, or skill of outside physicians or to better housing facilities, or the greatly improved means of living, all of which in some measure must be responsible for the lengthening of life, though I am informed that there is no betterment as to human life above the age of 40.

"The Bureau of Child Hygiene cost last year $501,000; Infants' Milk Stations, $125,000; laboratory service, $166,914, and the cost for salaries in the drug and chemical departments, $30,876. I am unable to ascertain the cost of drugs supplied but the cost of supplies for laboratory service was $68,000.

"There is no objection to the city's furnishing medical service to those who, physically or mentally, are unable to take care of themselves, or to those who through misfortune are unable financially to pay for such service. The objection to these activities is that they ought to be either entirely charitable or at the disposal of every citizen. If in the latter case, then all surgeons, physicians, dentists and druggists would be in the employ of the city, and all citizens would receive equal benefit. This would savor of the socialist and would mean the confiscation of private property, but what the city is doing will ultimately lead to that and yet do the rankest injustice to those who have to pay, without receiving the benefit."

From the Physician's Standpoint.

Dr. E. Eliot Harris, president of the American Society of Medical Economics, in speaking for the physician, said:

"Public health is a branch of medicine and as a specialty it should have to do largely with that form of health, protection and disease prevention that may be classified as sanitation, vital-statistics, food and drugs, contagious and infectious diseases, and the necessary laboratory service.

"From the viewpoint of the medical profession, public health is a reasonable ideal of the heart and soul of every true physician. Public health service is a part of medical ethics, it is an aim of the County Medical Society, it is one of the objects of the State Medical Society, and it has a large place in the organization of the national body of medical men. Even to this day you are sure to find physicians laboring hard to born a national board of health, with a secretary of public health as its head.

"All these creatures of the physician's altruistic endeavors are the most vital opponents of his economic interests; yet he supports faithfully the cause which produces the largest reduction in his income. The people have saved and the physicians have lost millions of dollars through the work of the boards of health, in lessening the contagious and communicable diseases, known as typhoid, malaria, smallpox, diphtheria, tuberculosis and diarrhoeal diseases.

The Board's Activities.

"The board's activities are not limited to public health. They are actually engaged in individual and personal practice of medicine and surgery. This invasion in the field of medicine is a forerunner, the socialization of the practice of medicine and should be plucked at its birth. The shadow of socialism in medicine is exhibited in the growing activities in the Department of Health in their relation to poverty as a factor in disease and in preventive medicine.

"From the Board of Health the individual is entitled to the medical care, as a right, without regard to his ability to pay, but his medical care should be limited to diseases that are dangerous to the public on account of being contagious and communicable. The Department of Public Charity is organized to give medical, surgical or other care to all who are too poor to pay for it. The physicians and surgeons serve this department without pay, except in the Department of Child Hygiene, where the remuneration ranges from $1,200 to $1,500 a year. To duplicate this work in the Department of Health will encourage a growing abuse of the practice of medicine and a needless increase in the budget appropriation.

"In looking over the reports of the Department of Health, I find that the last book published bears the date for two years, 1911 and 1912, and the reports are worthy of many hours of examination. As the 1913 report is not yet published, by reference to the Eagle Almanac for 1914, a statement of appropriations for the Bureau of Child Hygiene and the Bureau of Infectious Diseases (which was formed in 1913 by the Union of the divisions of contagious and communicable diseases).

Interesting Comparisons.

| Bureau Child Hygiene. | | Bureau Infectious Diseases. | |
|---|---|---|---|
| 1 med. inspector. | $3,000 | | |
| 1 med. inspector. | 2,500 | 1 med. inspector. | $3,000 |
| 161 med. insprs.. | 1,200 to 1,500 | 17 med. insprs. | 1,200 to 1,800 |
| 17 clerks ..... | 300 to 1,500 | 18 clerks..... | 300 to 1,200 |
| 14 nurses..... | 900 to 1,200 | 158 nurses (salaries not given). | |

"The appropriations for the Bureau of Child Hygiene in 1914 was for salaries, $629,771, and for supplies, $25,563, making a total of $655,334. The salaries and supplies for the Bureau of Infectious Diseases for the same period was $623,-793. The appropriation for Child Hygiene exceeds that for contagious and communicable diseases by $31,541. In the same budget sanitary inspection cost $259,065, and food inspection, $202,220, making a total appropriation for 1914 of $1,740,412, of which the Bureau of Infectious Diseases has $625,793; sanitary inspection, $259,065; food inspection, $202,220, and Child Hygiene, $655,334.

"In the infancy of Child Hygiene I find, in 1898, for Greater New York, with a population of 3,272,418 (Board of Health census), an appropriation of $175,000. It was then called school inspection. The total appropriation for the Health Department for that year was $958,496 (Health report 1899). The total amount reported as appropriated for 1915 (taken from the City Record of November 10, 1914) is $3,443,492.22. The population of Greater New York (Health report, 1912) is 5,173,064.

"The Health Department is the personification of the police power of the State. It is three in one. It has legislative power in creating the law of the Sanitary Code — the Department of Health is the executive branch, with sanitary police, and inspectors carrying shields of authority; the Board of Health is the judicial branch and sits in judgment, deciding whether your property or liberty is in violation of its Sanitary Code. Such power is wisely placed in dealing with the pestilence of contagious and communicable diseases, but not for the work of the Department of Child Hygiene, which in 1912 gave 10,344 nose and throat treatments, 4,907 non-contagious eye treatments.

"Our present Commissioner and his able Deputy Commissioner should initiate the ridding of the department of the activities which are foreign to the powers and functions of the Health Department. The Bureau of Child Hygiene should be disbanded and its parts distributed between the Board of Education, where the physical and mental records of the school children should be kept, and the Department of Charities, which cares for the poor, medically, surgically, and in other ways.

A LARGER SERVICE FOR STATE BOARD

Meeting of the Executive Committee of Real Estate Association Develops New Lines of Work and Extends its Membership

WHEN the members of the executive committee of the Real Estate Association of the State of New York met at Utica last Saturday there was an important discussion at the noonday luncheon on the subject of State and county taxation. President Morgenthau outlined the views of the New York City men for a revision of our system of taxation through the revision of the Constitution at the State Constitutional Convention to be held next April, and through legislation which it is hoped to secure at the next session of the Legislature.

It was the opinion of the Utica men that the time was ripe for a revision of our present methods of taxation throughout the State, and they offered their hearty support in any movement looking to this end. They told President Morgenthau that as far as the taxation of real estate was concerned, the present system was archaic and expensive. Thus, there are over 1,000 people assessing property in their county, most of whom are inefficient, and hardly paid enough for a year's work to cover a careful appraisal by a real estate expert for one piece of property.

Major Cookinham expressed the view that all this duplication and inefficiency could be eliminated by having one small board of assessors for each county, these men to be selected under stringent civil service examinations from those properly qualified as real estate experts.

Guests at the luncheon were: Major H. J. Cookinham, of repute as a taxation expert; R. M. Sherman, son of the late vice-president of the United States; E. C. Clark, president of the Utica R. E. Board; Don R. Siddles, secretary of the Utica Chamber of Commerce; Frank E. Dolan, secretary of the Utica R. E. Board, and R. L. Borland, of Norwich.

The members of the executive committee are: M. Morgenthau, Jr., president; E. D. Woodworth, 1st vice-president; W. Jay Russell, 2d vice-president; William D. Bloodgood, 3d vice-president; C. A. Hills, treasurer; William H. Moffitt, Charles F. Warner, William H. Mills, Ten Eyck T. Mosher, Jr.

A More General Membership Invited.

The most important subject at the meeting of the committee was a proposed revision of the constitution of the association to permit of the affiliation of local boards throughout the State with the State association. Communications from several boards, including the Real Estate Board of New York, were presented, expressing the view that the State association, in order to be truly effective, should be representative of the local boards as bodies, in addition to being representative of the professional real estate men in sections of the State where there are no boards, and of a real estate interest outside of the professional real estate men.

The executive committee voted unanimously in favor of changing the constitution of the association in order to meet this situation. It was the sense of the committee that three classes of membership should be established.

Class A, composed of local boards, which desire to have the State association represent them in State matters, which will be represented in the association by duly elected delegates.

Class B, composed of individual professional real estate men in sections where there are no local boards.

Class C, composed of real estate interests throughout the State, not real estate brokers or dealers, but rather owners, savings bank depositors, life insurance policyholders, builders, architects, and others who have important real estate interests.

A committee composed of President Morgenthau, William D. Bloodgood and William H. Mills was appointed to confer with a committee of the Real Estate Board of New York City on the subject of proper affiliation.

A committee composed of Vice-President L. D. Woodworth, of Rochester; Secretary H. L. Reed, and William D. Bloodgood, of which the president was to be an ex-officio member, is to draft Constitutional amendments and arrange for a meeting of the association to pass on these. It is proposed to hold this general meeting of the association at Albany, if possible, in January.

New Committees.

It was found necessary to increase the number of active committees in order to properly care for the increased activity of the association along different lines. The following were formed, with chairmen as indicated:

Building Laws, M. L. Morgenthau, Mortimer Fox, New York City; Manufacture, M. L. Morgenthau, New York City; Inter-City Business, F. R. Wood, New York City; Taxpayers, Jacob Wertheim, New York City; Constitutional Convention, L. D. Woodworth, Rochester; Erie Canal, H. L. Reed, Amsterdam; Rural Affairs, W. J. Russell, Ogdensburgh; Mortgage Loans, W. E. G. Gaillard, New York City; Finance and Audit, C. W. Hill, Utica; Taxation, Charles F. Warner, Buffalo; Ethics, James Frank, Long Island; Local Organization, Daniel Donahue, Rochester; Publicity, William H. Mills, New York City; Membership, William D. Bloodgood, Queens; Regulation of Brokerage, Alwyn Ball, Jr., New York City; Legislation, Fenton M. Parke, Buffalo; Advertising, George A. Coleman, Poughkeepsie; Fraudulent Practices, A. J. Baechle, Utica; Arbitration and Conciliation, C. F. Garfield, Rochester.

The association went on record in favor of the enactment of a law to compel those who offer real estate securities to state plainly their exact nature. Some second mortgage bonds and promissory notes are advertised so cleverly that the impression is created that they are first mortgage real estate bonds. In this campaign the association will no doubt have the co-operation of the Association of Advertising Men, who are endeavoring to stamp out fraudulent advertising.

The formal meeting of the committee was followed by an informal dinner tendered it by the Utica Real Estate Association. President Morgenthau after emphasizing the importance of the work of the Real Estate Association said that he brought good news from the easterly end of the State. He said: "Real estate conditions in New York City are showing a decided improvement. It will only be necessary to convince investors that the heckling of real estate owners is at an end, and that a scientific system of taxation is to be introduced which will properly distribute the burdens of government, and you will see the greatest real estate market we have ever had in this State.

"Whereas, in August, September and October, it was almost impossible to obtain money on first mortgages, we have recently found no difficulty in obtaining ample money. While rates are still high, there is a decided tendency in a downward direction, and savings banks and insurance companies assure us that they will have plenty of money to loan at low rates after the middle of January. Several large investment deals have been closed in New York during the last two weeks, and some high-class residential property has changed hands. All this indicates that business has turned the corner, and is now on the up grade."

Secretary H. L. Reed, of Amsterdam, announced that nearly 100 new members had joined the association during the last month.

NEW ELEVATOR ORDINANCE CRITICISED

It Will Require Interlocking Doors and Speed Safeties, and Entail a Large Aggregate Expenditure—Advisory Council's Recommendations

THREE ordinances which embody amendments to the Building Code are pending in the Board of Aldermen at the present time. No. 1,071 regulates the construction, operation and maintenance of elevators. No. 1,072 regulates the heights of buildings, and the third ordinance established limitations in the nature of fire limits in suburban sections. While the ordinances were in preparation by the Building Committee, with the assistance of ex-Superintendent Miller, the fullest expression of views on the part of the public was sought, and the fullest publicity given, it being the policy of the committee to consult at every stage whatever interests are concerned, so that the legislation will not be unnecessarily opposed and delayed.

Nature of the Elevator Ordinance.

The hearing on the elevator ordinance before the committee, last Friday afternoon, with Alderman Hamilton presiding, developed some new views. The main thought running through the ordinance is safety, and especially safety in operation. There are but thirteen sections, and practically all are directed to this one end.

Section 1 gives open definitions. Section 2 authorizes the Superintendent of Buildings to make rules regulating with a view to safety the construction, maintenance and operation of elevators and amusement devices now existing or hereafter installed. The ordinance does not apply to elevators in factory buildings. Section 4 requires a certificate from the Superintendent of Buildings before any elevator can be operated lawfully. The Superintendent shall within a reasonable time cause the inspection to be made, but in the meantime the elevator may be operated, provided a notice is conspicuously posted to the effect that it has not yet been officially approved. Section 5 provides for keeping a proper record of all passenger elevators in each borough.

Section 6 requires an inspection of every elevator quarterly by the Superintendent of Buildings, but he may accept inspections made by any properly accredited insurance or casualty company, or an inspection service engaged by the owner or lessee. Upon notice from the Superintendent of Buildings any repairs found necessary shall be made without delay by the owner or lessees; after every inspection showing the elevator to be safe a certificate will be issued to the owner to that effect.

Section 7 prohibits passengers riding on freight elevators. Section 8, providing for competent operators, authorizes the Superintendent to discontinue the operation when the operator is found incompetent. Under section 9 the Superintendent of Buildings is to be notified immediately in case of accidents, and he is to make an investigation.

Interlocking Cars and Doors.

All passenger elevators now existing and in use or hereafter installed shall have, under section 10, some device that will automatically prevent the elevator car from being moved in either direction while the shaft door is unlocked. Certain dates are fixed after which it will be unlawful to operate elevators without these safety devices. October 1, 1915, is the date for elevators having a rise of 200 feet or more; January 1, 1916,for elevators with a rise above 90 and less than 200 feet in department stores and office buildings; April 1, for elevators in hotels; July 1, 1916, for elevators in any other business building; October 1, 1916, for elevators in any building coming under the provisions of the Tenement House Law; for April 1, 1917, for any elevator having a rise of less than 90 feet.

ALDERMAN HAMILTON,
Chairman of the Building Committee.

Section 11 provides for the installation of speed safeties on passenger elevators, and section 12 contains the enforcement provisions and the penalties. Section 13 puts the law into effect on January 1, 1915.

Advisory Council's Suggestions.

The members of the Building Code Committee of the Advisory Council, consisting of Henry W. Hodge, Otto M. Eidlitz and Julius Franke, have been studying the new ordinance and have recommended that section 7 be so worded as to allow persons to ride on any elevator fitted to carry passengers, even if mainly used for freight.

In respect to section 10, it is said on the part of the Advisory Council's committee that it has been estimated by the Superintendent of Buildings that there are ten thousand passenger elevators now in use in this city, and that it will cost, in round numbers, two million dollars to fit such present elevators with such device. It is understood that there is no difference in the liability insurance rates on elevators with and without such device, so that the insurance companies apparently do not place much value on such devices, as a means of preventing accidents. These devices appreciably decrease the speed of operation, and must be fitted with an emergency switch allowing the operator to move the car in case of necessity, which is liable to be used at any time. In case of panic, a crowd might easily block the door and thus prevent the operation of the car, except by use of the emergency switch.

Entails Large Expense.

The committee of the Advisory Council therefore, while not opposing the device, calls attention to the large expense which it will impose on owners, and leaves it to the judgment of the Board of Aldermen whether such expense is justified by the possibility of reduction in the number of preventable accidents, which the Superintendent of Buildings estimates to be about forty per year.

The committee is now sitting weekly to consider ordinance 1072, which regulates the height, size, and arrangement of buildings in the City of New York. It is this ordinance upon which the members of the committee desire particularly to learn the opinions and views of real estate owners of the city, as well as engineers, architects, and builders, and all suggestions addressed to the Advisory Council will receive the careful attention of the Building Code committee.

At the public hearing the Superintendent of Buildings in Brooklyn, P. J. Carlin, through one of his division chiefs, took exception to section 6 of the proposed ordinance. Among other things, this provides that he may accept inspections made by any properly accredited insurance or casualty company, or an inspection service retained by the owner or lessee of the building. This the Brooklyn Superintendent of Buildings contended was conferring a function which the charter imposes on the Building Bureau of each borough into the hands of private individuals.

Objections were made to section 10 by President Browne of the United Real Estate Owners, W. E. D. Stokes and others, principally on the ground that it imposed an unnecessary financial burden on owners. Accidents, they insisted, could only be prevented by the employment of careful men.

The Board of Standards and Appeals.

A bill which the State Factory Investigating Commission has in preparation establishes in a new Department of Buildings a board of standards and appeals, to consist of the commissioner of buildings, the Fire Commissioner and three other persons appointed by the Mayor. In making such appointments the Mayor shall consider nominations, if any, made to him by the following organizations: The New York Chapter of American Institute of Architects, the New York Board of Fire Underwriters, the Mechanics' and Traders' Exchange, the Society of Architectural Iron Manufacturers and the Real Estate Owners' and Builders' Association.

The board shall:

1. Have power to make investigations concerning all matters relating to the enforcement and effect of the provisions of this chapter, and the rules and regulations made by the board thereunder;
2. Make, amend and repeal rules and regulations for carrving into effect the provisions of this chapter, and of laws or ordinances in respect of a subject or matter jurisdiction whereof is conferred upon the department of buildings, applying such provisions to specific conditions and prescribing means and methods of practice to effectuate such provisions;
3. Have the powers of the Industrial Board of the Labor Department under the Labor Law to make, amend or repeal rules and regulations in respect of factories, factory buildings and mercantile establishments within the city of New York.
4. Have power to permit variations from law or ordinance, or rules or regulation of the board, as authorized by this chapter;
5. Hear appeals from a decision or order of the commissioner of buildings.

The State Housing Law.

Public sentiment in the second-class cities of the State which have been visited by the New York State Housing Commission has been found to be almost unanimous for home rule. It is expected that the report of the commission will be in accordance with this desire, with the understanding that the cities where housing conditions are really unsanitary will amend their building codes so as to improve these conditions. The operation of the bill has been suspended until February next.

ACCESSIBILITY OF McKINLEY SQUARE

Reached From Twelve Directions, the District Has Become a Retail Shopping Center—New Transit Advocated

TRAFFIC pours into McKinley Square, the junction of Boston Road and 169th street, from twelve directions; from Boston Road, north and south, 169th street east and west, 168th street east and west, Franklin avenue north and south, Tinton avenue north, Clinton avenue south, Union avenue north and Jennings street west. With this situation the development of a retail shopping district was inevitable. But curiously the growth along these lines has progressed only at the Boston Road end of the Square. East McKinley Square is residential, such properties flanking and facing the New York Public Library branch, which is opposite one of the two small triangular public places. The other triangular plot, on Boston Road, is supported by the McKinley Square Liberty Pole and Flag Association, an organization, whose civic work has been limited, although the ten powerful arc lights which make McKinley Square one of the best lighted sections of the borough were obtained largely through its efforts.

Boston Road is 80 feet wide at this point and is the center of the business activity of the section. The Union Railway Co. operates its surface cars along the avenue, connecting with practically all sections of the Bronx by virtue of the transfer system. It meets the 167th street crosstown line at the junction of these two thoroughfares. Among the firms which are established on McKinley Square are James Butler and F. W. Woolworth & Company, while further north Acker, Merrill & Condit maintain a branch establishment. The west side of Boston Road is improved with taxpayers, most of the block on the Square being taken up by the two-story McKinley Building. Stores are located also on the opposite side of the avenue, on the street floors of a row of four-story flats.

The McKinley Square theatre, built about three years ago just north of the McKinley Building, seats 1,800 people and offers moving pictures and vaudeville. It does not, however, depend upon local trade, the surface cars bringing patrons from other sections of the Bronx. Surrounding the Square is the residential territory, which supports the various retail stores on Boston Road. It is built up with one, two and three-family dwellings and walk-up apartment houses which, according to local agents, return from $5 to $7 per room to their owners. There is one elevator apartment house at 168th street and Boston Road, where rents range as high as $9 a room.

Emil Loewenthal, an old established real estate man of the neighborhood, in discussing the renting situation said: "The apartment houses built in the neighborhood of McKinley Square have been successful from the point of view of renting. The owners are realizing an average of about $6.50 a room in structures which have all modern improvements and those builders who have been fortunate enough to obtain building loans have had no difficulty in filling their houses. New apartment houses on Fulton and Franklin avenues, north of 169th street, are completely rented. The six-story house, known as the Cornishire Dwellings, on the east side of Fulton avenue, 206 feet north of 169th street, was sold recently in a cash deal."

VIEWS OF McKINLEY SQUARE.

According to Mr. Loewenthal and others in the district, a great need of McKinley Square is additional transit facilities. Although it is one of the oldest developed sections of the Bronx it will not be benefited by any of the new subway lines now being constructed. Local owners have been working for years to obtain additional transit for the Square, which lies peculiarly situated with reference to Third avenue elevated and the West Farms subway, being from 8 to 10 minutes' walk to the nearest stations on either of the two systems. The tendency for people to settle in the immediate vicinity of transit lines has drawn some of the McKinley Square population to other sections, and these are being supplanted by a new class of residents.

Several years ago the Bronx Central and Transit Improvement Association made a study of the transportation situation and submitted a map and plan which they stated would benefit not only McKinley Square but also other parts of central Bronx, not included in the territory affected by the proposed new subways. Part of that plan provided for an extension of the subway, from 149th street through Union or Prospect avenues, crossing Boston Road, near McKinley Square, thence going under Crotona Park to the Tremont section and north to Pelham Bay Parkway.

The association was successful, however, in obtaining the service of the 167th street crosstown line which was placed in operation about two years ago. It connects the Westchester station of the New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad, with the subway at Broadway and 181st street and traverses practically the entire width of the borough of the Bronx. The establishment of this car line undoubtedly helped McKinley Square. Its benefits were more marked in the district between Third and Jerome avenues where, according to real estate men, lots have risen in value from about $1,500 to twice that amount.

The general quiet of the real estate market, as far as selling is concerned, has been reflected in McKinley Square. A sale of importance was consummated several months ago, when Alfred Furst bought, from the Brown-Weiss Realties, the McKinley Square Casino property, at 773 to 781 East 169th street, east of Boston Road, together with the three abutting buildings, at 1283 to 1287 Union avenue. The buyer has been the tenant of the Casino, under a long term lease.

William F. Olpp, of Kahn & Olpp, local real estate brokers, in discussing this phase of the situation, said: "While there has been little selling on McKinley Square within recent years it cannot be attributed wholly to a dull market, or a lack of interest in the neighborhood, but rather to the attitude of owners who are not particularly anxious to sell. They do not wish to dispose of their property because, all things considered, the store rentals are good and values remain on a stable basis. Stores with a frontage of sixteen feet are bringing as high as $100 a month. I understand that the cigar store in the McKinley Building which measures 15 feet front by 40 feet deep pays the owner $1,200 a year. F. W. Woolworth & Company have leased the property at 1328 Boston Road, corner of Union avenue, for 15 years, at an average rental of about $4,000 a year."

Since time has shown that the growth of the city has been northward, it is not unreasonable to assume that McKinley Square, applicable as it is for business purposes, will some day receive the benefits of this northward development. While from the local standpoint additional transit is desirable it is doubtful whether this will be realized for some time to come because the city would hardly undertake, at this time, another railroad building project.

BRONX CHAMBER OF COMMERCE

New Organization Formed to Care for Civic Welfare of the Borough

THERE has been organized recently in the Bronx a new civic and commercial organization to be known as the Bronx Chamber of Commerce, which will look after and keep in touch with civic matters pertaining to that Borough. In the selection of the name, instead of referring the subject to a committee each member was asked to write on a slip of paper, the one which he thought most appropriate, the result being that the present name was chosen.

The Chamber will hold its meetings on the fourth Saturday of each month, in the Walworth Building, Bergen avenue and 149th street. The following officers were elected for 1915: Albert E. Davis, president; John C. Walworth, 1st vice-president; H. Gerald Chapin, 2d vice-president; Charles Ullman, 3d vice-president; Joseph M. Taylor, secretary; Joseph E. Dobbs, treasurer, and Louis F. Stumpf, counsellor.

By-Laws Adopted.

The spirit, which actuates the promoters of the organization, may be judged from the by-laws adopted, which embrace, in part, the following: Freedom from corporate control. Corporations may not join as such. Each member on an equal footing. No plural voting, nor voting by proxy. Moderate dues—ten dollars a year. Direct nominations from the floor for all officers. No self-perpetuating board of officers. All nominations printed on a single ballot. No separate ticket of different size and color to advertise how members are voting. Chairmen of standing committees elected by the members and authorized to appoint their own associate committeemen, affording no opportunity for favoritism by the president or discrimination against working members as a punishment for their activities outside the organization. The treasurer must make a monthly report in detail to the members. No secrecy in financial management nor high-salaried officials of whose compensation the members are kept in ignorance.

Special Meetings.

Should the president and secretary fail to call a special meeting, when requested to do so, then any nine members making the call shall issue the notice to the members. Any member attempting to use the chamber for political or partisan ends shall be subject to suspension or expulsion. The officers and chairmen of standing committees constitute the Council of the Chamber and all of the acts of the Council are subject to the approval of the Chamber, thus preventing the close-corporation methods of a self-seeking directorate. Every officer is subject to recall for dereliction of duty, misrepresenting the Chamber, at public hearings, or the use of his office to the prejudice or detriment of any other member of the Chamber.

Should the wisdom or representative character of any action taken by the Chamber at any meeting be questioned by any nine members asking for a referendum over their signatures, the question at issue shall be referred back to the full membership for a vote by attached return postal card either for or against the action already taken. If against by at least double that of the original votes, such resolution or action shall be repealed, annulled and made void and so entered on the records and shall be the final action of the Chamber on that question.

At the Tremont Branch of the New York Public Library, Washington avenue and 176th street, on Thursday evening of last week, Albert E. Davis, chairman of the Council of the Bronx Society of Arts and Sciences, delivered an address on "Bronx Art Needs." Mr. Davis drew attention to the needs of the borough for better art opportunities and quoted Longfellow as saying "Art is the gift of God and it must be used unto His glory." He dwelt upon the fact that paintings of merit might possibly be found in private houses, in the Bronx, but, in those places opened to the public, they were as scarce as the unicorns that old Van der Donck said he found roaming the woods of Riverdale in 1665. As to Bronx architecture, Mr. Davis said: "If architecture is frozen music, I shudder to think what horrible discord there will be when some of our buildings burn down."

"These are not the words of pessimist," continued Mr. Davis, "for on last New Year day I resolved to be an optomist. But the best way to arrive at this conclusion, especially relative to fine arts in the Bronx, is for one to begin and measure up to what is reasonably to be expected of a highly civilized community.

"Because the art treasures of Manhattan are opened to us, we have been content to go there to satisfy our artistic yearnings; but a community of 640,000 people should be big enough to stand on its own feet in matters of art as well as matters utilitarian. If the Bronx Society of Arts and Sciences can bring this about, it will have justified its existence. We have tried to make a start in the Lorillard mansion, in Bronx Park, but are handicapped for lack of funds. We are endeavoring to enlist the interest of the Metropolitan Museum of Art to loan us some of the paintings and sculpture for which there is not sufficient room in the Museum in Central Park. We have the assurance of its president, Robert W. de Forrest, that the matter is under consideration.

Season's Work.

"The January meeting of the Society will be devoted to Music and subsequent meetings to Natural Sciences, Industries and Applied Sciences, Books and Literature, and the Preservation of Historic Sites and Objects. The season's work will be concluded with a Joseph Rodman Drake celebration on Saturday, May 29, 1915. A bronze tablet will be dedicated in the gorge in Bronx Park and another one at the Poet's tomb in the park bearing his name at Hunt's Point. Another tablet will be dedicated bearing the touching tribute of his fellow poet, Fitz-Greene Halleck, while in the Morris High School poets and authors of a national repute will discourse on 'A Literary Analysis of the Culprit Fay,' 'Drake, the Poet,' 'Drake, the Physician,' 'The Family of Drake," and 'the Bronx in Drake's Time and To-day.'"

Mr. Davis wound up his address with an appeal to architects, sculptors, and painters to join and help the society in its work, and asked all possessors of art treasures to loan or donate them for the benefit of the population at large in the Bronx.

SAFETY ON GOOD ROADS.

At the American Road Builders' Association Convention, held on December 14 to 18, Mr. T. Hugh Boorman, Con. En., spoke on the "Safety Always on Good Roads." He said in part:

"The importance of avoiding all possible risks of accidents to pedestrians, drivers and automobilists in connection with the construction and maintenance of roads and the providing of the proper signs and signals along the line of traffic, in addition to those given by railroads, cannot be too deeply considered by road makers and good road enthusiasts. This is an era of education and we are getting alive to the fact that we must reach the entire community from the kindergarten to the post graduate college student in any proposition for the moral or physical uplift of our nation.

"On the line of education Colonel Sidney Suggs, Commissioner of Highways of the State of Oklahoma, recently stated: 'There is a wide field of useful work for all highway departments along educational lines. In this connection I am pleased to report that, in Oklahoma, we have taken this proposition to the rural and high-school pupils, both boys and girls, and, since December 12, we have carried the message of 3,000 pupils, and have organized the good roads and civic clubs in four counties."

Pupils Build Roads.

"On October 11 and 17, the high-school pupils of Seminole county built the first mile of educational road in the State. So much interest was manifested by the pupils on this occasion in the construction of the road that a scheduled football game was abandoned in order that they might do the work. The construction work was done by the student body, including the paying of the expenses of the engineer, the driving of the grade stakes and the carrying of the chain and levelling rod. The width of this road is 20 feet from curb to curb, leaving a parkway on either side.

"The high-school girls, who have charge of the civic department of the work, assisted the boys in setting out nut and fruit trees along this educational mile of road. In Stevens county there have already been organized 1,500 pupils, and plans have been made to build a mile of educational road in each of the three county commissioners' districts. The county school superintendent, A. L. Morton, is taking a lively interest in this work, and declares that the pupils of Stevens county, 8,623 in number, will build one mile of educational road in each of the 75 school districts in the county. All work is done under the direction of a competent engineer, who holds a commission from the department of highways and at the expense of the organization."

"In a movement among 'the children of an older growth' may be mentioned that, at Bothell, Washington, D. C., most of the farmers and automobilists residing near there have formed an organization which is called the 'Chuck Hole Club.' Each member of the club pledges himself to boost the good roads movement in every way and to personally see that at least one chuck hole is filled up once a month. A few such organizations are needed badly in nearby territory in Virginia.

"During the winter months when the farmer has more time than in summer and the horses need exercise it would be a splendid idea to repair a short section of the road adjoining his property. It would not take many weeks before the road would be in good shape and provide easy hauling for the teams when spring sets in.

Tremendous Field.

"Through our State Officials, we must look for their interest in promoting the general idea of looking for safety in connection with road building and maintenance, and it must be borne in mind that this question covers a tremendous field, from the welfare of the convicts employed on our public work to the sign for children, and teaching the pecuniary loss to cities from building election bonfires in the street by the younger members of our population.

"This trouble was to a great degree mitigated in New York city last month by the diffusion of the knowledge of the unfortunate results by the teachers in our public schools at the suggestion of the order through the President of the Borough of Manhattan."

—The practice of inserting a nominal consideration in deeds has become so universal that about one deed in twenty contains the actual consideration for transfer.

All property owners, and every good citizen having a stake in the country, are to be invited to join the Real Estate Association of the State of New York, and gladly should they avail themselves of the chance to have the benefits which will come from having somebody to speak for and defend them in the councils of the State.

When a law operates to lessen the chance of a man ever being able to make the basic investment which every man should make for the welfare and stability of his family, through the ownership of a house, then that law is inimical to the best form of social and material development of the city where it applies.

In the 1914 session of the Legislature bills were introduced that involved an increase of approximately $2,325,000 in the city's yearly payroll. The Citizens' Union will join with other civic bodies in advocating at Albany this winter legislation which will give the city complete control over salaries paid by the city. As this is the least it could ask for under the head of local self-government, taxpayers will think that other relief measures should also receive its support.

For the first time in years the allowances in the River and Harbors bill for improving the navigable waters in and around this harbor are somewhat comparable with the needs. It was unfair that reefs and bars easily removable should be permitted to interdict the use of natural channels and waterfront by shipping. Particularly was it wrong that the deep waters of the central Hudson should be shut off from the ocean trade by recently formed mudbars in the lower reaches of the river, while millions of dollars were being spent on unimportant streams and unfrequented harbors elsewhere.

Useful Lines of Motor "Buses."

If the plans of the Franchise Bureau of the Board of Estimate are carried out, Manhattan will have two new and extremely valuable lines of motor "buses." Both of them would start at 14th street, one penetrating the East Side and the other the West Side. The former would run up Irving place to 23d street, thence along Madison avenue to 39th street and by Park avenue to 125th street. This will be an extremely valuable route to residents of the East Side, and particularly to residents of Park avenue. It will enable them to reach destinations in the shopping and amusement sections with more celerity and less inconvenience than they can by either the Lexington or Madison avenue cars. The West Side line will follow Broadway from 14th street to Columbus Circle, and from thence north probably by Central Park West to 72d street. From 72d street it would turn into Amsterdam avenue and continue thus on until it reached 86th street. Then it would make use of West End avenue and up a straight line until it reached Fairview avenue at 194th street.

In addition there are proposed several extremely useful diagonal and crosstown lines. One of these would run from East 57th street to the Pennsylvania Station via Seventh avenue and Longacre square; and would be most convenient, particularly in case passengers on the Park avenue line could transfer to it. There seems to be no good reason why this route should not be prolonged down Seventh avenue to Canal street. Crosstown routes are also proposed on 31st, 36th, 37th, 39th, 40th, 46th and 47th streets and on the three transverse roads across Central Park. If these routes are approved by the Board of Estimate they will be offered for public competition; and it is very much to be hoped that they will be secured by one company, and that the successful bidder will be the existing Fifth Avenue Omnibus Company. There is nothing to be gained by creating competition in a service of this kind, because competition, so far as effective, is disastrous.

On the other hand, the ownership of all the routes by one company has the great advantage of facilitating unified operation. The system as laid out by the Franchise Bureau is essentially a unit. If transfers are provided among its several parts it will be extremely useful and efficient. If they are not provided, it will be far less useful. Its chief purpose is to provide people to whom a ten-cent fare is no deterrent a means of transit from their residences on the East and West Sides to shops and places of amusement in central Manhattan. Its value largely depends upon the ability of inhabitants of the upper East Side to reach destinations on the middle West Side and for the residents of the Upper West Side to reach destinations on the Middle East Side. Of course it would be possible to arrange for transfers between independent companies, but an arrangement of that kind, fair to both companies, is not easy. Furthermore, it is just as important that the existing "buses" should transfer to its new lines as that the new lines should transfer one to another. It is very much to be hoped, consequently, that the Fifth Avenue Company will put in an acceptable bid. It will have an initial advantage over its possible rivals in that it can offer transfers to its existing lines, and this advantage ought to make the difference.

The Park Avenue Route.

The proposed new "bus" route on Park avenue will have one merit as compared with the routes on other avenues. Vehicles can be run over it with comparatively little delay. They will, indeed, have an almost unimpeded roadway except when running in 23d street and in the neighborhood of the Grand Central Station. On the other hand, the Broadway route on the West Side will be embarrassed on a narrow roadway, by the trolley cars and by having to pass through the excessively congested areas at Greeley and Herald squares. The vehicles on Broadway will probably make poorer time than those on Fifth avenue, while the vehicles on Park avenue should be able to make considerably better time. The West Side line will increase the traffic congestion much more than will that on the East Side. This is a serious consideration and should be sufficient to prevent the making of any subsequent additions to the omnibus system of Manhattan. The city's street lay-out is too inconvenient to accommodate a great increase in the number of moving vehicles. The Police Department has accomplished wonders of recent years in relieving the congestion and making this flow of traffic more smooth, but there are limits to what it can accomplish, and the promise of a large increase in the number of vehicles which must pass through Greeley and Herald squares is decidedly disconcerting. Unless they travel very slowly and are driven very carefully, there are likely to be accidents. Any further increase in vehicular traffic should so far as possible be avoided, and as regards "buses" it probably will be avoided. The omnibus can never become the popular means of conveyance in New York that it is in Paris and London. The ten-cent fare confines its use to a comparatively limited number of people. It would be absurd to run them except through prosperous residential and retail districts. When the new subway and the new "bus" systems are all in operation, Manhattan will not, with one exception, need any additional means of communication for a long time to come. The one exception concerns the extended Seventh avenue. There ought to be a surface transit line on the new avenue from Canal street north; and for this district trolley cars would be preferable to motor "buses."

Opening of the Stock Exchange.

The re-opening of the Stock Exchange will mean a great deal for business in Manhattan. It immediately restores to remunerative employment a great many thousand people. The number is estimated as high as 15,000, and the average of their salaries is probably more rather than less than $100 a month. The open stock market means, consequently, that the people of New York have fully $1,500,000 more to spend than they had one month ago; and, of course, this sum would be largely increased by the profits which the partners will derive from their business. Perhaps the result will be a revival of the local retail trade. The volume of buying by ordinary citizens has been exceptionally small throughout the fall. Consumption has been cut down much more drastically than has been admitted in published reports.

It is well known that in spite of the recent diminution in the number of department stores transacting business in Manhattan, some of those which remain are having only a precarious existence. They need an enlarged power of consumption on the part of the public and an increased willingness to consume. If this can only be brought about, the suffering and the unemployment, instead of becoming more acute as the winter advances, may well become less acute. The revival of Stock Exchange business will contribute most effectively to this end. Stock brokerage is an essentially local industry and a very remunerative one. Its complete cessation had much to do with the peculiarly acute depression which is characteristic of the situation in New York.

An Unwarranted Aspersion.

Deplorable economic conditions prevail in some quarters of the city today. Many tenants are unable to pay their rent, and there are title holders to property who are unable to meet their mortgage engagements. There have been evictions of tenants that have aroused the sympathies of the daily press, and there has been an inference drawn that property owners are heartless and exacting to the last degree. In fact, the assertion was distinctly made at the "eviction meeting" at the Hotel Astor that landlords would take advantage of any new charitable movement to evict their tenants. In fairness and justice to thousands of good men and women, who instead of discussing their good works publicly, are assisting their tenants in a very unselfish and practical manner, this misapprehension should be dispelled. We venture to say that no class of people are scattering more seeds of kindness this winter than property owners, and particularly those who possess residential or tenement property. They are not only paying taxes for the support of the poor and contributing of their means to various benevolent institutions and agencies, but a great many are doing more; they are ministering to deserving families in their own houses.

Out of 1,250,000 families in this cosmopolitan city, where there is necessarily in dull times more unemployment than in any other American city; there were only 882 evictions last year, or only one in every 1,400 families. We doubt if there is a city in the land that had fewer in proportion. And it is estimated that the total number of evictions in New York City for the current year will be still smaller. The worthy cases have all doubtless been amply provided for by charitable societies. As was remarked at the eviction meeting by the secretary of the Advisory Council of Real Estate Interests, in answer to the perhaps unconsidered and only half-meant allegation that "landlords would take advantage of any new charitable movement to evict their tenants," most of the property owners on the East Side are energetic, honest and thrifty. , Believing that real estate was the most conservative and secure of all investments, they had purchased small properties with the accumulated savings of a lifetime. Although tax rates were increasing and laws affecting real estate becoming more stringent, yet these so-called landlords had in innumerable cases permitted their tenants to remain for months without paying rent. Many of them, possessing but a single house, lived therein with their tenants, and so were doing an effective charitable work in an inconspicuous manner.

With the foregoing observations every reader of this paper will agree, as being in accordance with his own knowledge, and yet some persons seem to be trying through the daily papers to inspire an opposite belief. True, it may be with the object of stimulating private benevolence, or of making the work of the public charity agencies seem more heroic, but it may also be that some political fraternity is pulling wires in order that there may be set up with public acquiescence another expensive municipal commission with a regiment of inspectors. Whatever the object of the attacks on property owners which imply heartlessness to the poor, they are as untrue in the large as they are unkind and unmanly. Not only in their private capacity but through their organized connections as well, the men and women who have interest and taxes to pay are trying as best they can to moderate to the deserving the severities of a period of economic distress.

A Senseless War on Existing Property.

Editor of the RECORD AND GUIDE:

New elevator regulations have been introduced to the Board of Aldermen which, if passed, will become a city ordinance. I do not propose to criticise the efficacy of these regulations as applied to new construction, but I do intend to hit at what I consider the "senseless war" waged by lawmakers and non-property holders against existing property. Not being a property holder nor a lawmaker, and having spent many years in fields of work where I had ample opportunity to observe this "war," I believe that I can give an unbiased opinion about the matter.

The courts, the workmen's compensation law and political economy place a definite value on a human life, and this will be the basis of my arguments. Statistics are available to show how many persons are killed or injured through various causes, with their occupations, etc., given, so that an economic value can readily be given to the value of lives lost through any cause.

Holding as I do that an economic value can be placed on the loss of life due to any cause, it becomes a simple matter to figure the amount of money that the lawmakers are justified in asking the owners of existing property to spend to prevent loss of life from a given cause.

As an example, let us assume the case of interlocking devices required by the proposed regulations for existing elevators. These devices are to be placed on all doors of elevators used to carry passengers, and their purpose is to prevent the starting of the car before the door is closed. Statistics available in the Bureau of Buildings, Manhattan, appear to show that during the last five years the number of deaths in Manhattan per year due to lack of interlocking devices was nineteen. Then how much money are the lawmakers justified in demanding that the owners of existing property spend to save these lives. The figures used are not exact, but will illustrate my methods of procedure.

Assume an average value of $10,000 per life, of $190,000 per year as the economic value of lives lost. If we capitalize the amount at 5 per cent., then the amount to be spent should be $3,800,000, if these devices should last throughout the life of the building. Being mechanical, suppose we assume their life at ten years, in which case the $3,800,000 must be divided into two parts, the initial cost of the devices, and a sum of money which at 5 per cent. compound interest would permit the renewal of the devices at ten-year intervals. This would mean that about $1,450,000 should be spent for interlocking devices, and the compound interest on the remainder ($2,350,000) would amount to this initial cost at ten-year intervals.

Assuming that there are 100,000 elevator door openings in Manhattan that are affected by the regulations, my figures show that each device should cost not more than $14.50 erected. If the cost appreciably exceeds this amount, then the property owners should see that this part of the regulations is voted against.

Fire protection, exits, safety devices, etc., should be examined in the same critical manner and if this is done, perhaps we would be able to prevent or repeal a vast amount of legislation that I personally believe has been a detriment to real estate, and has helped to produce general depression in business. Indiscriminate regulation should stop.

SAMUEL N. POLISHOOK,
Civil Engineer.

The Single Tax in City and Country.

Editor of the RECORD AND GUIDE:

"Why Not Untax Farm Buildings as Well as City Buildings?" is the head line on Mr. E. A. Alexander's letter in your issue of December 5.

Why not untax farm buildings? The Single Taxer argues for the abolition of all taxes except a tax on the bare land, or a tax on the exclusive possession or monopoly possession of a given piece of earth, regardless of any improvement in, on or over it.

Mr. Alexander says: "No man buys land with the intention of just holding it"—"land itself is of no value." Every Single Taxer will agree with Mr. Alexander. Mr. Alexander, however, answers himself quite neatly when he says that, "He buys it either to sell it at a profit to someone who can utilize it and obtain profit out of it, or to improve it himself." The Single Taxer, agreeing with Mr. Alexander that "land in itself is of no value," goes further and says that it (land) never of itself should have value—and should have only a user's value. To perpetuate the "no value of itself" to the earth he proposes to take into the public treasury in the form of taxation all of the value that may attach to land which is not user's value, i. e., increment or monopoly value—which attaches to the earth by the presence of population, a high state of civilization, public improvements, etc.

If there is a profit in building houses which, under the present system are taxed, surely there ought to be more profit in them for the owner if they are untaxed—and a profit, at least, as large as the remitted tax upon the building, minus whatever slight increase that might accrue in the tax on land made necessary because of the abolition of the improvement tax.

Let me, categorically, answer Mr. Alexander's questions.

First—Single Taxers agree with him that the untaxing of all improvements should apply alike to city and country.

Second—The value of growing timber on forest land, which timber was planted, cared for and raised at the expense and through the labor of the owner, should not be taxed. Every Single Taxer will subscribe to this exemption, and many of the States of the Union, having seen that the untaxing of growing timber would encourage reforestization, have exempted such timber from taxation by constitutional provision.

Third—Single Taxers believe that all vegetables, including wheat, corn, etc., should be tax exempt.

Fourth—The Constitution prohibits the untaxing of some property and not others in the same class; that is to say, a statute exempting some homesteads and not others would be unconstitutional; a statute exempting homes but not office buildings would not be unconstitutional if all homes were so exempted, and not only some of them.

Fifth (a)—Permament improvements in, on or over land are regarded by law as real estate, but actually are only labor applied to nature's products and assembled in, on or over a given piece of earth; improvements are not a part of real estate, except as a legal fiction; change the law to conform to the actual facts.

(b) Improvements are really personal property and, should, like other personal property, be exempt from taxation, is the claim of the Single Taxer. Thus, Single Taxers agree that all taxes should be uniform in class and, therefore, would untax all improvements. They would only tax property of one class, to wit: monopoly value which attaches to the exclusive possession of the earth—that earth which Almighty God gave to all the Children of Men, and not to a privileged few.

The question that has been often put to Single Taxers in the columns of your paper is "May I not rightfully sell that which I have purchased with my money." and that is apparently bothering Mr. Alexander. There are two classes of property which we may not morally trade in (I am not speaking of legality); first, human beings; second, the earth upon which all must live and from which they must draw their sustenance.

A Possible Source of Revenue.

Editor of the RECORD AND GUIDE:

Your paper has taken great interest in the movement to find new sources of taxation to relieve overburdened real estate. Having read numerous suggestions, I wish to offer mine, as follows: That everyone conducting business in the city, or drawing a salary of $1,200 per year or over and residing outside of the city limits, be taxed $25 per year.

JOHN J. HOECKH.
650 Ninth avenue.

Inspected to Death.

(From the World.)

In one specific instance that has come to the knowledge of The World, a manufacturer's building was visited by an inspector who posed in a certain place the notice, "This is a fire exit." Later another inspector came along and posted the notice, "This is not a fire exit." Both of the notices are up. When the manufacturer asked one of the inspectors what he should do, the answer he received was that the inspector did not know, but that if the manufacturer took down this inspector's sign he would be arrested. Unless something is soon done to adjust the various inspection laws according to a sound and sane plan, the annoyances to which property-owners are exposed will become intolerable.

DIARY AND MANUAL.

The Real Estate Board's Year Book for 1915 Is Out.

Copies of an invaluable reference book for real estate brokers, the Real Estate Board's Diary and Manual, for the year 1915, are being distributed. In outward appearance the new book is much the same as last year's edition, except that it is larger. The diary contains a full page for every business day in the year, except a half-page each for Saturday, and another half-page for Sunday. The appendix is rich in information for real estate men and property owners. It contains a synopsis of the Building Code, the Tenement House Law, the Factory laws, water regulations, much technical information for real estate experts and a variety of other matters. For all having to do with real property, the book is a valuable thing to have in his desk.

The diary committee consists of Pierre M. Clear, chairman; Frank D. Ames, W. L. De Bost, A. N. Gitterman, William C. Lester, C. Wheaton Vaughan and Walter H. Warren. The book is on sale at the board rooms for $1.

New Mausoleum Discussed.

Last Thursday evening there was a meeting of the Staten Island Chamber of Commerce in the local board rooms of Borough Hall, Richmond. The special order of business was the discussion of the plan of the New York Community Mausoleum Company, for the erection of a large mausoleum on the Amboy road, between Oakwood and Great Kills. Representatives of the company were present and stated that the structure would involve the expenditure of about $400,000, and would care for about 1,500 remains, and that a fund of $25,000 would be deposited with a title company to insure the future upkeep of the building and surrounding grounds. The company proposes to sell crypts at about $200 each.

While no definite action was taken by the Chamber of Commerce, still, it was pointed out that the exact location selected was unwise, but that were a less conspicuous spot chosen, further removed from the public highway, less opposition might be expressed. It was contended that the interest on the $25,000 fund was insufficient to care for the upkeep, for a four per cent. interest, only $1,000 a year would be available, which was little more than the salary of one attendant. The Chamber of Commerce will consider the project at its next meeting, early next January.

Morris Park Owners Meet.

About 800 owners of Morris Park lots, members of the Morris Park Taxpayers' Association, met on Thursday evening, at the Hunts Point Palace, to discuss a proposed arrangement with the city for the installation of municipal improvements in the tract. The need for sewers was particularly dwelt upon and every owner present consented to sign an agreement to pay for the cost of their installation within sixty days after the assessments were levied. Among the speakers were John C. Tomlinson, John J. Elkins, James R. Murphy and Dr. B. A. Kantrowitz.

Queens Chamber to Dine.

Hon. William C. Redfield, secretary of the Department of Commerce of the United States, and a member of President Wilson's Cabinet, will be the guest of honor of the Chamber of Commerce of the Borough of Queens at its fourth annual dinner to be held in the grand-ball room of the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel on Wednesday evening. Hon. Burt Jay Humphrey, chairman of the dinner committee, also announces that W. Morgan Chester, former Treasurer-General of Persia, who was recently sent to South America by the National City Bank of New York to study banking and trade possibilities, will speak on the subject of the development of the commerce of the United States with South America. Justice Frederick E. Crane, of the Supreme Court, has also accepted an invitation to speak.

PRIVATE REALTY SALES.

Upper West Side, Bronx and midtown properties figured prominently in the trading this week, which showed a marked tendency toward improvement. Not only was there an increase in the number of reported sales, as compared with last week's record, but the transactions involved widely diversified classes of property in a number of sections of the city.

The Grolier Club, for more than a quarter of a century in East 32d street, has been compelled to seek another location by the ever-encroaching expansion of trade into residential districts. The clubhouse property has been sold and will probably be improved for business purposes. Farther north a Fifth avenue leasehold transaction furnished interesting figures illustrating the unusual rise of values on that avenue since the private houses have been taken over for commercial purposes. The twenty-one year lease involved an aggregate rental which was $150,000 in excess of the price paid for the property in fee, ten years ago, by the lessor. Another lease added a large firm which has been for thirty-three years on Union square to the new publishers' colony on upper Fourth avenue.

Important sales of the week concerned the accumulation of a building site on Lenox Hill evidently influenced by the progress of subway construction; a Dyckman block front acquired by builders and a Trinity place office structure.

The total number of sales reported and not recorded in Manhattan this week was 27 as against 17 last week and 30 a year ago.

The number of sales south of 59th street was 8, as compared with 5 last week and 14 a year ago.

The sales north of 59th street aggregated 19, as compared with 12 last week and 16 a year ago.

The total number of conveyances in Manhattan was 124, as against 102 last week, 18 having stated considerations totaling $800,650. Mortgages recorded this week number 58, involving $2,837,921, as against 69 last week, totaling $870,612.

From the Bronx 20 sales at private contract were recorded, as against 16 last week and 10 a year ago.

The amount involved in Manhattan and Bronx auction sales this week was $1,300,850, compared with $653,770 last week, making a total since Jan. 1 of $41,291,162. The figures for the corresponding week last year were $887,311 and the total from Jan. 1, 1913, to Dec. 20, 1913, was $48,766,107.

Jacob J. Tabolt Sells.

Jacob J. Talbot has resold the five-story flat, 64 West 100th street, on lot 25x100, which he bought at auction for $17,100 on December 1. It is assessed by the city at $21,000. Mr. Tabolt writes regarding the sale: "I have had three offers from different people, and each was willing to give me a substantial profit. This proves to me that there is always a chance to sell a piece of property, in the central part of Manhattan Island, if the price asked is reasonable and a little below the actual value. This is the fourth piece of property I have disposed of since the first of the year. In February I sold 343 West 52nd street to Michael J. Callahan, who has since altered the building for his contracting business. On February 11th I bought at auction from the Blair Estate, 414 West 41st street, and sold same to the Yuodonald Realty Company, who intend to alter the building for their own use. April 22nd I bought at auction 412 West 35th street, and sold same to Thomas Hinton, who resold the property to St. Mary's Hospital, owners of the adjoining property."

Flushing Acreage Deals.

Adolph Lewisohn has purchased from the Broadway-Flushing Company about 90 acres, surrounding the 55 acres purchased by him, last June, from the Inter-Borough Realty Company. The Broadway-Flushing Company has purchased from Peter B. Olney, as referee, and William R. Wilcox, as trustee of the Inter-Borough Realty Company, 95 acres, known as the Handley tract, adjoining, on the north, the holdings of the Boardway-Flushing Company. Upon part of the tract just purchased is the race track now used by the Queens Borough Driving Club. The combined ownership of Mr. Lewisohn and the Broadway-Flushing Company is now 345 acres. It is contemplated when the new transit facilities are completed, to develop this entire property with improved housing facilities. L. J. Phillips & Company were the brokers in the latter transaction.

W. V. Astor Trades Dwelling.

Harris & Vaughan and the A. N. Gitterman Corporation sold to William Vincent Astor for the Belle Hazen Realty Co., Inc., Edward W. Nestell, president, 9 West 32nd street, a five-story business building on lot 25x100. Mr. Astor gave in part payment the four-story dwelling, 13 East 65th street, on lot 22x100.5, located between Fifth and Madison avenues, just east of the Astor residence, and adjoining the residences of Mrs. Louise H. Moore and Mrs. Elizabeth Brown. The 32nd street property is under lease for a term of twenty-one years to one tenant. This property was held at $150,000 and immediately adjoins the other Astor holdings in 32nd and 33rd streets.

Grolier Club Sold.

Pease & Elliman have sold No. 29 East 32d street, owned and occupied for the past twenty-five years by the Grolier Club, the Book-Lovers organization. The late William F. Havemeyer was the former president of this club and there appears on its membership roster the names of many famous authors, publishers and literary men. The Grolier Club has practically concluded negotiations for a piece of ground situated uptown, on which will be erected a fireproof building. The buyer of the site just sold is the Meany Realty Corporation, which owns the adjoining twelve-story loft building, at 31 East 32d street. It is reported that the club-house will be demolished and a structure erected which will protect the light and air of the loft building.

Heights—Bronx Exchange.

H. M. Construction Company, Morris Herman and Samuel Minckoff, sold, through Arnold, Byrne & Baumann, to Henry Morgenthau Company, Robert E. Simon, president, the six-story elevator apartment house, on plot 92.7 x 125, at the southeast corner of Fort Washington avenue and 179th street. The buyer gave in part payment two free and clear vacant plots, one at the southeast corner of Walton avenue and 179th street, 50 x 100, and the other on the west side of Morris avenue, 93 feet south of 183d street, 50 x 200, through to Walton avenue.

Builders Buy In Dyckman Section.

The Aldus Construction Company bought from Max Marx the block front on the west side of Vermilyea avenue, between Isham and 211th streets. The site contains about six lots and has frontages of 148.2 feet on Vermilyea avenue, 75 feet in Isham street, 91.7 feet in 211th street, with a rear line measuring 95.6 feet. The buyer will erect a five-story apartment house. About six weeks ago, the company also purchased the plot, 100 x 100, at the northwest corner of Vermilyea avenue and 207th street, for a similar improvement.

New East Side Operation.

Julius Tishman & Sons bought from the estate of Virginia Zabriskie, 122, 126 and 128 East 76th street, and from Simon Levi, 124 East 76th street, four private houses on plot 69 x 102.2. The site will be used for the construction of a nine-story apartment house, with suites arranged to meet the recent popular demand in that locality. The brokers were Douglas L. Elliman & Company and Hughes & Hammond.

Trinity Court Re-sold.

The Alliance Realty Company, William H. Chesebrough, president, has purchased from the Mutual Life Insurance Company, through Goodale, Perry & Dwight, Trinity Court, a six-story office building, at 70-76 Trinity place, on plot 112.6 x 52 x 109 x 42. The sellers acquired the property recently, as plaintiffs in a foreclosure sale, for $90,000.

LEASES.

$350,000 Fifth Avenue Operation.

Albert B. Ashforth has leased for Mrs. Marie Heye Clemens, to Edward Margolies, her former residence at No. 603 Fifth avenue, between 48th and 49th streets, for twenty-one years, at a reported rental of about $350,000. The property is a six-story building, on lot 22.5 x 100, altered for business purposes. The property lies between the new building of Charles Scribner's Sons, publishers, and the six-story building erected at 605 Fifth avenue by the Peerless Investing Company, and was purchased by Mrs. Clemens in 1902 for about $200,000, which is $150,000 less than she is to receive in rent, although she still retains the fee.

Profit in Broadway Lease.

Ritchie & Cornell, tailors, have subleased the four-story building, 1562 Broadway, to Herman H. Moss, for twenty-one years at a reported rental of about $13,000 a year. If the reported rental for the property is true, it would indicate a profit of $4,000 a year for the lessors. Last September, Ritchie & Cornell sub-leased the building from Sol Bloom and William Hepner, at a rental of about $9,000 per annum. The fee is owned by George B. Burnett. According to report, Mr. Moss will improve the site with a new five-story office building, with a restaurant on the street floor.

Printers Join Uptown Colony.

An interesting lease in the Fourth avenue section was closed through Wm. A. White & Sons by their leasing to the Century Company, the publishers, for the Hanover Corporation, the top floor of the Armory building, which covers the entire block on Fourth avenue, between 25th and 26th streets. The floor contains 20,000 square feet, and this rental completes the leasing of the building. The Century Company has occupied its present quarters on Union square since September 1, 1881, making this its first change in thirty-three years.

Old Wholesale District Lease.

The Autosales Gum & Chocolate Company, the factory of which is located in Long Island City, has leased from the United States Realty & Improvement Company, through the Gaines & Drennan Company, the store, basement, and four lofts in the building at the southeast corner of Spring and Mercer streets, for use as general offices.

SPECIAL ATTENTION GIVEN TO COLLECTING, RENTING AND MANAGEMENT OF ESTATES

Edward Koch, Catherine A. F. Casanova, Augusta A. Taintor and Henry L. Rosenthal.

A. L. MORDECAI & SON announce that they have completely rented the store, basement and all the lofts in the new building, 63 West 36th st, the construction of which was started last August.

JOHN M. THOMPSON announces his resignation as vice-president of the M. Morgenthau, Jr., Co. He has opened an office at 115 Broadway for the selling and appraising of real estate. C. Walter Cushier will be associated with him in the sales department.

UNION SQUARE is interested in a report that the Van Beuren estate has leased the new 12-sty building at the northwest corner of Union sq and 15th st which has yet to find a tenant. No definite information could be obtained this week at the offices of the estate at 65 5th av.

WILLIAM H. ARCHIBALD was the broker in the recently recorded sale of the 4-sty building, 319 West 28th st to Thomas Lynch, who owns the three houses adjoining on the east. This gives Mr. Lynch a plot 80x98.9. No immediate improvement is contemplated.

SMITH & PHELPS have placed for the A. J. Schwarzler Co. a first mortgage loan of $20,000 at 5 per cent. for 5 years on the 5-sty apartment at 1114 Findlay av.

REAL ESTATE OWNERS' PROTECTIVE ASSOCIATION will meet at the Hotel Majestic on Monday for the installation of the newly-elected officers. Martin Saxe and Mark Eisner will address the members. They have been elected delegates to the 1915 Constitutional Convention. Among the commitees which are expected to report are those on the Central Park Subway Building and on Track Removal and Adjustment of Central Park West.

DIRECTORS of the M. Morgenthau, Jr., Co. elected Franklin T. Seaman, a director and secretary of the company this week. Mr. Seaman, who was formerly with William A. White and Sons and the A. H. Ivins Co., will have charge of the mortgage department. He will be assisted by Guy L. Nelson. Joseph Halberstadt will succeed John M. Thompson as vice-president. He will also be treasurer. The company will celebrate the close of the year with a dinner at the City Athletic Club on Tuesday evening.

COMMISSIONERS in condemnation have been appointed to determine the amount to be paid for a permanent and a temporary easement under a section of the old Stevens House, and just how much the Mairs estate is to be paid for that and similar damages to other of its properties in lower Broadway which stand in the way of building the new Brooklyn Rapid Transit subway. The commissioners are Henry A. Gildersleeve, Thomas W. Churchill and Charles E. Heydt.

ARMORY HILL REALTY CORPORATION has acquired title from Anton Friedrich to the 5-sty flat, 25.2x100, at 1224 Park av, for a consideration of $40,000. The company owns the adjoining house at 1226, and now controls a plot 50.4x100. Both purchases were made through John J. Kavanagh as broker.

OBITUARY

LUKE KOUWENHOVEN, descendant of one of the first Long Island settlers, and owner of a large estate, died on Thursday at his home on the Shore rd, in the Steinway section of Queens, aged eighty-five. He was unmarried. His direct ancestor, Wolfert van Kouwenhoven, came to this country from the Netherlands in 1630, and the family settled in the Flatlands section of Brooklyn. The grandfather of Mr. Kouwenhoven purchased several hundreds of acres in what is now the northern part of Long Island City, including North Beach.

AUCTION SALES OF WEEK.

Except where otherwise stated, the properties sold were at foreclosure. Adjournments of legal sales to next week are noted under Advertised Legal Sales.

* In this sale the property described was bid in for the plaintiff's account.

The Auction Market.

Several properties sold this week to outside buyers at prices in excess of existing encumbrances, indicate a continued improvement in the auction branch of the real estate market. In one instance the plaintiff acquired a Fifth avenue block front for $235,000, which was about $4,000 above the liens. This may be considered a rarity in recent times, since properties that have been sold as the result of foreclosure proceedings have been invariably bid in by parties in interest for prices below the encumbrances. An auction offering of Spuyten Duyvil holdings last Saturday resulted in the sale of eighty-eight lots and two dwellings for a total of $120,707, or an average of about $1,140 a lot.

Next Monday Henry Brady will offer for sale the seven-story office building at the junction of Wall, Pearl and Beaver streets, as a result of a foreclosure action brought by the Equitable Life Assurance Company against Catharine H. Smith, and others. This is the first foreclosure sale of Wall street property in a number of years, and the result will no doubt occasion considerable comment among owners and real estate men who are interested in that locality.

REAL ESTATE MARKET { Including a Summary of the Year 1914 and the Outlook for 1915

Comprehensive articles on all branches of real estate business will be contributed by prominent men whose opinions are sought and highly valued.

This section will contain valuable information of interest to owners, prospective buyers, brokers, operators and builders.

Suburban sections and the various Boroughs of the City will be treated under separate captions.

This special section will accompany the regular edition of THE EVENING POST on Thursday, December 31, 1914,

Annual Financial Summary

This feature of the paper alone insures its reaching many bankers, brokers, directors of banking and insurance institutions and other concerns which are directly interested in Real Estate.

As this supplement is kept for reference and frequently resorted to, your advertisement would therefore have more than one reading.

We would suggest that you send in your advertising copy early, as this will be a banner number, and will contain the largest number of real estate brokers and operators ever before represented in an Annual Review published in New York City.

HOW CHIMNEY FUMES AFFECT RENTALS

Conducted by Raymond P. Roberts, Building Manager for The American Real Estate Co.

IT is well known that the grimy grey color which most buildings quickly assume in cities is due to smoke and sulphuric gases exuded from chimneys and stacks of nearby buildings. R. C. Benner Ph. D., an investigator for the Melon Institute of Industry Research and School of Pacific Industries of the University of Pennsylvania, says that if due thought is given to the effect of smoke on stone it will be seen that city architects are today grappling with one of the big problems that involve the financial success of all building operations.

Newness of a building attracts tenants. New buildings that have been conspicuous success in New York City are those which have a fresh, new-appearing facade. The value of a clean facade was appreciated by the Pulitzer estate when it decided to freshen the three fronts of the New York World building. Similar cases could be cited. Smoke, grime and acid stains on buildings may therefore be considered as a deterrent in the ultimate success of a building investment.

A building never looks so well as when first completed. The stone should improve in appearance through weathering, but instead, it begins, at once, to take on its dirty coat of soot, until every part is black, rendering it singularly gloomy. It is not altogether a question of aesthetics. It is a point of dollars and cents.

Interesting Comparisons.

Some interesting comparisons were made between Pittsburgh buildings and structures in different locations in England, wherein the soot deposited in Pittsburgh was shown to be greatly in excess of that in London. In New York, where the laws are strict against the use of soft coal, the soot deposited is considerably less than in Pittsburgh, and while Mr. Benner gives no data concerning the volume of soot deposited on New York buildings it is estimated that it is equivalent to about 26 tons per square mile per year.

Of course in a building a large percentage of the soot settles upon the roof and the inference should not be drawn that 26 tons of soot is actually deposited upon the facade of a building per square mile of vertical surface. The rapidity with which buildings become unsightly is almost beyond belief, according to Mr. Benner, until one becomes conversant with the amount of soot which finds its way into the air in large industrial communities.

Large Soot Deposit.

The investigator for the University of Pittsburgh is the authority for the statement that in that city the volume of soot deposited is almost beyond belief. Observations taken each month for a year indicate that an amount of soot was deposited sufficient, if ground with oil as lamp black to cover 17 to 57 square miles of surface with two coats. There are two classes of substances derived from the combustion of soft coal and other fuels which are injurious to stone. One of these consists of carbon, tar, ash and their various combinations. The second class includes gases that corrode and in general aid in the destruction and weathering, i e., sulphuric acid, sulphurous acid, hydrogen sulphide, hydrochloric acid, ammonia and organic acids.

The action of the carbon and ash, when not associated with tar, is not extremely objectionable, as the simple process of dusting will remove either. When, however, they are associated with tar, especially in case of the soot, we have the most objectionable kind of dirt. The tar makes the soot adhere to any surface with which it comes in contact, literally covering the object with a coat of black paint. This coating is not readily removed because of its adhesive properties and because it is insoluble in water. Drastic measures, such as the use of solvents, scouring, or the use of both are frequently necessary.

Does Not Injure Buildings.

While the soiling effect of soot is by far the most evident to the eye, it does not, in itself, cause the deterioration of building material. This can not be said of the corroding agents, of which sulphuric acid is the most important. The effects of hydrochloric and sulphurous acids are of less importance. Hydrochloric acids become active in damp weather. Sulphurous acid, which is in itself not particularly active, is rapidly changed by oxidation in the air to the far more corrosive and injurious sulphuric acid. Ammonia and hydrogen sulphide are practically without corrosive action on stone.

One might not think the amount of acid given off from the chimneys of our great cities sufficiently large to do much harm. Yet, when he knows the quantity which escapes into the air and stops to compute the amount of stone which can be ruined by it, the magnitude of the possible damage will be self-evident.

In Pittsburgh about 16,000,000 tons of coal, containing from 0.5 per cent. to 3 per cent. sulphur are burned annually. A large part of this sulphur escapes into the air, where it exists for the most part as sulphuric and sulphurous acids. As a conservative estimate, based on analyses which have been made here and elsewhere, we can say that at least 75 per cent. of the sulphur in the coal escapes into the air. This, if considered as sulphuric acid, would be equal to, say 500,000 tons, which, if it be allowed to act on limestone, would destroy 500,000 tons and produce 860,000 tons of gypsum.

Effects of Acids.

The acid escaping from the chimney takes two courses; part of it is absorbed in the soot and part escapes in the form of gas with the other products of combustion. Of the two, that absorbed in the soot is probably the more injurious. That which escapes with the flue gases is dissolved by the rain and coming in contact with any material on which it can act, corrodes this material, but is soon washed off. That included in the soot, especially that coming from domestic installations, which is so much higher in tar, is more injurious, as the tar causes the soot to adhere firmly to whatever it comes in contact with. This acid is not readily washed away by the rain and in all probability, if it is adhering to a corrodible material, the action is complete.

Building stones may be divided into two classes: Those which do not contain the carbonates of calcium and magnesium, such as granite, gneiss and sandstone—in which the grains of sand are cemented by some substances other than the carbonates, and those containing larger or smaller amounts of the carbonates of calcium and magnesium, such as limestone, dolomites, dolomitic limestone and sandstones with a calcareous cementing material.

The stone belonging to the first class are only slightly affected by the corroding agents derived from combustion. They are readily soiled by the soot when they are finished in the rough and are very hard to clean. In order that the mixture of tar and soot be removed it is ordinarily necessary to use a wire brush and acid, a sand blast, or other drastic method. These processes are objectionable for two reasons; namely, in every case it is a costly operation to clean the stone, and the stone itself is injured. All rock contains a certain amount of water, the more porous, of course, the greater percentage it contains. After removal from the quarry, this water, or that which is absorbed by the rock after quarrying and which becomes saturated with the various substances of which the rock is composed, gradually comes to the surface and is evaporated, depositing the dissolved minerals in form of a hard, compact crust. This coating protects the stone against the ravages of the weather. It is in fact "Nature's protection," the removal of which greatly hastens the weathering of the stone. And, after all, cleaning avails but little, as the stone is as dirty as before in the course of six months or a year.

Action of Sulphuric Acid.

The action of sulphuric acid on the corrodible stone is, for the most part, the action of this acid on the carbonates of calcium and magnesium. This chemical action involves a change in volume. The stone becomes porous, loses its cohesion and disintegrates with much greater ease under the action of the weather.

Mortar, on account of its rather porous structure and because it is in process of chemical change for some time after it is placed in the wall, is particularly subject to the action of the atmospheric acids. Mortar in many of the older buildings in Pittsburgh, for example the old Arsenal Building at 40th and Butler streets, has disintegrated to such an extent that it has fallen out in some places to a depth of one-third of an inch and is quite soft in other places to as much as two-fifths of an inch. This building has recently been repaired. This was shown by a number of analyses to be due in a great measure, at least, to sulphuric acid.

Injurious to Stone.

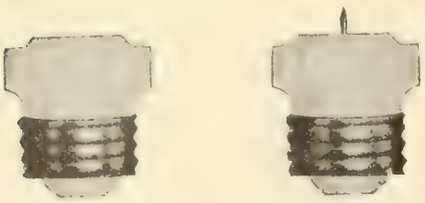
Buildings, as a whole, in our growing American cities, outlive their usefulness in such a comparatively short time and are then replaced by more modern structures, that the ravages of the noxious gases are not nearly as marked as in England and elsewhere abroad, where the preservation of ancient buildings has become a problem of no slight weight.

The smoke and associated products of combustion are injurious to stone in two ways: The soiling of the surface, so that in the course of a few months all stone takes on the same grey, grimy color, which means either the loss of all artistic effect that may have been obtained by color contrast, etc., or the frequent cleaning of the building, which is an additional expense and at the same time aids in the destruction of the stone.



In New York there is burned annually 7,000,000 short tons of bituminous coal, 12,000,000 short tons of anthracite. This makes approximately 20,000,000 tons of coal burned in this city each year. The problem is not to stop the use of soft coal nor wasteful methods of using anthracite, but how to stop the waste and reduce depreciation in renting values.

USEFUL APPLIANCES

Novelties, New Applications of Familiar Devices and the Trend of Invention, Designed to Aid the Architect, Builder and Building Manager, Described Without Regard to Advertising Consideration

An Indicating Fuse Plug.

THIS is a two piece porcelain plug with a brass shell for standard cut-outs and entrance switches. The chief claim for superiority over the ordinary fuse plug is its indicating features, that is, by the combination of phosphor bronze spring and fibre piston, a blow out either from short circuit or overload will release this spring and drive out a pin attached to the fibre piston and the said pin protruding about ¼-inch on the outside of the plug gives a clear and absolute indication that the plug has blown out. The phosphorus pin can be seen in the dark, denoting the position of plug.

Closet Disinfectant.

ONE secret of successful disinfecting sanitary equipment is to get it placed where it is most needed. Something new in the way of a coil system that sets inside of the bowl under the flush ring, as shown in the illustration, is being introduced. It consists of an inexpensive, but effective, coiled spring, highly nickeled to prevent rust. The disinfectant balls used in this coil are said to be a thorough deodorant, germicide antiseptic and will last from four to six months. When the closet is flushed the water passes through the coil over crystal balls, which disinfect and deodorize. It is easily placed and unnoticeable.

Forestry in New York.

IF statistics gathered by the Bureau of Census of the National Government by the Conservation Commission of the State, and by the N. Y. State College of Forestry, mean anything at all there is little question that nearly a half of this State is better suited to the development of profitable forests than to agriculture. The great forest areas of the Adirondacks and Catskills are giving no income to the State although they are capable under very simple methods of forestry of a return of from $2 to $5 per acre per year. Eventually these forest areas will be the source of a large income to the State. The growing of trees to produce lumber and other products seems to be just as sound an economic proposition as the growing of any other crop from the soil. Agriculture alone cannot solve the land problems of the State. Forestry is not subordinate to agriculture, but co-ordinate with it, and together they should solve the problem of the complete utilization of the land of the State. The increasing price of lumber and the increasing price of paper, and in fact everything that comes from the forest, is making it imperative to reforest the lands from which forests should never have been cut.

Compact 10-Ton Hydraulic Jack.

USED first as an emergency tool for street railway use, a new hydraulic jack has been deemed so efficient by the manufacturer that it has been placed on the market with a recommendation for general lifting work. Compact arrangement and simple operation are believed to have been obtained by making the cylinder the moving part of the tool instead of the ram, thus allowing the pump mechanism to stay in a fixed vertical position.

Another convenience is in the arrangement of the claw, which can be moved vertically, adjusted to the most convenient height, and swung, with the cylinder, in a complete circle without changing the position of the jack. The piston is packed with leather rings, and the valves are of the ball type.

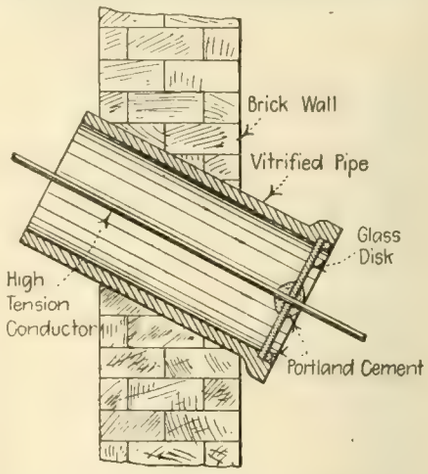
Pressure is released by a key operating a small needle valve. While the operating lever is only 18 inches long, it is stated that a man of normal size can obtain the maximum pressure with slight effort. The lever is curved and the socket has a hole in each of its four sides to allow convenience of operation from practically any position.



The jacks are now built in 5 and 10 ton sizes, with a ram stroke of 10 inches, and are guaranteed to stand a 50 per cent. overload without affecting any of the parts.

Cutting Holes Through Glass.

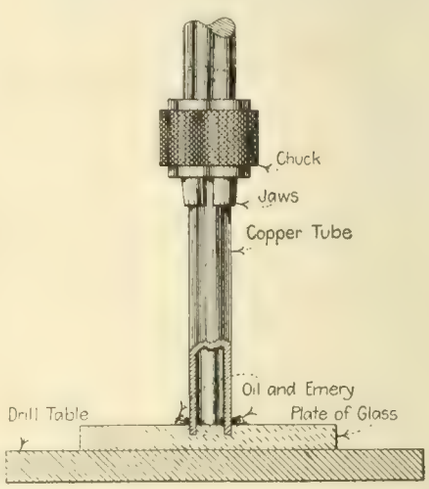
SMALL holes can be drilled through a plate of glass with a twist drill or with the broken end of the file, but where it is necessary to make holes of over ¼ inch in diameter, it is difficult to form the holes by the drilling method, says H. B. Manson, in the Electrical Review. The method of grinding holes that is here described can be successfully used for a hole of almost any reasonable diameter. The method is particularly convenient for making holes through the glass disks such as are used for the bushings of high-tension entrances, like that of Fig. 1.

In this economical and effective type of entrance, a piece of vitrified sewer pipe is built into the wall of the station. The pipe pitches downwardly so as to form a drip and a disk of glass is cemented into the flanged end of the pipe. Through the center of this glass disk a hole is bored to provide for the admissions of the high-tension conductor. The disk is held in the pipe with neat Portland cement, and the hole around the conductor where it enters the glass can also be stopped up with the same material, provided the conductor is held rigidly and will not vibrate. Unless the conductor is held rigidly by insulators on each side of the entrance its vibration will crack the cement.



A hole can be formed in glass with the arrangement shown in Fig. 2. It is a grinding rather than a drilling operation. A hole ⅜ inch in diameter can be cut through a piece of glass ⅛ inch thick in about eight minutes with the method, which is very economical.

The grinding tool consists of a piece of copper tubing which should have an outside diameter equal to that of the hole that it is desired to cut. The wall of the tube should be at least one-thirty-second inch thick, but can be thicker. Where large holes are to be cut, the wall must be considerably thicker, so that the tube will be amply rigid. The tube should be straight and true. Its upper end is clamped in a drill chuck, and it should be driven at approximately the speed that would be used for a twist drill of the same diameter in drilling cast iron.

The glass plate in which the hole is to be made is carefully bedded and leveled on the drill table, and is firmly clamped with wooden blocks so that it cannot move. Now the copper tube that is revolving, due to the operation of the twist-drill mechanism, is lowered against the glass, and an emulsion of fine emery and machine oil is fed under the edges of the tool where it is rotating against the glass. The tube is raised, more emery and oil is pushed under its edges, and it is lowered again. This process is repeated until the plate of glass is drilled half way through. The emery imbeds in the edge of the copper tube and thereby forms a quick-cutting, circular boring tool.

After the hole has been cut half way through the glass on one side the tube is raised and the glass is reversed. The hole is then completed from the reverse side. This prevents the glass from chipping around the hole.

Copper appears to be the best metal obtainable for these tubular, glass-boring tools. It prevents the glass from breaking.

A Modern Warehouse at Rochester Will Contain Many Innovations.—Design Suitable for Reproduction in Other Sections of Country

TO meet a natural but heretofore much neglected principle in the handling of freight by merchants in large cities, a storage warehouse is being erected in Rochester, N. Y., for the Buffalo, Rochester & Pittsburgh Railway Company. This neglect is not the fault of the merchant, as he realized long since that an unnecessary expense was being incurred by him, for which he naturally was charged every time goods were taken from the freight yard to his premises, there stored and subsequently, as often happened, carted back again to the same freight yard for shipment. Sometimes part carload lots were ordered, as sufficient room in his place might not be available for a full carload lot.

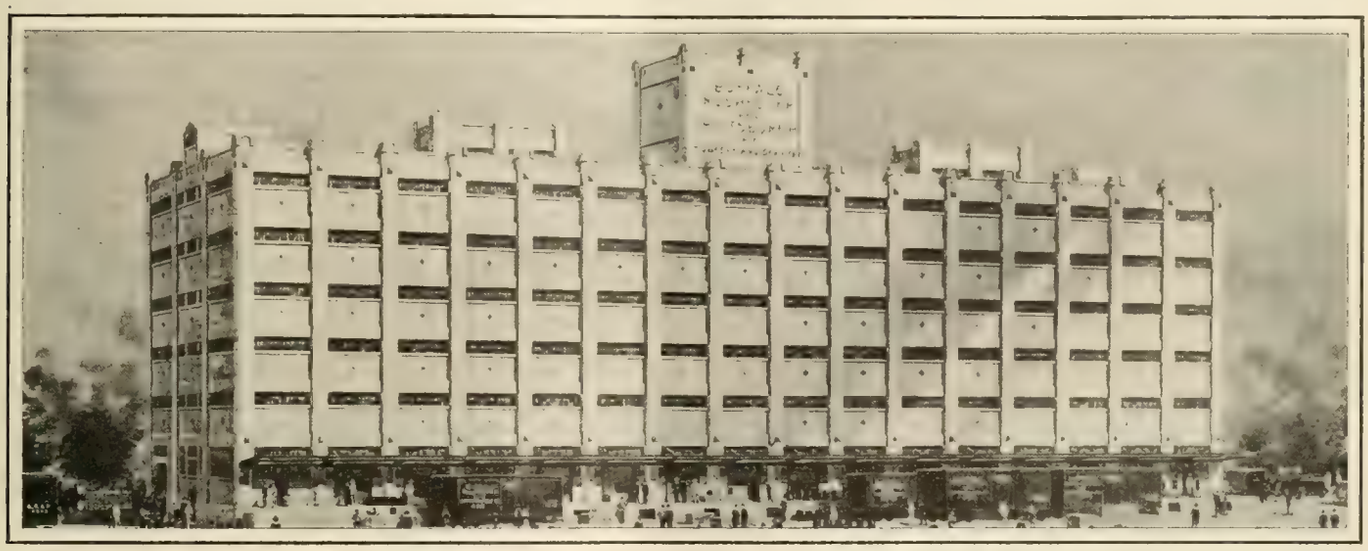
The cost-of-living problem, together with keen competition, has forced many minds to think of ways and means to reduce unnecessary living expenses, and so William T. Noonan, president of the Buffalo, Rochester & Pittsburgh Railway Company, made a study of the problem, and came to the conclusion that a storage warehouse in conjunction with his railroad would be a proper solution, not only for reducing the cost of handling the freight, but also decreasing the time consumed, and would produce also an all around greater efficiency for the merchants of Rochester as well as in connection with his own road.

The warehouse itself was planned by Maynicke & Franke, architects, 25 East 26th street, Manhattan, with a view to the economic and expeditious handling of freight, and also to erect such a building that the fire hazard would be materially lessened and insurance rates reduced to a minimum. The freight cars are brought along one side of the building where the freight is handled on a 12-foot wide platform.

If the freight is intended for storage, it is hoisted up on one of the large elevators near the center of the building and distributed on the various floors. If, on the other hand, some of it is to be stored and part is to be taken immediately by the merchant, that portion continues across the first story from the railroad car platform to a driveway, at which there is a loading platform for trucks. This driveway is so arranged that each truck will be automatically spaced from its neighbor at a convenient working distance by having the columns of the building between the trucks. In the space between the columns there is more than sufficient room for one wagon, but not enough for two. This prevents congestion of freight on the loading platform.

There is sufficient room for ten trucks, and space in front of the trucks for a clear driveway from one end of the building to the other; and it is so planned that the traffic may be all in one direction—that is, the trucks can enter on one side, take on their load, and depart either in the middle or at the other end of the structure. In order to economize in the handling of freight, there are four elevators, two of which are large and two smaller ones. The smaller ones are intended to make trips for small loads, as it is not economical to run a large elevator with a small load.

The elevators are located in relation to the floor, with the main aisle extending along the length of the building coming in front of the elevators, and also allowing a certain space in front of the elevators on each floor, so as not to interrupt the main aisle by hand trucks or goods to be taken on the elevators. At each end of the main aisle there is a staircase with a door centering with the main aisle. All of this is done so that the aisle will be one straight run without any turns.



Windows have been kept high off the floor so that goods may be stacked against the outside wall without danger of breaking the windows.

Warehouse and factory buildings are so often built without any regard to pleasing appearance, Mr. Noonan agreed with the architects that there was no reason why a warehouse should have the usual repulsive appearance; and, although there was to be no unnecessary ornamentation, the building was to be designed with some regard to a pleasing exterior; and even though plain, it will have very good lines. The usual unsightly sprinkler tank which is seen extending in awkward fashion above the roofs of the factories and warehouses all over the land has been enclosed in a tower, which converts it into an artistic feature.

All the modern improvements will be provided, including fire doors, steel windows, sprinklers and intercommunicating telephones, and details of construction and finish have been carefully studied with a view to the substantial and solid, to stand any amount of wear and tear.

It is not always customary in erecting a building to provide for future expansion, but in this particular case the problem of future expansion has been taken into consideration, and provision has been made for adding two new buildings, one after the other, as the business warrants.

The size of the building is 270 feet long and 70 feet wide, which is of proper economic width for handling and storing freight, with one aisle through the center of the building.

How to Become an Engineer.

This is a hard year for the new engineering graduate. Jobs in engineering work are few and hard to get, notwithstanding that the schools which send candidates into the world are many. Five thousand is a conservative estimate of the number annually graduated from first-class technical schools and universities, and about fifteen hundred more come to us every year from the other side of the ocean. Yet for years there has been an erroneous impression that the demand for engineering talent cannot be supplied.

Graduation from a technical school does not make an engineer. The graduate has a better chance of becoming an engineer than the other fellow, but that is all that can be said. It is so in every walk in life. It depends upon the man. In answer to a youth just released from an engineering school, who wrote to enquire how he could get in communication with someone who could tell him of opportunities for employment in the West, the Engineering News makes these remarks:

"There is not a contractor, railway or other corporation, or individual, who would not employ an able-bodied American college man in preference to a foreign 'rough-neck,' if the college man were willing to roll up his sleeves and get to work. Such a job isn't inviting, but it offers experience that can be gained in no other way; it offers an apportunity to get into contact with construction work and with engineers, and without these no man ever yet progressed very far as an engineer.

"We don't say 'Go West, young man.' If a certain item in a Western contemporary be correct, no less than 2,000 applications for positions were received for work on the proposed Hetch Hetchy Reservoir of the city of San Francisco. Evidently, the West offers no more and no better opportunities than the East, except that in the West there is a more democratic attitude toward work in general.

"However, there are opportunities in both the East and West for men who are strong enough in body and purpose to handle a pick and shovel, run a dinky, a steam shovel, a concrete mixer, work with a hammer and saw, and a thousand and one other jobs, which the average engineering graduate turns up his nose at. These jobs are not inviting, truly, but they offer a means of earning a livelihood and they offer one way to enter the ranks of engineers; a way that many a bright, clever and ambitious fellow has made use of before now."

REMARKABLE ACTIVITY.

The Prediction of the Bronx Superintendent of Buildings—Thirty Years' Record.

BUILDERS and investors are extremely optimistic for the future of the Borough of the Bronx, and claim that a healthy improvement in building conditions will be inaugurated shortly that will culminate in one of the most remarkable periods of building activity that the borough has ever experienced. Their optimism is based principally upon the fact that there are many miles of new subways and elevated railroad extensions in course of construction, which, when completed and in operation, will open up and develop all the outlying sections of the borough, and thus immeasurably widen the scope of building possibilities.

It might be interesting to cite the record of new building operations in the Bronx, filed in the past ten years, as compared with the two previous decades as illustrated in the following table:

NEW BUILDINGS IN THIRTY YEARS.

Number of New Buildings Erected in the Borough of the Bronx, with Their Estimated Cost.

| Years. | No. of Buildings. | Estimated Cost. |
|---|---|---|
| 1884 to 1893..... | 7,652 | $36,707,278 |
| 1894 to 1903..... | 13,619 | 103,306,244 |
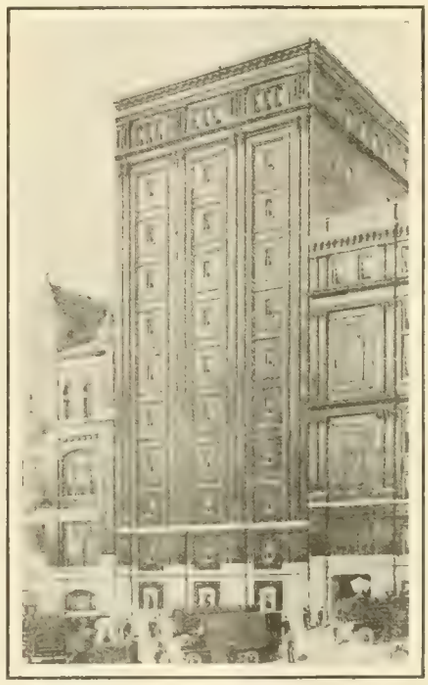
| Total, 30 years..... | 39,299 | $433,554,755 |

Thus, the cost of new buildings constructed during the last decade was $293,541,233, or nearly 70 per cent. of the total cost for the thirty years incorporated in the table. The claim is naturally made that the improvements in transit facilities which were promulgated during that period were accountable in the main for this remarkable showing. The future prospects for the Bronx, therefore, are decidedly bright, particularly when we consider that excluding the Westchester and Boston railroad, only 3.61 miles of new transit lines (the present subway and elevated railroad to West Farms) were constructed during the past ten years, whereas twenty-four miles of new lines and extensions to present routes are now in actual course of construction or have been contracted for, and at the rate that the work of construction is progressing, all indications point to the completion of the various lines before the expiration of the time limits.

A comparative table of building operations during the years 1910 to 1913, inclusive, in the various boroughs in New York City has been prepared, showing: (a) Population in each borough, (b) Building operations in the four years cited, (c) Percentage of population in each borough, (d) Percentage of building operations in each borough. A study of this table is invited, which I am confident will be both interesting and instructive.

NEW BUILDINGS, 1910, 1911, 1912, 1913, ALL BOROUGHS.

| Borough. | Population. | Building Operations, 1910-1913. | Per cent. of Population. | Per cent. of Bldg. Operations. |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| Manhattan .... | 2,508,606 | $387,536,124 | 45.4 | 52.8 |
| Brooklyn ..... | 1,916,655 | 134,603,438 | 34.4 | 18.6 |
| Bronx ..... | 611,980 | 121,588,354 | 11.5 | 16.8 |
| Queens ..... | 387,444 | 71,520,089 | [illegible] | 10.2 |
| Richmond ..... | 99,186 | 11,849,625 | 1.7 | 1.6 |
| New York City.. | 5,583,871 | $728,097,630 | 100.0 | 100.0 |



Thus, the Borough of the Bronx, with 11½ per cent. of the population of New York City, contributed nearly 17 per cent. of the building operations during the four years cited which, proportionately, is a much larger percentage than is shown by Manhattan or Queens. Brooklyn, with over 34 per cent. of the city population, or triple that of the Bronx, contributed only 18.6 per cent. of the operations, which, as compared with the operations in New York City, exceed those of the Bronx by less than 2 per cent.

Superintendent of Buildings,
Borough of the Bronx.

NEW BREWERY PROJECT.

Structure for Jacob Ruppert Will be of Most Modern Construction.

THE new brewery building for Jacob Ruppert, in 92d street, 100 feet east of Third avenue, will be eleven stories high, having a frontage of 75 feet and a depth of 115 feet. It will contain glass-lined steel tanks, six on one floor, each ten feet in diameter and 100 feet long, designed to contain in all about 100,000 barrels of beer. On the top floor there will be a small experimental brewery, with commodious laboratories, all lined with white sanitary tile. All the walls will be lined with four inches of compressed cork slabs, to keep out the heat, and all the floors will be of asphalt, so that they can be thoroughly washed. The first story of the facade will be of polished granite, and the rest of the building of red brick and terra cotta, to match the adjoining structure, recently erected by Mr. Ruppert, Maynicke & Franke, the architects, of 25 East 26th street, state that the building will be completed in the spring.

Procedure in Filing Plans.

In answer to a question as to the proper procedure for architects when filing plans for factory buildings under the present laws, Superintendent Ludwig, of the Manhattan Bureau of Buildings, said:

"So far as the construction of factory buildings is concerned, the jurisdiction still remains with the Bureau of Buildings, and it is still its duty to examine the plans and inspect the construction of new buildings and alterations of old.

"The usual procedure for an architect is to file, as in the past, his application, in triplicate, with the necessary plans, and in addition, two sets of plans are to be filed with the State Labor Department, who will examine such matters as come within its jurisdiction. The State Labor Department, after approval of the plans, forwards at once an approved set of the plans to the Bureau of Buildings, which is filed with the drawings already on file, and which becomes a part of the records of this bureau."

Westchester County Penitentiary.

The Board of Supervisors of Westchester County, E. P. Barrett, chairman, 2 Grand street, White Plains, contemplates the erection of a $400,000 penitentiary to be used as a county jail and workhouse. The building will be erected somewhere in Westchester County. E. A. Forsythe, of Yonkers; D. Hickey, of Mt. Vernon; John F. Jenkins, of Ossining and Mr. Goss, of New Rochelle, have just been appointed a committee to select the building site. No plans have yet been considered and the selection of an architect has not been made.

New Apartment Hotel.

HERMAN LEE MEADER, architect, 178 Fifth avenue, has been retained by the Palmer Realty Co., 68 William street, Leslie R. Palmer, president, to prepare plans and specifications for a modern twelve-story apartment hotel to be erected at 337-339 West 96th street, and 240 Riverside Drive. The structure will be of brick and limestone and will cover a plot 106x50 feet. It is estimated that the operation will call for an expenditure of about $200,000.

Fireproof Factory in 91st Street.

William E. Cunningham, contractor, of 438 East 91st street, is having plans prepared by John P. Boyland, Fordham road and Webster avenue, for a six-story, fireproof, brick factory, 50 x 95 feet, to be erected in the east side of 91st street, 150 feet east of First avenue. The name of the lessee will be announced later.

Mrs. Vanderbilt Awards Contract.

John R. Hill, of Westbury, Long Island, was awarded the general contract this week to erect the new residence at Westbury, for Mrs. W. K. Vanderbilt, Jr., of 666 Fifth avenue, Manhattan. According to plans prepared by John R. Pope, 527 Fifth avenue, the building will be three stories, 35 x 75 feet, of frame and stucco construction, and cost $60,000.

NO ARCHITECTS SELECTED.

In this department is published advance information regarding building projects where architects have not as yet been selected.

MANHATTAN.—The Alliance Realty Co., 1151 Broadway, William H. Chesebrough, president, contemplates making alterations and additions to the store and office building at 70-76 Trinity Place. The work will consist of adding 7 stories. No architect selected.

MANHATTAN.—Pasquale Margarella, 69 Varick st, contemplates alterations to the store and loft building at 477-481 Broome st. No architect selected.

BROOKLYN, N. Y.—John E. Henry, Inc., 1251 Bedford av, contemplates the erection of a 4-sty apartment at the southeast corner of Clarendon rd and East 23d st. No architect selected.

BROOKLYN.—McAllister Dry Dock & Ship Building Co., on premises, and 24 State st, Manhattan, contemplates rebuilding the plant, including four buildings in Kent st. No architect selected.

MANHATTAN.—Bids will close about Dec. 21 for the 2-sty brick and stone clubhouse at 147 Thompson st, for the Franciscan Monastery, 151 Thompson st. Francis A. Noreis, 552 Rugby rd, Brooklyn, architect. Cost, about $20,000.

BRONX.—The Congregation of Mt. Sinai, care of Rev. Dr. Max Reisher, rabbi, Simpson st, contemplates the erection of a brick and stone synagogue in the north side of 163d st, 114 ft. from Stebbins av. An architect will probably be selected about January 14.

HOWARD, N. Y.—Burt Bennett, Howard, contemplates rebuilding the 1-sty frame and concrete barn near Canisteo, N. Y. No architect selected.

LOCKPORT, N. Y.—The Second Christian Science Church, care of Miss Siedhoff, 123 Erie st, is receiving competitive sketches for a $25,000 Church on East av, near Elm st. No architect selected.

UTICA, N. Y.—Henry Lux and Arthur J. Lux, proprietors of the Alhambra Theatre, 108 Bleecker st, contemplate the erection of a brick moving picture theatre at Park av and Genesee st, Oneida Square. No architect selected.

HARTSDALE, N. Y.—R. C. Coleman, 30 Church st, Manhattan, contemplates the erection of a residence at the corner of Walworth and Greenacres avs, to cost about $12,000. No architect selected.

LOCKPORT, N. Y.—The Masonic Temple Association, F. & A. M., Masonic Hall, Cottage and Main sts, will be ready to receive competitive sketches soon after January 1 for the clubhouse at 23 East av. Cost, about $30,000.

OLEAN, N. Y.—Jaekle Bros., 323 North Utica st, Olean, contemplate the erection of a 3-sty paving brick livery stable, 75x100 ft., on Whitney av, near North Union st, to cost between $15,000 and $20,000.

BUFFALO, N. Y.—Robert W. Pomeroy, Fidelity Building, contemplates the erection of a store and office building at the northwest corner of Main and Utica sts. No architect selected.

FARMERSVILLE, N. Y.—The Farmersville Mfg. Co. contemplates rebuilding the manufacturing plant destroyed by fire. No architect selected.

TUCKAHOE, N. Y.—The Rescue Hook & Ladder Co., Geo. Evans, trustee, contemplates the erection of a 2-sty brick fire house here to cost about $10,000. No architect selected.

RIDGEWOOD, N. J.—Board of Education of Ridgewood, Dr. H. S. Willard, president, contemplates the erection of a high school building on Ridgewood av, to cost about $250,000. No architect selected. Appropriation will be voted upon at the spring meeting.

PLANS FIGURING.

APARTMENTS, FLATS AND TENEMENTS.

MONTCLAIR, N. J.—Henry Abrams, 37 North Willow st, owner, is taking bids on general contract for a 3-sty store and apartment house on Bloomfield av, from plans by Jacob Cohn, 45 State st, Bloomfield, N. J. Cost, about $30,000.

LONG ISLAND CITY.—Nicholas Nehrhauer, 581 9th av, owner, is taking bids on subs for a 5-sty apartment, 54x77 ft, at 580 9th av, from plans by Frank Braun, 585 9th av. Cost, about $60,000.

MANHATTAN.—The Aldus Construction Co., Inc., Jacob S. Kahn, 600 West 181st st, contemplates the erection of a 5-sty apartment on the north side of Vermilyea av, Isham to 211th sts, to cost about $100,000.

CHURCHES.

ELMHURST, L. I.—Plans are being figured for alterations to the brick and stone church corner Queens Boulevard and Weimer st for the 1st Presbyterian Church of Newton, L. I. Frank A. Collins, 24 Locust st, Flushing, architect.

BROOKLYN.—McDermott & Hanigan, Inc., 103 Park av, Manhattan, are figuring the contract for the church in the east side of Duffield st, 125 ft. south of Myrtle av, for the Concord Baptist Church. H. C. Pelton, 8 West 38th st, architect.

DWELLINGS.

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y.—Alfred Hopkins, 101 Park av, Manhattan, architect, is taking bids on general contract for alterations and additions to the 2½-sty frame and stucco residence at Prospect Park for L. Arthur Cushman, New York av, White Plains. Cost, about $40,000.

HILLSIDE, L. I.—Frank A. Sinnott, 1328 Broadway, Manhattan, architect, is taking bids for a 2½-sty hollow tile and stucco residence, 32x49 ft., for R. O. Campion, care of architect. Cost, about $15,000.

FACTORIES AND WAREHOUSES.

MANHATTAN.—Chas. M. Rosenthal, 160 Broadway, owner, is taking bids on general contract for a 1 and 2-sty studio and film factory at 229-237 West 146th st, from plans by Benjamin W. Levitan, 20 West 31st st. United Motion Picture Products Co., Inc., 1476 Broadway, lessee. Cost, about $35,000.

HALLS AND CLUBS.

MANHATTAN.—Louis E. Jallade, 37 Liberty st, architect, is taking bids on excavating and steel plans will be completed about Jan. 6 for the 4-sty Y. M. C. A. building, 134x186 ft., at the southwest corner of Washington av and 161st st, for the Y. M. C. A. of the Bronx, 215 West 23d st. Weiskopf & Eurroughs, 68 William st, steel engineer. Cost, about $225,000.

MANHATTAN.—The Grolier Club, 29 East 32d st, Edward G. Kennedy, president, contemplates the erection of a new club house. No site has been selected. An architect will probably be considered late in January.

HOSPITALS AND ASYLUMS.

NEWARK, N. J.—Additonal figures are being received for alterations and additions to the hospital, ward building and morgue in Camden st for the Common Council of the city of Newark. H. V. & J. J. King, Union Building, Newark, architects. Cost, about $70,000.

SCHOOLS AND COLLEGES.

MANHASSET, L. I.—Bids will be received by the Board of Education, C. M. Neisley, president, Manhasset, until 7.30 p. m., January 8, for the construction of a school here, from plans by Frederick H. Briggs, Plandome, L. I.

NORTH BERGEN, N. J.—The Board of Education of North Bergen, Chas. Miller, president, is taking bids on separate contracts to close December 22d for rebuilding the 3-sty brick School No. 5 at Smith and Roberts sts, from plans by Fred Hensel, 809 Savoye st, West Hoboken, N. J. Cost, about $130,000.

BRONX.—Bids will close December 21 at 3 P. M. for the 5-sty school on the west side of Intervale av, from Chisholm to Freeman sts, for the City of New York. C. B. J. Snyder, corner of Park av and 59th st. Cost, about $320,000.

BRONX.—McDermott & Hanigan, Inc., 103 Park av, Manhattan, are figuring the contract for the parochial school at 2506 Marion av, for the Church of Our Lady of Mercy. J. V. Van Pelt, 381 4th av, Manhattan, architect.

STORES AND APARTMENTS.

MANHATTAN.—James Anderson Hawes, 30 Broad st, contemplates making alterations to the residence at 812 Madison av for store and apartment house purposes.

STORES, OFFICES AND LOFTS.

BROADWAY.—Maynicke & Franke, 25 East 26th st, will be ready for bids about Feb. 1 for the 16-sty store and loft building, 105x51 ft., at the northeast corner of Broadway and 26th st, for the estate of Frederick Ayer, 141 Milk st, Boston, Mass., to cost $600,000.

LONG ISLAND CITY.—J. S. Graham, 780 St. Johns pl, Brooklyn, owner, is taking bids for a 1-sty brick shop, 50x100 ft., at the northeast corner of Ridge st and Sherman st, from plans by Frank Braun, 585 9th av, L. I. City. J. Kleine Steel & Iron Works, 82 Broadway, L. I. City, lessee. Cost, about $10,000.

THEATRES.

MANHATTAN.—Thomas W. Lamb, 644 8th av, architect, is taking bids on general contract for alterations to the garage 2182-2186 Broadway, for a moving picture theatre with stores for the Coe Estate, 69 Wall st, Continental Motion Picture Co., Louis F. Van Riper, care of architect, lessee. Cost, about $15,000.

MISCELLANEOUS.

RIDGEWOOD, L. I.—The Libman Contracting Co., 126 West 46th st, is figuring the general contract for the destruction plant on the north side of Flushing av, 135 ft. north of Metropolitan av, also for the stable and section house, from plans by Hans Liebau, and desires bids on subs by Dec. 21.

CONTEMPLATED CONSTRUCTION.

Manhattan.

APARTMENTS, FLATS AND TENEMENTS.

RIVERSIDE DRIVE.—Schwartz & Gross, 347 5th av, have completed plans for the 6-sty apartment, 162x214 ft., at the northeast corner of 181st st and Riverside Drive, for the Miami Realty Co., Daniel W. O'Neil, president, 40 East 22d st, owner and builder. Cost, about $210,000.

190TH ST.—Neville & Bagge, 217 West 125th st, have completed plans for the 6-sty apartment at the northeast corner of 190th st and St. Nicholas av, for Stephen J. Egan, 802 West 181st st. Cost, about $125,000.

CHURCHES.

104TH ST.—Morris Schwartz, 194 Bowery, is preparing sketches for converting the 3-sty brick residence 51 West 104th st into a synagogue, to cost about $8,000. Owner's name for the present withheld.

HOSPITALS AND ASYLUMS.

16TH ST.—Plans have been completed for the 7-sty reinforced concrete and stucco staff house, 75x100 ft., at the Willard Parker Hospital, foot of East 16th st, for the Department of Health, W. E. Austin, 46 West 24th st, architect. C. E. Knox, 101 Park av, electrical engineer. Cost, about $260,000.

STORES, OFFICES AND LOFTS.

5TH AV.—Harry C. Hallenbeck, care of Hallenbeck-Wynkoop-Crawford Co., 497 Pearl st, contemplates remodeling the 7-sty loft building at 208 5th av. Architect's name for the present withheld.

WALL ST.—York & Sawyer, 50 East 41st st, will start plans about January 7 for the Assay Building in Wall st for the U. S. Government, Treasury Department, Washington, D. C. Oscar Wenderoth, Washington, D. C., supervising architect.

THEATRES.

"* * * * the Best Light I Ever Saw!"

That's the remark made the other day by Mr. Connelly of the Franklin Simon organization, referring to the excellent illumination now obtaining in the recent addition to their store at 414-420 Fifth Avenue

His remark is made doubly interesting since Edison Service is supplying the current

After January 1st, the Central Station will fill every service demand in this entire establishment—even to operating its tube-carrier system.

Perhaps you are pondering over a light and power problem all your own. Why not let our Engineering Bureau demonstrate the safety and economy of Edison Service?

The architects who have been invited to submit designs are: Charles Hart, Lewis Inglee, Amityville; Frank Schaefer, Huntington; Nathan Myers, Sayville; C. A. Rich, Bellport; Tooker, Marsh & Co., Hewitt & Bottomley, Ford, Butler & Oliver, T. Markoe Robertson, Scopes & Feustmann and Adolph Mertin of New York City.

OBITUARY

JAMES B. ADAMS, a retired general contractor, died after a two months' illness of Bright's disease at his home 1150 Mary st., Elizabeth, N. J., Monday, December 14. He is survived by his widow and four children.

CHARLES W. RUBY, a retired builder of fire apparatus, died of a complication of diseases, at his home, 84 Hooper st, Brooklyn, Sunday, December 13. He was sixty years of age and is survived by his widow and a son.

THOMAS K. SCHERMERHORN, a retired builder and a descendant of one of the oldest Brooklyn families, died of general debility at his home, 65 Pineapple st, Brooklyn, Saturday, December 12. Mr. Schermerhorn was eighty-two years old.

COL. HENRY B. LESTER, widely known as a general contractor and builder, died of Bright's disease at his home in Plainfield, Conn., Tuesday, December 15. Col. Lester was born eighty-four years ago and was a veteran of the Civil War.

CHARLES PARKER, civil and mining engineer, died at his home, 72 Morris st., Yonkers, N. Y., Wednesday, December 16. He was born in Inverness, Scotland, fifty-four years ago, and was a graduate of Leeds College in England and College of Pharmacy of Columbia University.

LOUIS A. POST, a retired general contractor of 16 Gould av, Caldwell, N. J., died of pneumonia in the Mountainside Hospital, Montclair, Thursday, December 10. Mr. Post was born in Montclair seventy-four years ago, but had lived in Caldwell practically all of his life. He is survived by his widow and a daughter.

CHARLES HERCULES RUTAN, of the firm of Shepley, Rutan & Coolidge, architects, with offices in Boston and Chicago, died of a complication of diseases at Brookline, Mass., Thursday, Dec. 17. He was a member of the Boston Society of Architects, the American Institute of Architects, and was a trustee of the Constantinople College. Mr. Rutan is survived by his widow and two daughters.

HENRY SELBY HAYWARD, consulting engineer of the floating equipment lines of the Pennsylvania Railroad, at Augusta, Ga., from a paralytic stroke Monday, Dec. 14. Mr. Hayward was born in Brooklyn and had been in the service of the Pennsylvania Railroad forty-one years, beginning as machinist and rising to superintendent of motive power of the New Jersey division in 1882, which position he held until 1912, when he was appointed consulting engineer. He was seventy years old and is survived by his widow, four sons and two daughters.

COLONEL EDWARD DANIEL MEIER, late president of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers, and one of the most eminent mechanical engineers of the country, died of hardening of the arteries and heart disease at the home of his daughter, Mrs. William Schevill, 44 West 77th st., New York City, Tuesday, December 15. Colonel Meier was born in St. Louis, Mo., May 30, 1841, and was educated at Washington University and the Royal Polytechnic College in Hanover, Germany. He was a veteran of the Civil War, after the close of which he became associated with the Kansas Pacific Railway as assistant superintendent of machinery. He resigned in 1870 to become chief engineer of the Illinois Patent Coke Co., which he left in 1872 to assume the secretaryship of the Meier Iron Co. and to build its blast furnaces. From 1873 to 1875 he directed the machinery department of the St. Louis Interstate Fair and was associated with the St. Louis Cotton Factory and the Peper Hydraulic Cotton Press, designing machinery for compressing cotton for both concerns. In 1884 he organized the Heine Safety Boiler Company for the development in the United States of the water tube boiler of that name, and was president and chief engineer of the company until his death. Colonel Meier was also responsible for the introduction of the Deisel Motor into the United States and up to 1908 was engineer in chief and treasurer of the American Deisel Engine Company. Colonel Meier was particularly active in military affairs, having served for about ten years in the Missouri National Guard, and was active in a number of professional organizations, including the St. Louis Engineers' Club, the American Boiler Manufacturers' Association, Machinery and Metal Trades Association, being president of the latter organization since 1908. While secretary of the American Boiler Manufacturers' Association Colonel Meier drew up the Uniform Boiler Specifications of 1908. In the American Society of Mechanical Engineers, Colonel Meier has taken an active part, serving on many committees as well as having been the former president, vice-president and member of the board of managers. Probably one of the most important of Colonel Meier's achievements in the engineering field was the design and installation of 10,000 horse power of boilers in the power house of the new Grand Central Terminal.

Uses of Tungsten.

Tungsten is used principally as an alloy of high-speed steel—that is steel used in making tools used in metal-turning lathes running at high speed—to which it imparts the property of holding temper at higher temperature than carbon steels will, according to the United States Geological Survey. The now well-known ductile tungsten is used for incandescent lamps, which are fast displacing carbon lamps. Recently greatly improved lamps, in which the wire is wound in helices and in which the globes are filled with nitrogen, have produced a close approach to white light. These lamps are furnished in candle powers up to 2,000. Ductile tungsten is practically insoluble in all the common acids; its melting point is higher than that of any other metal, its tensile strength exceeds that of iron and niekel, it is paramagnetic, it can be drawn to smaller sizes than any other metal (0.0002 inch in diameter), and its specific gravity is 70 per cent. higher than that of lead.

BUILDING MATERIALS AND SUPPLIES

FINAL RECOVERY OF FINANCIAL SITUATION LOOKED FOR FOLLOWING FAVORABLE FREIGHT RATE DECISION

Edison Plant Fire Opens Big Market to Local Distributors

FURTHER hope for decided improvement in building construction and general business conditions came late yesterday when it was announced that the Interstate Commerce Commission had granted the 5 per cent freight rate increase to all railroads east of the Mississippi. There doubtess would have been some improvement in the building situation after the first of the year, even without this impetus, but now it seems certain that railroads will begin to release deferred equipment orders and start money in circulation and reopen factories. Investment money should be easier at once in the opinion of big lending interests. News of the decision came at an opportune moment, when money is flowing into retail channels freely and the stock market is getting into a normal swing. There seems to be more cause for genuine optimism in the trade today than there has been at any time this year.

As the year closes there are signs that the building material trade looks for a change for the better. Even now there is some stiffening in prices. There is not quite so much cement being sold at the lower prices. Crushed stone is being well taken, and Raritan common brick is stiffly held at $6. Hudson brick prices fluctuate according to quantity, covered brick having been sold in this market in attractive cases at prices somewhat below the $6 list quotation.

The trade was rather thrilled at the prospects of big orders coming out of the Edison plant. Rough estimates indicate that something like 30,000 barrels of Edison Portland cement will be used in the reconstruction work, about 500,000 common brick, 5,000 cubic yards of sand, 20,000 cubic yards of crushed stone and a large quantity of hydrated lime. Many tons of reinforcement bars are also to be included in the item, as well as considerable structural steel.

These estimates are only tentative because nothing definite has been decided upon yet, according to the Moyer Engineering and Construction Company, of Brooklyn, which is to have the contract for the work of rebuilding the plant. Plans are being worked out in the rough, but so far nothing definite has been decided upon. The plant has leased the factory of the Ellis Typewriting Machine Company, and according to W. S. Mallory, of the Edison Portland Cement Company, phonograph records will be in process of manufacture again in three weeks.

"As for the buildings themselves," said Mr. Mallory, "close inspection shows that the concrete buildings are salvagable between 87½ and 90 per cent. Failures only occurred where heavy overloads of castings or other material caused the floor to sink when the awful heat reached the reinforcement bars. Rebuilding probably will start at once, as it is Mr. Edison's intention to not only make his plant compact, but as modern as possible. The only criticism I have heard him make in all this confusion was that the fire was a bad Christmas present to everybody but building material men."

Building money on engagements for construction into the second, third and fourth quarters of 1915 is said to be freer, although the big lending companies are still conservative, on the ground that there are so many operations that have been held up during the last half of this year that these probably will take precedence over new projects. There are types of buildings and construction projects that are being financed, but these are mainly of commercial and public utility types, such as the Public Service terminal in Newark, manufacturers stores and display buildings. There is a slight movement in well worked out theatre operations in the Long Acre square section, but financiers are not enthusiastic about downtown office building projects, mid-town loft building enterprises nor in upper Manhattan apartment plans. Money is flowing rather more freely into suburban residence construction, but apartment projects are not so numerous except in plan filing.

Plan filing in the five boroughs during the week just closed follows. In the corresponding week last year there were 195 new buildings planned, of an estimated value of $2,484,148.

LINSEED OIL.

Price Advances to 50@51 Cents—Market Firm.

ADVICES from Duluth indicate as the week closes that here has been a slight reaction in the stiff tone that prevailed in the flaxseed market there during the last ten days, but so far as the local market is concerned the quotations are still holding firm at 50 and 51 cents. At Duluth seed prices declined 1½ cents a bushel and there is doubt as to whether the present quotations can be maintained in the face of the moderate demand now prevailing here.

The time is approaching when paint and varnish interests begin to think about supplies for the spring mixed paint demand and the trade seemed to think that if the Duluth situation clears the local linseed oil buyers will begin to come in for stock supplies a little earlier than usual and thus keep the local price where it is.

CONSTRUCTION.

Bradstreets Indicates Building at Extreme Low Stage.

BRADSTREET'S compilation of building statistics for November shows a total projection for building construction of only $40,000,000 and states that it is the lowest point reached in three years for that number of cities. The Bronx is given as the only borough showing an increase from November of last year. The increase there is given as 28.3 per cent. Manhattan lost 56 per cent.; Brooklyn, 30.6. Queens and Richmond are not figured. These conclusions, however, are drawn:

"The total estimated cost of new buildings projected in 133 cities of the United States for November aggregated $40,130,697, a decrease of 15.3 per cent. from October and 13.7 per cent. from November a year ago, which, it might be recalled, showed a decrease of 29 per cent. from November, 1912. As further indicatin gthe widespread character of the declining movement, it might be noted that ninety-four out of 133 cities, or 70 per cent., showed decreases from November last year."

From Record and Guide weekly filing reports up to Dec. 11 it is learned that in all boroughs of New York. 10,544 new buildings were projected as against 9,891 in the same period last year, a gain for 1914 of 642 projections. The estimated value of buildings projected last year however, was $121,781,484, as against $116,870,610 in the same period this year representing a loss in estimated value of $5,110,874.

To indicate what proportion of the buildings went ahead this year as compared with those of last year it might be stated that 149,100,000 more Hudson common brick were sold in this market last year than this.

This would indicate a net decline in brick consumption here for the year of 99,000,000 brick. Considering that all the buildings for which plans were filed did not go ahead this shows the slump in brick consumption to have been comparatively light mainly because purchases have been made from barges as jobs developed and speculation and stacking were negligible quantities.

WIRE ROPE.

Revised Discounts Are 47 and 2½% From Lists Here.

REVISED discounts on wire rope make the current quotations 47 and 2½ per cent. off from list for galvanized, and 55 and 2½ per cent. off for bright at mill. The demand here has been such as to make this change advisable, but it is made subject to change without notice.

PORTLAND CEMENT.

W. S. Mallory Gives Hint of Edison Rebuilding Plans.

W. S. MALLORY, President of the Edison Portland Cement Company, when asked for an expression regarding the significance of the conflagration at the manufacturing establishment of the great inventor this week, said that it did not seem at all conservative for him to even make an approximation of the total quantity of Portland cement that he would be called upon to supply for the reconstruction of the damaged plant.

"Engineers have not yet completed their investigations of the damage to the standing concrete buildings. Two of them have assured Mr. Edison that the concrete structures were not more than 10 to 12½ per cent. damaged. These will not require a large volume of cement in putting them in shape again, but if the plan is carried out, to completely substitute the brick buildings with those of reinforced concrete construction and the buildings are erected on a large scale, the total requirements will be large.

"The first thing being thought out now is how to make arrangements for continuing the various industries. We have taken over the entire Ellis Typewriting plant and will be turning out phonograph records within thirty days. Much of our machinery was saved, in good condition, so that will facilitate matters. In my opinion no material but reinforced concrete could have withstood the terrific heat created by tons of wax, alcohol and other inflammable material used in the manufacture of records.

"The Moyer Engineering and Construction Company of Brooklyn will have the contract for rebuilding the structures and work probably will be started on or about the first of the year."

Estimates made indicate that between 30,000 and 50,000 barrels of Portland cement will go into the new buildings, assuming that the reconstruction is on as large a scale as the ruined buildings were. There is some talk of combining all buildings in one huge concrete structure, but this plan has not been officially vised. About 50,000 cubic yards of sand and 100,000 cubic yards of crushed stone will be needed. The structural steel requirements will run to about 1,500 tons and wire glass and metal window frames will probably find a place in the new buildings.

COMMON BRICK.

Unloading Takes Big Jump Over Last Week's Activity.

UNLOADING of Hudson common brick this week was more active than during the six days previous, but sales at the wholesale docks did not compare with arrivals. One covered bargeload was sold and seven barges went into the covered list. Prices for covered brick are not particularly strong at $6, although there are signs of possible strengthening as the closing of navigation in the Hudson approaches. Some of the inland bays have been frozen in already, thus keeping some barges from making port now until a thaw comes.

REAL ESTATE RECORD AND BUILDERS GUIDE.

LESSONS LEARNED FROM THE EDISON FIRE

Why the Brick Buildings Failed and the Concrete Structures Stood Up—Automatic Equipment Needed

CHIEF KENLON, of the New York fire department, stood in the midst of the ruins of the great Thomas A. Edison plant at West Orange, N. J., the day a representative of the Record and Guide visited the scene and, after making a careful examination of the brick and concrete buildings whose walls are still standing, slowly shook his head and said: "It certainly was a hot fire." In that brief sentence the man who, perhaps better than any other, knows what "hot fires" are, told the whole story of the conflagration that ravaged nineteen buildings, sixteen of which were of fireproof construction.

The chief chemist of the Celluloid Company, of Harrison, N. J., told Thaddeus O. Doane, treasurer of the New Jersey State Fire Chief Engineers' Association and a building construction expert of prominence, that he believed, in certain parts of the burning area, the heat attained a temperature of 10,000 degrees. Chief Kenlon did not reduce his observation to figures, but when he saw on a partially calcined stone windowsill the two masses of fused glass, cast-iron sash weights and steel window bars, he was sure than ever that unusually high temperature prevailed during that fire of December 9. One of the accompanying cuts shows the molten masses, and in the lower right-hand corner may be seen the squared remnant of the window bar. On the extreme left of the cut is a limestone sill that had been reduced almost to the softness of chalk.

With such terriffic heat, it is not surprising that great reinforced concrete columns occasionally spalled, as shown in the other cut. Here the floor above was carrying an overload which was being relieved on the very afternoon that the fire broke out. In this building there were several thousand finished dictating phonograph machines, tons of wax cylinders, packing cases being filled and ready to be shipped, and wax in process of being molded. Not far away was a great quantity of alcohol and other chemicals used in the manufacture of this material. This wax in combustion developed a temperature seldom to be met with, even in factory buildings. and yet Chief Engineer Hutcheson, of the Edison plants, said that had not the firemen turned their streams upon the white hot reinforced concrete columns they probably would have cooled off without damage more than mere surface craizing.

In all the buildings destroyed there was no sprinkler system, no metal framed windows, no wire glass window panes and no fire walls. Absence of these fire preventive features in the buildings has been ascribed as the cause of the rapid spread of the flames once they gained headway. Most of the floors were either of wood or wood over concrete arches, the latter, in practically every case having stood the fearful heat with barely a crack. Here and there some of the girder flanges spalled where the concrete has been laid thinly, but in no case, except where column failure occurred was there evidence of excessive damage to floor spans.

The cut of the brick wall will show that had conditions of construction been equal this material would have come in for its share of encomium as a fire resistive material. Pro-concrete interests have dismissed the subject matter of brick construction with the curt remark that every brick building that the flames visited was left in ruins. But every one of the brick buildings thus devastated carried the floors on the walls, except where they were supported by wooden columns. Most of these buildings carried heavy loads of machinery, or transient material, passing through the plant for manufacture, of one sort or another. When these steel trusses became enrapted in the fierce flames, and the wooden floor columns burned away, the walls were unable to sustain the weight and they fell. It is significant that in each case these walls collapsed inwardly.

The portion of the brick wall, still standing, shows ample evidence of solidity, despite the fact that the heat was sufficient to fuse glass, steel and pig iron and to calcine limestone. The salvage of brick in this part of the plant will run to approximately 55 per cent. The white splashes on the brick surface were pointed out as concrete calcination dust that filled the air and was carried in the form of a soft paste on the fire fighting streams.

Building managers in New York, operators of factories and owners of buildings, who are depending for their fire protection upon hose equipment and numerous water taps, can find a strong moral pointing to the fallacy of dependence upon this system of prevention alone, in the Edison fire. The Edison plant was thus equipped and burned. It is the greatest lesson of all. This is how its inadequacy was proved.

The fire was discovered in the small semi-fireproof building used as a telephone exchange and film inspection room. It was a small frame structure sheathed with corrugated iron. It stood exactly in the center of the great group of buildings comprising the two square blocks occupied exclusively by the Edison industries. The buildings in the group were very close together. The contents of the structure where the fire started were highly inflammable, mostly celluloid. The plant was operated by about 3,000 employees, all of whom were trained in fire drill and fire-fighting tactics.

As soon as the fire was discovered the alarm was sounded. It was just a few minutes before quitting time. Instantly the women rushed into the fire drill and the men took their positions at the hose and pumping stations. They were about ready to form back into line when they realized that this time it was not practice, but actual work that confronted them. One building was emptied of its entire movable contents in twenty-five minutes. Mr. Edison's laboratory was denuded in about half that time by hundreds of women's ready hands, while the men plunged into the fight to save property and their positions.

Before they could fairly get a stream of water into the burning building it was doomed. The manager of the building did not even have time to cross the floor, fifteen feet, to get his coat. The flames had leaped through the adjoining unprotected window glass panes of the giant concrete building, and in a few minutes it was ablaze from basement to roof. Then other buildings took fire, one after the other, and the fire-fighters could do nothing but retreat before the awful blast, leaving the fire plugs wide open. Only one man failed to give way to the flames. He tripped as the first hot flash swept over the company fire brigade. He was incinerated almost instantly. Water turned to steam before it reached the buildings. Then the electrical pumping station took fire and the flames were absolute masters of the plant.

A Great Object Lesson.

Low water pressure, caused by the unchecked flow from the company plugs, hampered the professional fire fighters from West Orange and surrounding cities, and the fire merely burned itself out. The firemen did succeed in saving concrete buildings in Alden street, and also Mr. Edison's brick laboratory building, which, while in the zone of intense heat, was not in the path of the fire at any time.

Ira H. Woolson, of the National Board of Fire Underwriters, and Chief Kenlon were among the 5,000 interested persons who visited the scene of fire. The consensus of opinion obtained from those who have seen the effect of the fire, was that it is not wise to place absolute reliance upon fire hose and water supply that depends for its efficiency upon the human element. Experts agree that it is not a bad plan to put in fire walls of different material than the remainder of the building; that is, an eight or twelve-inch brick wall in a reinforced concrete building, with adequate automatically operating fire doors. Sprinklers should be placed inside and, according to Mr. Doane, automatic water curtain equipment should be placed about the outside of the buildings. Wire glass windows in approved metal frames are another essential in preventing spread of fire, and these doubtless will find an important place in the reconstruction work at the plant which is to go ahead immediately.

The conclusion to be drawn from this fire, is not whether concrete is any better than other type of construction. In the opinion of impartial authorities, the fact that every concrete floor was supported by fire resistive reinforced concrete pillars and columns, while the flooring in the buildings of the other types of buildings were not protected, makes the comparison unsound and the conclusion untenable in unbiased minds. No material, known to man, could have met the terrific heat that featured this fire and remained unscathed. The type of construction followed in the concrete buildings was such as to make total failure impossible. The method employed in the older brick buildings left no alternative but complete collapse under almost any fire condition. The inference to be taken from the yuletide experience of the world's master workman is the need of automatic fire protection. That granted, even a frame building might prove fireproof.

BUILDING CODE ORDINANCES MODIFIED

Queens Left Outside of Suburban Fire Limits—What Safety Devices on Passenger Elevators Will Cost—An Extension of Time

THE Commitee on Buildings reported to the Board of Aldermen at the meeting on Tuesday last two substitute ordinances, one to take the place of No. 1071, regulating Elevators, and the other in place of No. 1073, fixing the Suburban Limits. There are several changes in both of these ordinances, and it is expected that they will be passed by the Board as now presented.

As a result of the criticisms that were made at the public hearing on December 11, and other criticisms and suggestions that have been presented to the committee, the provision permitting Superintendents of Buildings to accept and issue certificates upon inspections made by insurance and casualty companies has been omitted from Section 6; and this omission, together with a slight extension of the time limits within which existing passenger elevators must be equipped with the safety device called for by Section 10, form the most important changes.

There are two changes in the Suburban Limits ordinance, the first being that the builder of a frame house within these limits is allowed to cover 85 per cent. of the width of the lot, instead of 80 per cent. as first proposed, and the second a change or changes in the territory affected. The Limits are made to apply to a larger section of the Bronx, but the Borough of Queens is not now included.

It was made clear at the public hearing that restrictive covenants already cover that portion of Queens that was at all likely to profit by the fixing of these limits, and that the outlying sections were so little developed as to make it practically useless to impose any restrictions at all for some years to come.

Cost of Installing Safety Devices.

Through ex-Superintendent Miller of the Building Committee the Record and Guide has obtained an estimate of the cost of installing devices on passenger elevators that will prevent the moving of the cars while doors are open. Assurances have been given that the cost will be fifteen to twenty-five dollars per opening. There are in the Borough of Manhattan about 10,000 elevators with about 100,000 openings in about 5,600 buildings. At twenty dollars an opening the total cost of the installations would be about $2,000,000 for the property owners of Manhattan.

Distribution of Elevators.

Of the 10,000 passenger elevators in Manhattan, 2,164 are in office buildings, 455 in department stores, 550 in hotels, 2,515 in apartment houses, and over 4,000 in miscellaneous buildings.

In the Bronx there are 151 passenger elevators, in Brooklyn 519, in Queens 80 and in Richmond 35. No account is taken of freight elevators, for the reason that ordinance does not require the special safety devices to be affixed to them.

Manufacturers state that with a general adoption of safety devices the cost might possibly be reduced to $12 per opening. Reginald Pelham Bolton, C. E., stated at the hearing that he understood that a safety device was in use on one of the Subway elevators which cost but $1.60 per opening.

Building Committee's Report.

The report of the Building Committee to the Board of Aldermen in presenting the substitute ordinance for the regulation of elevators contained the following remarks:

"A careful consideration was given to Section 10, providing that all passenger elevators must be equipped with some device that will automatically prevent the car from being moved while the shaft door at which the car is standing is unlocked, and fixing the time within which all existing elevators shall be equipped with such devices. An analysis of the Coroners' records for the years 1907 to 1911, inclusive, shows that there were 251 accidents in connection with elevators which resulted in one or more fatalities. Of these accidents 119 were found to be in connection with passenger elevators. A study of the accidents themselves shows that in 35 per cent. (95 in number) of the accidents the fatalities reported would probably not have resulted if devices of the kind required by this ordinance had been applied."

A list of thirteen devices, some mechanical in operation and some electrical, has been submitted to the committee.

A YEAR OF PROGRESS IN SUBWAY WORK

The City Will Begin to Gather the Fruits of Its Investment in 1915, with the Operation of the Fourth Avenue and Steinway Tunnel Lines.

THE coming twelvemonth will bring to real estate interests some of the fruits of the city's heavy investment for new rapid transit lines under the Dual System. Experience with the Fourth avenue work in Brooklyn and the Steinway Tunnel under the East River should teach the public patience. What seem to be delays in putting these two lines in operation will of necessity be repeated in the case of other grand divisions of the system, as all the constituent sections cannot be finished simultaneously.

Yet the past year has been one of remarkable progress on the part of both the engineers and the contractors. More contracts have been awarded by far during 1914 than during all the preceding three years, and the number of men under employment has been trebled. Primary contracts for tunneling have been completed this year in a number of cases and are being followed up with equipment contracts for station finish, and track installation and track materials.

WHERE THE QUEENS ELEVATED CROSSES THE N Y CONNECTING RAILROAD.

Holing Through New Subway.

The last heading in the express tunnel of the Lexington avenue subway was blasted out on Friday, Dec. 4, between 57th and 58th streets. It is now possible to walk through this tunnel from 53d street to the Harlem River. The blasting was done on Section No. 8, for which the Bradley Contracting Company has the contract. The blast was touched off by Alfred Craven, chief engineer of the Commission, in the presence of several engineers of the Commission's staff and representatives of the company.

Six sections of the Fourth avenue tunnel extending from Manhattan Bridge to 43d street, Brooklyn, have been apparently "completed," for a year or more, but as a matter of fact a great deal remained to be done before the division was ready to carry passengers. Meanwhile, of course, the interest on twenty million dollars, more or less, at four and a half per cent., runs along, and figures in the annual city budget.

Inasmuch as architects and builders in private work have become efficient in saving interest charges, the taxpaying public may be expected to pay close attention to this department of expense during the further progress of the subway work.

The members of the Public Service Commission are unable as yet to fix a date for the running of the first passenger train in the Fourth avenue subway, beyond saying that it will be some time this summer. The line, which is being built by the city, is being extended from its original terminus at 43d street to 89th street. It runs from the Brooklyn end of the Manhattan Bridge through Flatbush avenue extension to Fulton street, and thence as a four-track subway through Fulton street, Ashland place and Fourth avenue to 43d street.

An extra force of workmen has been placed on the stretch between 43d and 65th street, so that a connection can be made as soon as possible with the Sea Beach line. Assistant Chief Engineer Turner says the anxiety of Brooklyn people for the early operation of the Fourth avenue line is fully realized, and the engineering department is doing all it can to end the delay. But one can never tell what emergency may arise to upset plans. A serious phase of the general situation is the litigation over the alien labor question. Stations on the Fourth avenue line will be at Gold street, DeKalb avenue, Pacific street, Union street, 9th street, Prospect avenue, 25th street, 36th street, 45th street, 53d street, 59th street extension, Bay Ridge avenue, 77th street and 86th street. Real estate authorities expect marked real estate activity as soon as trains begin running.

The Steinway Tunnel line will be the second to be put in operation this year. With some changes and improvements finished it will be possible to operate cars through the tunnel as soon as the necessary equipment can be installed. In order to put the tunnel into use, the contracts provide that the Public Service Commission and the company may make an agreement for the temporary operation of the completed portion, with transfers to and from the existing subway at 42d street. The commission and the company have entered into such an agreement, and the necessary reconstruction is now about half done. This line will provide from the outset an expeditious trolley service from all parts of Queens district to the principal traffic center of Manhattan. The section from 42d street, Manhattan, to Davis street, Queens, is 70 per cent. completed, and the section from Davis street to Queensboro Plaza, 33 per cent. done.

Work at Queensboro Bridge Plaza.

The plaza at the east end of Queensboro Bridge will be the junction point of two other lines, the Astoria branch to the north and the Corona branch to the east, both elevated structures. One of the conspicuous landmarks that had to be removed to make way for the superstructure was the flagpole of Shamrock III, which was 160 feet high. The Second avenue or Astoria line, from Beebe avenue to Ditmars avenue, is completed, and the Corona line, in Queens Boulevard and Roosevelt avenue, is 86 per cent. done. The Queensboro Bridge plaza work is about 41 per cent. finished.

The several foregoing routes of the Dual System, together with the third-tracking of certain elevated lines now existing will be the first in operation. Later on the existing elevated lines will be extended.

More than two-thirds of all the work is now under contract. The last monthly progress report showed all but nineteen contracts out of 83 awarded, 19,000 men employed, and $162,000,000 contracted for to date, and monthly disbursements of $2,000,000 per month.

All the lines are to be completed in 1917, and in the meantime there will be a succession of contracts being completed, and of new lines going into operation, with consequent stimulation of realestate, first in one part of the city and then in another, until all will be active in their sales market and in construction affairs.

Condemnation Awards.

The excessive condemnation awards which have been made against the city in recent years, when private property was acquired for municipal purposes, is to be made the subject of an exhaustive investigation by a special committee of the Board of Aldermen composed of Alderman Squiers, chairman, and Messrs. Pendry, Carroll, Chorosh, Kochendorfer, Wendel and Robitzels.

Real Estate Conditions in New York and Other Cities Compared—Why Our Financial Prosperity Ebbed Away—Handicaps on Constructive Enterprise

By WILLIAM E. HARMON

THIS is a question well worthy the careful consideration of the thoughtful student of civic affairs located anywhere in this country, for that which concerns New York City concerns the nation. To us whose business it is to size up the future of real estate over the country, it has been as troublesome as Banquo's ghost; in other words, it is a question that will not stay down. Every consideration of history, location and natural attractiveness seems to indicate that New York must ever keep its place as the wealthiest, largest and most prosperous metropolis of America. But, now and again some ugly fact crops out that compels us to face the problem anew.

As a matter of personal satisfaction, I have decided to set forth certain conditions and tendencies through which New York City is passing. If they are serious enough to endanger our future prosperity, they are certainly serious enough for careful study. If not, no harm will be done.

There is a certain advantage which arises from a detached study of any problem; that is to say, a study where one's own interest is not too seriously involved. The business of developing real estate over the whole of the United States, in any location that seems desirable, would appear to give the members of my firm this detachment to a certain degree, enabling us to make comparisons, and to weigh the significance of such comparisons. . . .

The following remarkable presentation was comprised in an address by Mr. Harmon at a luncheon of the City Club in Brooklyn this week. Mr. Harmon is the head of a firm which is developing real estate in a large way in several cities, and has had exceptional opportunities to observe the forces which favor real estate in other cities and those which have held it back in New York City in recent years. He holds municipal extravagance and the depletion of lending capital responsible for business depression here.

The First Financial Blow.

New York City received its first serious financial blow as a result of the investigations of the insurance companies in 1906 when entirely new methods for the investment of trust funds came into operation, and hundreds of millions that had been used to further New York activities were distributed over the whole country, somewhat in accordance with the premiums received.

The panic of 1907 was unquestionably felt more keenly in New York than elsewhere, and its results have, by no means, as yet passed by, for while money has nominally been cheap, cheap money has only been on loans based on Stock Exchange collateral, which, until the war broke out, were supposed to be instantly convertible into cash. All but a small fraction of the new enterprises of the country have, since 1907, been financed outside of New York.

A Further Restriction.

The Federal Banking Act, in which New York City's financial power has still further been restricted, can be attributed to a set purpose actuating members of Congress from the West and South. The result of this antagonism to New York has been to take away much of our vast business in commercial discounts and banking reserves, limiting our activities in this department to a small section of the East.

These events, happening in fairly close sequence, have made the New York market the most difficult one in the country in which to capitalize enterprises, whereas, ten or fifteen years ago it was the easiest. Mortgages on real estate can be placed more easily in Chicago, St. Louis, Minneapolis or St. Paul than in New York City; in fact, Eastern money can be secured for Minneapolis mortgages more easily than Eastern money can be secured for New York City mortgages, while the funds for all local enterprises in Western cities are far more abundant than in this big city of ours. It would be easy to particularize in making comparisons, but such comparisons should be unnecessary, and might be unpleasant, personal and embarrassing.

Municipal Extravagance.

The most serious handicap to the material welfare of New York City is municipal extravagance. New York City is a spendthrift—a profligate waster of the money of its own citizens. Chicago, with one-half of New York's population, spends only about one-sixth as much tax money. Our municipal operations are conducted with a total disregard to the fact that a day of reckoning will come, and is indeed close at hand.

Some will contend that the mere diversion of the funds from citizens to municipality is not in itself harmful. This may be true if the money taken in taxes were spent for productive purposes, but most of a city's expenditure is non-productive, while most of the surplus of the individual is used to produce things of value; hence, multiplies demand for labor, increases population and wealth. A tax burden of 2 per cent. on the actual value of property will as surely arrest growth and increment as the same result will be produced on the growth of a sugar maple tree from which 50 per cent. of its sap is extracted yearly by its short-sighted owner.

Two per cent. represents 50 per cent. of the average net return on real estate; every increase of 1-10 of 1 per cent. takes 5 per cent. from the income, and hence from the value. No real estate can stand such a drain except it is located in a city growing with abnormal rapidity, or at some point of strategic advantage, such as we have along the lines of the subways in the suburban districts.

Diverting Business from the City.

Let us follow the thought. No real estate owner will construct buildings for investment purposes until the probable yield offsets the tax rate, be it high or low. When such a condition comes about, as exists in New York now, the burden of the cost of living through increased rents, diverts business to cheaper locations, as water finds its own level. The saddest part of this sad case in which New York City finds itself, is, that there seems to be little real grounds for hope of a reformation that will put the city in a healthy condition for growth.

There is no effective civic spirit in New York. This does not mean there are no intensely earnest men in New York—men full of enthusiasm and willing to spend themselves in any worthy public cause, but the very size of New York makes it practically impossible to gather the elements of efficiency together. It is no one's fault; it is a misfortune concomitant upon a cosmopolitan population.

Take a trip to Cleveland and you will find every citizen of consequence thoroughly saturated with faith in his town, ready to back all of its enterprises with his time and his means. Minneapolis has a get-together spirit that makes one appreciate why it is already great, and why its future will be even greater. If Los Angeles had none of her natural advantages to attract population, the blood and iron of her citizens would make her prominent. Chicago is alert for every possible advantage that Chicago can secure, but poor old New York, like a great leviathan on the sands, with enormous power in every part, has no apparent capacity to function its strength for its own salvation, and is a mute witness to the ebbing away of its financial supremacy, and some of its most profitable enterprises.

Prejudiced Against New York.

Whether justified or not, there is a distinct feeling of opposition against New York throughout the West and South. A part of this is the natural result of the competitive spirit; a part of it is due to the fact that New York is the least American of all American cities; where the average native citizen, especially among the wealthier group of men, is out of touch and out of sympathy with the great nation as a whole; in other words, his horizon is bounded, as some one recently expressed it, by the East and North Rivers. This insularity, this feeling of aloofness stirs up resentment, instead of stimulating co-operation, and the Western man, the Western banker, the Western congressman is disposed to block any undertaking that will redound to our prestige and growth.

This, of itself, is a handicap, and when outside indifference is combined with a local disregard of the principles of economics in the administration of our city government, it brings New York up against a serious situation.

Quixotic Laws.

Take the growth of our public debt, and the burden it has placed on this and future generations; take our system of police pensions that, according to experts, is likely to become a serious burden; take the waste in education, both in the schools and teaching staff; take the quixotic requirements of the Tenement House Law. All these are combining to drive from New York its best population.

The fact cannot be gainsaid; business stagnation in New York City cannot be ignored. If it is believed that such matters will rectify themselves, this opinion in the belief of the speaker is not justified. There is no reason why living should be more expensive in New York than in Chicago; there is no natural reason why New York City should not grow as rapidly in the future, as it has in the past, but the artificial handicaps to its growth must be removed.

We must economize by reducing expenses; we must demand a fair day's work for a fair day's pay; we must stop waste; we must modify our confusing and complexing system of inspection; we must concentrate the city's energies to cleaning house within, and to making our city attractive to those without its borders, both as a place to live and to do business. The probabilities are it will not be done, and the probabilities are that New York City will lose ground, not actually but relatively compared to other cities in this country. It is an ugly fact to be faced, but it is better to tell the patient the truth, if the acceptance of the truth makes possible his recovery.

CONFERENCE PLAN FOR CONSOLIDATION

Favors the Borough System of Administration—Sixty Allied Organizations Acting Together to Suppress Evils of Over-regulation

THE Conference Committee of real estate and allied organizations has prepared and forwarded to the State Factory Investigating Commission, of which Lieutenant-Governor Wagner is chairman, its conclusions as to the best manner of consolidating the various departments now having jurisdiction over buildings in New York City, with the object of curing the evils of over-regulation. The Conference has decided in favor of the borough plan as distinct from the plan for one central department with city-wide jurisdiction.

No less than sixty represented bodies unite in this petition, the most formidable array in defence of property interests that the city has ever seen. At the last hearing in this city before the State Factory Investigating Commission, Robert E. Simon, of the Henry Morgenthau Company, presented a memorial from the Conference Committee in favor of an amalgamation of departments, but without specifying a method or plan. The commissioners requested that the Conference Committee should recommend a plan at an early date.

New Functions for Bureaus.

The main feature of this is the continuance and extension of the Bureaus of Buildings and the transfer to them of various functions of inspection.

The plan in detail and the organizations included in the Conference follow:

First: That the Bureaus of Buildings in the different borought, as now constituted, should be continued and their jurisdiction enlarged as hereinafter set forth.

Second: That there should be a transfer of jurisdiction from the various State and city departments to the building bureaus, as hereinafter outlined, viz.:

(a) That of the Bureau of Fire Prevention of the Fire Department, and of the Fire Commissioner, in so far as it pertains to said bureau, except in relation to vessels, portable fire appliances, the investigation of fires and the regulation and issuing of permits for the storage, sale, transportation or use of combustibles, chemicals and explosives. (In this connection the ordinance of the Board of Aldermen of the City of New York, changing Section 762 of the Greater New York Charter, adopted on Dec. 19, 1911, should be amended so that the fire prevention functions thereof are vested in the Bureaus of Buildings, except as above.)

(The survey provisions of the fire prevention law should be repealed, and the power of review given to the Board of Examiners.)

Tenement House Department Included.

(b) Also a transfer of the jurisdiction of the Tenement House Department over the natural lighting, ventilation, construction, alteration and structural changes in buildings.

(c) That of the Police Department over boilers.

(d) That of the Health Department in so far as it relates to structural changes in bakeries, confectioneries and food product manufactories.

(e) That of the Department of Water Supply, Gas and Electricity in so far as it relates to the inspection of electrical wiring and equipment in buildings and electrical signs, but not including the installation, inspection and testings of gas and electrical meters.

(f) That of the Department of Public Works over the construction of sidewalks and sidewalk elevators and the granting of vault and sidewalk permits.

(g) That of the Department of Licenses over the inspection of theatres, dance halls and places of amusement in reference to building construction, alterations, structural changes and exits.

(h) That of the State Department of Labor over exits, fire escapes, elevators, automatic sprinklers, and the construction, alteration and structural changes in all buildings in New York City to which the Labor Law applies.

For a Board of Standards.

Third: There should be a Board of Standards, composed of the Superintendent of Buildings of each borough, with power to make, amend and repeal building rules and regulations for the different boroughs, and the meetings of the Board should be held in the office of the Superintendent of Buildings in the Borough of Manhattan. They should select a chairman from among their number and meet as often as necessary.

Fourth: The Board of Examiners, as now constituted, should be continued and its powers extended so that it may hear appeals from orders issued by the different building bureaus. The right of appeal to the Board of Examiners from orders issued by the building bureaus should be provided for. The organizations now named in the Greater New York Charter might be made more representative.

Fifth: The rules, regulations and findings of the Board of Examiners and the Board of Standards should be published weekly in the City Record.

Sixth: The superintendents of buildings should be given power to enforce the laws which they would be required to enforce.

Seventh: The administration of the bureaus of buildings should be given to the superintendents of buildings as suggested in Title 1, Section 5 of the Tentative Bill of the New York State Factory Investigating Commission, and as now provided in the Greater New York Charter.

Eighth: The transfer of the employees, property, records, appropriations, etc., from the various departments should be provided for.

Organizations Represented in the Conference.

Manhattan—Real Estate Board, Advisory Council of Real Estate Interests, Joint Committee on City Departments, Building Trades Employers Association, Allied Real Estate Interests, United Real Estate Owners Association, Citizens Union, Building Managers Association, Fifth Avenue Association, Harlem Property Owners Association, Merchants Association, Twenty-third Street Improvement Association, Washington Heights Taxpayers Association, Bureau of Municipal Research, Central Mercantile Association, West Side Taxpayers Association, Broadway Association, Forty-second Street Association, Harlem Board of Commerce, 18th and 20th Wards Taxpayers Association, Real Estate Owners of the 12th and 19th Wards, 10th, 11th and 17th Wards Taxpayers Ass'n of New York.

MATERIAL PROGRESS OF THE BRONX

Real Estate Valuations Have Quadrupled Since 1899—The Wide Extension of the Electric Service as an Evidence of Growth

SINCE 1899, the first year after consolidation of the greater city, there has been a remarkable increase in real estate valuations in the Borough of the Bronx. In 1899 the assessed valuation of real estate and special franchises amounted to $123,702,030, and in 1914 to $658,632,013, an increase of $534,929,983, or 432 per cent., which is a much greater percentage than is shown by any other borough.

This enormous gain in valuation has been caused by the many improvements in real estate which were made during that period (over $350,000,000 having been invested in this borough), and the natural increase in land values.

The following table has been prepared to show the increase in all boroughs:

ASSESSED VALUATIONS OF REAL ESTATE AND SPECIAL FRANCHISES.

| Borough. | 1899. | 1914. | P. C. of gain. |
|---|---|---|---|
| Bronx..... | $ 123,702,030 | $ 658,632,013 | 432 |
| Queens..... | 103,751,609 | 488,686,756 | 371 |
| Brooklyn.... | 609,822,267 | 1,671,175,950 | 174 |
| Manhattan.. | 2,054,903,875 | 5,149,250,760 | 151 |
| Richmond... | 40,265,464 | 82,114,453 | 104 |
| N. Y. City.. | 2,932,445,464 | 8,049,859,912 | 175 |

Very interesting evidence of Bronx development may be shown in the growth of electric lighting and telephone service in this borough. Wonderful progress has been made by the New York Edison Company in the field of commercial electricity. The territory covered by this company is practically three-quarters of the Bronx, the remainder being controlled by the Westchester Lighting Company and the Bronx Gas and Electric Company.

The Edison Company, since it succeeded the North River Light and Power Company in 1900, has contributed in no small measure to the development of the borough. Its lines have been extended to every part of the district, which it controls and affords to all the advantages obtainable from the use of the electric current. To better illustrate the remarkable growth of this company, the following table is submitted:

| Year. | Customers. | Used. |
|---|---|---|
| 1900 | 450 | 28,000—50 watt equivalents |
| 1905 | 1,296 | 110,087—50 watt equivalents |
| 1910 | 11,986 | 424,184—50 watt equivalents |
| 1914 | 38,590 | 1,045,000—50 watt equivalents |

EQUIPMENT AND OUTPUT.

| Year. | Street Mains. | Output. |
|---|---|---|
| 1900 | 25 miles | 2,000,000 K.W. hours |

The Growth of the Telephone.

On January 1, 1896, there were exactly 117 telephones in service in the Borough of the Bronx. On January 1, 1906, the number had grown to 5,576, and on January 1, 1914, to 31,748. A table of the number of telephones in service, showing the growth each year from January 1, 1906, to date, follows:

Telephones in Service.

| Date. | Number. | Increase. | Years. | P. C. of Gain. |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| Jan. 1 1906.. | 5,576 | ..... | .. | .. |

"What difference does it make in general prosperity whether the municipal government spends the money or the citizens?" some one asks. It makes a vast difference to the taxpayers.

Chicago, with one-half the population of New York, spends only one-sixth as much tax money. New York wants the best of everything, but it is certain that she oftentimes pays too much for it and buys more than she needs.

Cleveland has within a few years become the third largest manufacturing city in the country for women's wear. If it is true, as stated, that most of the new concerns came from New York, there must be a reason—which may be the over-regulation of factories in this city.

Even urban as well as country real estate is heavily indebted to the automobile for its popularity. A remarkably large number of garages have been built in the Flatbush section of Brooklyn this year. The presence of a small garage on the lot, or room to build one, adds a great deal to the marketability of a dwelling.

Since the beginning of civilization clever men and women have made pleasant positions for themselves by organizing their fellows into societies, committees, leagues and asociations for uplifting purposes. After a little public agitation, a meeting is called, subscriptions are solicited, permanent headquarters opened—and there you are. Frequently they succeed in intrenching themselves, by legislation, into the civil service of the State or municipality, and so derive support from the taxation of the property of others. New York City taxpayers in self defense are at last mobilizing against them.

Omnibus Service Questions.

The newspapers of New York seem wholly incapable of learning certain simple and accepted economic truths. If there is one principle which is acknowledged by practically all economists it is the principle that competition among companies serving the public with the same general ability is either disastrous or wholly ineffective. Public utilities are classified in almost all economic textbooks as natural monopolies, which are not deprived of their essentially monopolistic character by forcing them to compete under wholly artificial conditions. Public Service Commissions all over the country base their treatment of the corporations under their supervision upon the same principle. As a consequence it is finally becoming established in American law as well as in economic practice.

Nevertheless, whenever a question is brought up in this city of treating a public utilities company as a monopoly rather than as a competitive business, a certain number of newspapers always insist upon the alternative of competition. New York only narrowly escaped the inconvenience and the waste of two telephone systems. It narrowly escaped the absurdity of two or three essentially competitive instead of essentially supplementary rapid transit systems, and now the same economic counsellors are insisting that the motor omnibus system should be made essentially competitive. The Franchise Bureau of the Board of Estimate is being severely criticized, because it has laid out a group of omnibus routes which can be operated more conveniently by one rather than several companies.

What, we should like to know, has the traveling public of New York to gain from the attempt to create competition among companies operating different "bus" routes in Manhattan? Can there be any competition in fares? Certainly not. The essential idea upon which the New York omnibus is based is that of a ten-cent fare, in return for which the passenger is assured of a seat. It may be economically possible to operate five-cent omnibus lines, but only in case passengers are allowed to stand up, and in that case an enormous number of "buses" would have to be run and an intolerable congestion of street traffic brought into existence. New York does not need a system of "buses" which competes with its street railroad system. It needs omnibuses which for the most part run along routes which have escaped railroad preemption and which supply the needs of a different class of customers. The Fifth avenue "bus" at present is something more than a trolley and something less than a taxi. As such it is a useful instrument of travel, but it is an instrument which cannot be used outside of certain fixed limits, and one of these limits is the ten-cent fare.

Just as there can be no competition in fares, so there can be no competition in service. If every passenger is to get a seat (and it pays to supply seats to passengers at ten cents a head) the company can be depended on to run as many "buses" as are necessary to accommodate the passengers. The kind of service is just as precisely fixed by the essential conditions under which a "bus" company would operate as is the rate of fare. Neither is any competition desirable between different companies in bidding for new lines. When the routes as already proposed by the Franchise Bureau are operated, Manhattan streets will contain all the "buses" which they can properly accommodate.

If there is nothing to be gained from competition, there is much to be gained from monopoly. As we pointed out last week, a "bus" line in order to reach anything like its full value to the public must enable its passengers to get across as well as up and down Manhattan. The Franchise Bureau has recognized this need by laying out two longitudinal routes—one on the East Side and one on the West Side, and these two long routes are connected by numerous connecting lines on important side streets. In addition, special provision is made for passengers who wish to reach the Pennsylvania Terminal from the upper East Side. If all these lines are operated as one system and transfer freely one to another, they will be an extremely valuable addition to the transit system of Manhattan. But if they are operated under different managements and do not transfer, it is really doubtful whether they are worth while. There are some objections at best to increasing the regular supply of vehicles which use the streets of Manhattan. If the congestion is to be increased, it must be for some very good purpose, and if the proposed "bus" system cannot be brought up to its maximum serviceability it may not be worth while to go ahead at all. The Broadway line is questionable at best, but if its passengers cannot cross to points on the East Side without any extra fare, it had better be abandoned.

The Efficiency of the Interborough.

The Interborough company is getting severely criticized because several accidents have recently taken place on its lines, but so far as we can make out these criticisms are wholly without justification. The accidents depended upon the errors of motormen, against which the management could not have provided. The plain fact is that the Interborough company is carrying in the subway over two and one-half times as many passengers as the subway was intended to accommodate; and it is doing so on the whole with extraordinary efficiency and safety. When one considers the speed of the trains, their quick succession particularly during rush hours, the huge crowds which they accommodate, it is wonderful that the accidents are not more numerous.

The management of a railroad which gets so severely blamed for all the accidents which happen on its line should certainly deserve a fair share of credit for furnishing so many passengers with such an excellent and safe service. The Record and Guide holds no brief for the Interborough company, but a public service corporation which meets adequately so exacting a public responsibility deserves fairer treatment than it receives from the daily papers. In at least two instances New York is extremely well served. People who have used telephones all over the world place the service rendered in New York very high on the list of telephone systems; and there can be no doubt that the subway is unequalled for the excellence and the safety of the means of communication supplied. Of course, the crowding is appalling, but to a large extent it is unavoidable. There are plenty of things to criticize in New York without fastening on companies and officials which do not deserve criticism.

Relative Growth of the Boroughs.

Figures compiled by the Superintendent of Buildings in the Bronx seem to prove that in the four years just ended the population of the Bronx increased 49 per cent., from 431,000 to 642,000. Queens is 36 per cent. larger, Brooklyn 17 per cent., Richmond 15 and Manhattan only 9 per cent. larger than it was four years ago. The figures giving the population for 1910 are from the national census, and those for 1914 are the estimates of the Board of Health. Presuming that the estimates are approximately correct, they prove even more than Superintendent Moorehead has said—that the Bronx is growing more rapidly than any other borough. They prove, first, that more than one-half the population of the city now resides in the outer boroughs. More than that, they prove that three of the boroughs taken together—that is, Brooklyn, Bronx and Queens, contain more people than reside in Manhattan. They can send more men to the polls than Manhattan can. They can out-vote her on any sectional question when they so desire.

Again, the figures show that whereas Brooklyn, with a population of 1,916,000, is growing at the rate of 17 per cent., while Manhattan, with a population of 2,538,000, is growing at the rate of only 9 per cent., it will not be many years before Brooklyn alone will have more residents than Manhattan, and will, in consequence, have a predominating influence in the councils of the government. The things which interest Brooklyn people most will be the things which the city at large will be called upon to give most attention to; and it may be said that even now the representatives of both Brooklyn and the Bronx are decidedly influential in municipal councils.

THE COMMERCIAL PROBLEM IN BUILDINGS.

Very few writers of books have the good fortune or the good sense to write books which deal adequately with a hitherto neglected subject, and when such a book is written and published it deserves more than usually close attention. Mr. Cecil C. Evers' book on "The Commercial Problem in Buildings" does deal with a hitherto neglected subject, and, what is more, it discusses and explains this subject with exact and exhaustive knowledge and with the utmost perspicuity. Mr. Evers has succeeded in saying everything essential that there is to be said about the commercial problem in buildings. People who are interested in the ownership, the improvement, the leasing or the management of improved urban real estate may all have their minds cleared and their information increased by a careful reading of this discussion of a much neglected economic subject matter.

Considering the large number of people all over the United States who are vitally interested in the development and the management of urban real estate, it is extraordinary that so little writing has been done upon the subject. The reason for this neglect is that the people who are practically interested are not the writers of books and have not the time or the inclination to discuss their own occupations. On the other hand, the people who write books on economic topics are interested very much more in economic theory than they are in concrete economic conditions and situations. Even when they do study specific industries, as is often the case, they usually select some form of manufacturing, such as the cotton trade, or some phase of agricultural production. Urban real estate in all its aspects has for some reason been almost ignored by the professional economists. Mr. R. M. Hurd's "Principles of City Land Values" remains almost the only adequate discussion of the conditions which actually determine the price of urban land, and the work which was so well begun eleven years ago by Mr. Hurd is now carried on by Mr. Evers. The latter's book is in a real sense supplementary to the former's. The former explained the conditions which give value to the sites upon which city buildings are erected. The latter deals with the conditions which determine successful building in cities for commercial purposes.

Mr. Evers, like Mr. Hurd, has every reason to know a good deal about urban real estate, because he is professionally engaged in deciding whether certain classes of buildings are likely to be profitable on particular sites. The examples which he uses in order to give point to his assertions are for the most part those which have come under his own observation in New York City and its vicinity. But it must not be supposed that his analysis of the means and conditions of successful building applies only to New York. The principles which he lays down and the methods which he recommends will be as serviceable to the owner and manager of real estate in Boston, Chicago or Seattle as to the New York owner.

The distinguishing quality of the book is its eminent and complete serviceability. It is, properly speaking, a manual for the man who is interested in building houses for commercial purposes of any kind or in any city. The careful reading of the book is almost certain to enable such a man to avoid mistakes and to save money, and a very little exercise of intelligence will help the reader not only to avoid mistakes but to achieve successes and to make money. That is the great value of a careful study of a concrete business condition, such as Mr. Evers has made. It places at the disposal of owners and builders all over the country the fruits of a varied and prolonged experience in watching the success of building operations and of a patient and exact study of the causes of success or failure. The ordinary owner, builder, manager, broker or architect cannot expect to have reaped the benefit from an experience as complete as that of Mr. Evers, and he has not the time to investigate with as much care the meaning of his experience. He needs the results of this wider experience and the more careful study, and for the first time the opportunity of getting it is given to him.

Perhaps the best way to convey an adequate idea of the scope and value of the book will be to enumerate some of the topics which Mr. Evers discusses. The first four chapters are occupied with an examination of the more general aspects of the subject. Mr. Evers dwells upon the rapid growth of cities, of the increased variety and complexity of the types of buildings needed in a modern city, and the conditions under which the ordinary demand is met. He separates the commercial problem involved by urban building into two parts. One of these concerns the real estate problem, including the study of the site, its surroundings, accessibility, and in general all the exterior factors. The other concerns the building proper, including the cost, the number of stories, the size, the planning, the elevator equipment, and in general all the interior factors which determine success or failure.

The larger part of the book is naturally occupied with a discussion of the interior factors. Not that the interior factors are more important than the exterior ones, but they are more numerous, more complex, and on the whole not so well understood. In the chapter devoted to the exterior factors he discusses, however, such matters as accessibility, approach, transportation, topography, street plan, shape and size of building lots, the comparative value of corner and inside lots, paving, the width of streets, nuisances, restrictions, taxation and other artificial interferences with natural tendencies. The end of this chapter contains an admirable summary in which the beneficial and detrimental exterior influences upon each class of building are classified and placed in parallel columns.

Mr. Evers' investigation into the internal factors is equally exhaustive and helpful. He discusses in the first place the structural problem in its general aspect and insists upon the importance of harmonizing a building with its surroundings and of making its cost proportionate to that of the land. He goes exhaustively into the requirements in the way of good planning, light and air, convenience and the like, which all buildings need, no matter whether they are devoted to business or residential purposes. Then he takes up the special requirements which different classes of buildings have to meet. He discusses in turn private residences, two-family houses, business buildings in general, and retail stores in particular. Finally he goes exhaustively into the structural life of different classes of buildings, how fast they depreciate, how they can be most economically maintained and operated. All the points which Mr. Evers makes are driven home by numerous examples. The book abounds in useful facts and illuminating figures. Over sixty illustrations are published, showing instances of good and bad plans, successful and unsuccessful buildings. Finally, the book contains an accurate and a complete index, so that a broker or owner who wishes information on a special matter can find it with the least possible trouble. The circulation of the book among real estate owners and builders in all the large cities of the country would result in an enormous saving to all classes who are commercially interested in urban real estate.

Subway Extension Would Give Work.

Editor of the RECORD AND GUIDE:

At the present time the city administration is apparently taking a keen interest in the anticipation of the distress of the poor and working men during the coming winter. Is the same interest being exhibited toward the property owner of the city, who in the past has done so much, and in the future is willing to repeat, if he can get the opportunity to aid the masses?

In the section lying between the present terminal of the Broadway subway and the Yonkers line there is a vast amount of money invested. Notwithstanding this fact, the taxes have been substantially increased, not to mention the assessments that have been levied from time to time, and notwithstanding this fact they have no transportation facilities.

If it is the desire of the administration to relieve the prospective suffering on one hand, and the onerous burden on the taxpayers on the other, it would seem to be the psychological moment to suggest that if they at once resolved to extend the present subway system to the Yonkers line thousands of the present unemployed could obtain work and the present or anticipated distress could be greatly minimized. This would relieve the unemployed and be a boon to the taxpayers as well.

Other and seemingly less necessary improvements have been made in the past, and are being made now, so why not extend the Broadway subway? Beyond advantages that would come to our property holders, it would add even larger and greater advantages—it would serve to bring the shoppers from Yonkers and other suburban cities, towns and villages in Westchester County to the shopping districts. No satisfactory reason has thus far been given for the delay of the past, so now, when the advantages are twofold, we should begin the work without further delay. Mr. Taxpayer and Mr. Unemployed, what do you say?

GEORGE B. HAYES.

Would Not Tax Commuters.

Editor of the RECORD AND GUIDE:

John J. Hoeckle touches on an important topic in his suggestion for getting revenue from those whose income is in excess of a certain sum, if such is earned here, when the individual resides outside of the Greater New York Boundary. This has been thought of as well by the writer, who has questioned authorities as to its legality and the possibility of a method of collection, and has learned that such a tax would be of doubtful expediency, as it might have a tendency to repress capital invested here. It is obvious that one earning in excess of twelve hundred dollars per annum may be either an individual or a firm, and a firm must hire a place to transact business and is necessarily a rent payer.

The Over-Manned Municipality.

(From the Evening Mail.)

Those who insist most strongly upon economy in the operation of the city government hesitate to urge the reduction of the absurdly large office forces in municipal departments or the thinning of the overcrowded ranks of foremen, inspectors and other supervisory employes.

But one thing must be insisted upon, namely, that in creating office staffs and working forces for new departments supernumeraries be taken from their enforced idling in overmanned bureaus and put where they can earn their salaries.

Besides this, the Board of Estimate can forbid the filling of any vacancies in any department unless the necessity therefor is clearly established, and can require that, if the post has to be filled, it be done by transfer thereto of a man who can be spared from one of the thousands of superfluous jobs for which the taxpayers are assessed.

These are practical measures of economy, strictly feasible, and the people who pay have every right to insist upon such measures.

INCOME TAX DECISION.

An Injustice Remedied Regarding Interest on Mortgages.

Prior to July 14, 1913, interest paid on mortgage indebtedness on real estate acquired by corporations could be deducted from the income tax returns of corporations under the Excise Tax Law, now incorporated in the Federal Income Tax Law, providing the mortgage remained a lien upon the property, and the debt was not assumed by the corporation. This original ruling was modified and superseded by Treasury Decision 1865. In this decision it was held in effect that indebtedness secured by mortgage upon property to which the corporation has taken or is taking title, or in which it has an equity, is the indebtedness of the corporation, and that interest payments on such indebtedness cannot be deducted except to the extent that the whole amount of interest paid upon bonded or other indebtedness does not exceed an amount paid upon a sum not in excess of the paid-up capital stock outstanding at the close of the year.

This latter ruling has worked injustice to real estate owners who were not only required to thereby pay the income tax, but also interest upon mortgage indebtedness. This inequitable condition of affairs has received the careful attention of the Law and Legislative Committee of the Advisory Council of Real Estate Interests, Walter Lindner, chairman. Every effort has been made by this committee to have the Treasury Department reverse its ruling, Treasury Decision 1865, particularly since this committee has the tax on mortgages eliminated and a tax restricted to equities and not mortgages, in the War Tax Bill. Briefs were presented upon the merits of the case, and arguments advanced in Washington. The Treasury Department was notified that a test case would be prepared with reference to this ruling, and, if necessary, followed to the Supreme Court of the United States.

However, the Advisory Council is able to announce that the injustice of this decision has been recognized by the Treasury Department and remedied under a synopsis of rulings on questions relating to the income tax that were issued by the Treasury Department under date of December 14, released for publication December 18. Under the heading with reference to rulings in relation to corporation income tax, is the following:

"As used in the act, the expression 'collateral the subject of sale' etc., refers to physical or tangible property bound for the performance of certain covenants or payment of certain obligations, and which physical or tangible property is the 'subject of sale in the ordinary business of a corporation' owning the same. Where such corporation is, as a matter of its ordinary business engaged in buying and selling, or dealing in such property, the interest actually paid within the year on indebtedness wholly secured by such collateral may be allowably deducted from gross income as an expense of doing business, without regard to the limit or deductible interest as otherwise provided by the statute. The corporation, etc., must be organized and operated for the purpose of buying, selling, and dealing in the particular kind of property which becomes collateral in question, and the particular kind of property pledged for the debt upon which the interest is paid much be the 'subject of sale in the ordinary business of the corporation.' Real estate mortgaged, and the property of corporations organized for and engaged in the business of buying, selling, and dealing in real estate; warehouse receipts representing property the subject of sale in the ordinary business of the corporation owning the same, and which warehouse receipts are pledged as collateral for such corporation's own debt, are examples where the interest paid will be deductible as a 'business expense' and not be subject to the statutory limitation as to interest deduction."

The Long Island Exchange.

Committees appointed recently by the Long Island Real Estate Exchange met at luncheon Tuesday in Shanley's to report progress in the work of enrolling new members and arousing interest in the organization in all Long Island counties. James Frank, president of the exchange, presided, and those present included Alfred H. Wagg, secretary; M. Morgenthau, Jr., president, and F. A. Austin, executive secretary of the Real Estate Association of the State of New York.

It was resolved that the grievance committee of the exchange should prepare a statement of exactly what should be done to protect the legitimate brokers and operators of Long Island from illegitimate practices, and ask for suggestions from members as to what practices should be opposed. Weekly luncheon meetings of the exchange will be a feature of the year's work hereafter.

Tunnel for B. R. T.

A tunnel under the East River at 60th street is likely to be substituted for the use of the Queensboro Bridge by the new subway system. In the Board of Estimate the Transit Committee was authorized to take up the substitution with the Public Service Commission, in accordance with the proposal made by the Degnon Contracting Company which has offered to construct the subway tunnels for not more than $4,500,000 and has proposed to abandon its contract for one track along Fifty-ninth street from Fifth to Second avenue and to build instead both tracks of the new subway in 60th street.

THE BARGE CANAL TERMINALS.

The Locations of Three Finally Decided On for Queens.

Three barge canal terminals will be located in the Borough of Queens—one on the East River, just north of the Queensboro Bridge; one on Halletts Cove, at the foot of Broadway, Astoria; and the other on Flushing Bay, just west of Flushing Creek. This was decided at a meeting of the State Canal Board held Monday night in Albany, at which time the necessary resolutions were adopted, and the appropriation maps approved for the two sites in Long Island City.

The Chamber of Commerce of the Borough of Queens started an active campaign last March to secure several terminals, and through the co-operation of Borough President Connolly, have now been successful in their efforts. These terminals will undoubtedly be one of the most important factors in bringing many new industries and merchants into the borough who will require just such shipping facilities.

Clinton T. Roe, chairman of the Special Committee of the Chamber of Commerce, and Borough President Connolly, have just returned from Albany where they appeared before the State Canal Board and urged the necessity of two terminals in Long Island City. The site in Long Island City on the East River at Rogers avenue, will have a frontage on the water of 680 feet and a depth of 150 feet. The site on Halletts Cove is at the junction of Broadway and the Boulevard. The necessary steps in the matter will now be to have the Commissioner of Public Works of the State approve the maps, the Attorney-General of the State certify to the title of the property, and notice served on the owners of the property involved that the State will take same for terminal purposes. The maps will then be filed in the office of the Clerk of Queens County, and the State will proceed to fix the value either by condemnation, or through a proceeding in the Court of Claims, or by private agreement.

PRIVATE REALTY SALES.

A three and a half million dollar deal is considered unusual at any season of the year, but such a transaction, during Christmas week, is a rarity. There have been deals of similar magnitude during 1914; most of them involved more or less of an element of trade, but the sale of the Hotel Gotham this week, as far as has been learned, concerned no other properties. While as an individual transaction it may indicate no new trend, or new turn of the real estate situation, it, nevertheless, is regarded as significant, and has caused considerable comment in realty circles. The sale to Mr. Franklin Pettit may forecast a re-sale to one who will hold it for a permanent investment; many of his important purchases have, in the past, been disposed of in such a manner.

Such a re-sale, involving as it does so valuable a holding, may indicate a revival of buying activity among both speculators and builders who have become cognizant of the chances for obtaining choice properties at bargain prices.

There is no doubt but that there are at this time a great number of desirable investment parcels on the market. As one real estate man said in these columns last week: "There is always a chance to sell a piece of property in the central part of Manhattan, if the price asked is reasonable and a little below the actual value."

Perhaps the Hotel Gotham sale evidences the new attitude of hitherto hesitant buyers. Perhaps after the first of the year others will realize the opportunity at hand for the acquisition of high-class real estate holdings and the market will be restored at least to anti-bellum conditions.

Other large transactions of the week involved vacant holdings on the West Side; one concerned a West End avenue corner to be improved with a new apartment house and the other a West 67th street plot to be used as the site of a tall studio building.

The total number of sales reported and not recorded in Manhattan this week was 12 as against 27 last week and 18 a year ago.

The number of sales south of 59th street was 2, as compared with 8 last week and 4 a year ago.

The sales north of 59th street aggregated 10, as compared with 19 last week and 14 a year ago.

The total number of conveyances in Manhattan was 92, as against 124 last week, 23 having stated considerations totaling $805,290. Mortgages recorded this week number 49, involving $587,751, as against 58 last week, totaling $2,837,-921.

From the Bronx 8 sales at private contract were recorded, as against 20 last week and 10 a year ago.

The amount involved in Manhattan and Bronx auction sales this week was $1,596,525, compared with $1,300,850 last week, making a total since Jan. 1 of $42,887,687. The figures for the corresponding week last year were $366,150 and the total from Jan. 1, 1913, to Dec. 27, 1913, was $49,132,257.

Hotel Gotham In $3,500,000 Sale.

Franklin Pettit, president of the Realty Company of America, has purchased from the Hotel Holding Company, Benjamin P. Cheney, president, the Hotel Gotham, at the southwest corner of Fifth avenue and 55th street, for a reported price of $3,500,000. The deal is one of the largest of the year. The Hotel Gotham was built about eight years ago and originally cost, with the furnishings, about $4,000,000. It is a twenty-one story structure, having a Fifth avenue frontage of 100 feet and in 55th street of 125 feet. The rest of the Fifth avenue frontage to 54th street is occupied by the University Club. The Hotel Gotham is leased, until 1918, to Weatherbee & Wood, at $175,000 a year. The present management will not be affected by the sale. Mr. Pettit's plans concerning his new acquisition could not be learned, although its desirability as an investment proposition may mean its re-sale by him.

West Side Apartment Operation.

Dr. Charles V. Paterno, president of the Paterno Construction Co., bought through Slawson and Hobbs from Meta Malchow and Grace Bruning, the vacant plot, 100.8x100, at the southwest corner of West End avenue and 88th street. It is reported that Dr. Paterno will improve with a thirteen-story apartment house and the project, including the cost of the land, will involve close to $1,200,000. He is now building two twelve-story apartment houses occupying the entire block front in the northside of West 84th street, between Broadway and West End avenue, taking in the northeast corner of West End avenue and 84th street and the northwest corner of Broadway and 84th street.

New Studios in West 67th Street.

The Fullerton-Weaver Realty Company has sold the plot 150x100, in the north side of West 67th street, about 100 feet west of Central Park West, held at $250,-000. The buyer is a syndicate of artists who are preparing plans, under the name of the Hotel des Artistes, for the erection of a twenty-story studio building. The property is flanked on the west by the new Central Park West Studios, and on the east by the Chatham Court Apartments; the rear of the plot abuts the property of the Second Church of Christ Scientist.

Queens Lots To Be Developed.

The Broadway-Flushing Homes Corporation bought 77 lots from the Bayside Homes Company, in the Broadway-Flushing section of Queens, in 28th to 32d streets, between Crocheron avenue and State street. It is reported that the lots will be improved with 38 detached dwellings of the semi-bungalow type. The property is in the immediate neighborhood of the 155-acre tract bought last week by Adolph Lewisohn.

KEWANEE

Turn Garbage Into Fuel

The operation is very simple. A small coal fire is started on the lower grates, the garbage being thrown into the upper chamber. It requires only a short time to dry the garbage, when it burns completely, without odor, leaving only a small amount of fine odorless ash.

The by-pass (a patented feature of all Kewanee Water Heating Garbage Burners) prevents the wet and damp garbage from smothering the fire when it is first started, as it provides a passage for the flames around the garbage, drying it to a point where it ignites and burns without odor.

The garbage burner is surrounded by a water jacket so while the garbage and refuse is being burned it is providing most of the fuel necessary for the heating of the hot water supply.

AUCTION SALES OF WEEK.

Except where otherwise stated, the properties offered were in foreclosure. Adjournments of legal sales to next week are noted under Advertised Legal Sales.

* Indicates that the property described was bought in by the plaintiff's attorney.

The Auction Market.

Auction room interest centered this week in the partition sale, held at the stand of Joseph P. Day, embracing the holdings of the James estate, in which the widow of the late General Daniel Butterfield was the chief party in interest. The sale of the various propertes cleared up probably one of the most involved estates in New York City. The properties were originally the property of Frederick T. James who died leaving many heirs. His widow, who subsequently married General Butterfield, was possessed of a life interest in the various parcels and the ownership of the other heirs was subject, for many years to this interest. It was not until last year that Mrs. Butterfield died, at the age of ninety, and, prior to that time, a number of the heirs had disposed of their various remainders, to buyers who included several well known local speculators.

The principal offering was 400 Fifth avenue, which was bought after sixty-five bids had been registered, by the United States Realty & Improvement Company for $455,000. The same buyers also obtained 128 to 132 West 38th street, for $105,000. Other buyers were Samuel Stone, who paid $14,375, for the dwellings, at 41 and 43 West 12th street; and the Center-White Company which bought 39 West 12th for $17,100, and 44 to 48 West 12th street, for $32,825. Rachael Frank purchased 47 West 12th street for $10,400 and W. H. P. Oliver bought the two-story garage, at 106 West 30th street, for $30,000.

On Monday the Equitable Life Assurance Society acquired as plaintiffs in fore closure proceedings the seven-story office building at the southwest corner of Wall and Pearl streets for $225,000, which was about $79,000 below existing encumbrances.

REAL ESTATE MARKET { Including a Summary of the Year 1914 and the Outlook for 1915

Comprehensive articles on all branches of real estate business will be contributed by prominent men whose opinions are sought and highly valued.

This section will contain valuable information of interest to owners, prospective buyers, brokers, operators and builders.

Suburban sections and the various Boroughs of the City will be treated under separate captions.

This special section will accompany the regular edition of THE EVENING POST on Thursday, December 31, 1914,

Annual Financial Summary

This feature of the paper alone insures its reaching many bankers, brokers, directors of banking and insurance institutions and other concerns which are directly interested in Real Estate.

As this supplement is kept for reference and frequently resorted to, your advertisement would therefore have more than one reading.

We would suggest that you send in your advertising copy early, as this will be a banner number, and will contain the largest number of real estate brokers and operators ever before represented in an Annual Review published in New York City.

BUILDING MANAGEMENT

DEMANDS OF TENANTS IN UPTOWN LOFTS

By HARRY STEWART HALL

Conducted by Raymond P. Roberts, Building Manager for the American Real Estate Co.

THE area bounded by 30th and 50th streets, Fourth avenue and Broadway was produced many loft buildings during recent years, and a study of the character of these structures and what is demanded by the tenants therein is of interest. In the lower thirties, between Fourth and Fifth avenues, there has been a remarkable development lately, represented by buildings devoted exclusively to manufacturing purposes. The rentability of these buildings has been truly astonishing, especially in a market somewhat given to over-production in other locations. Such buildings house large numbers of operatives, often running into the hundreds, and they are occupied, for the most part, by concerns engaged in manufacturing cloaks and suits, dresses and other Ready to Wear Apparel for women.

Essentials Required.

In all loft buildings there are certain well-defined essentials required on the part of the tenant that may greatly add to the desirability of the property from his viewpoint. In the building given over to manufacturing uses an all-important item is good light, and to such an extent has this feature become important that many builders will not today purchase plottage unless such permanent light is assured on at least one side, either by local conditions or by the purchase of additional property for light control. An example of such purchasing would be adjoining a church or institutional property, or by the "bottling up" of a low building. A number of good examples of this may be seen in the neighborhood aforementioned.

A second equally important desideratum is large floor areas. To the layman 25,000 square feet of space would appear to be 25,000 square feet, whether in one floor of that area or in five floors of 5,000 feet each—but in this day of Efficiency Experts, the shaving of manufacturing costs to a minimum, and similar methods, the ability to concentrate a manufacturing plant within one area is an important item in reducing production costs, by reason of closer supervision, fewer superintendents and foremen and a general concreteness of oversight.

"Follow Your Leader."

Therefore the large loft building today, if well located, and with the aforementioned essential requirements, presents a readily tenantable proposition. Of course, such a building must be well built, and its physical equipment and arrangement must meet the general requirements of the manufacturing tenant, whose demands, however, are usually not excessive. Where large concerns have colonized and have established trade centers it has always followed that the smaller fish in the same line of business have been attracted to the neighborhood, and this has of course been of benefit to the smaller buildings nearby.

Long experience has standardized the physical equipment of loft buildings. Buildings occupying plots of from 50 to 85 feet in frontage require two passenger elevators, assuming a 12-story unit. Beyond that frontage more cars will be needed, according to the ratio of expansion. In a 50-foot building one freight elevator is sufficient, but it must be of ample size, as it is utilized to carry also the many operatives, together with salesmen, who are usually loaded down with large packages. Again, as the frontage increases so must the freight cars, and this is a most important item to the manufacturer.

HARRY STEWART HALL.

The sprinkler system in any loft building is today of paramount importance, and irrespective of recent legislation requiring sprinkler installations in all loft buildings, the owner of the older structures are finding it necessary to make such installations if they expect to compete with the newer buildings.

The general demand for service in the manufacturing building is not great nor of the same calibre as that required in the non-manufacturing structure. The manufacturing concerns sell much of their output through their travelling men, or to the buyers of large retail city concerns, and while their salesroom space is often made most attractive, and at considerable expense, nevertheless the expeditious handling of freight and shipments is perhaps of more importance than the passenger service, although it by no means follows that inadequate or indifferent management is overlooked or condoned. Extremely high-speed cars, starters, etc., are not required.

High Class Lofts.

Between 34th and 40th streets, west of Madison avenue, are a number of large loft buildings of a much different character. Some of these structures run to great heights, 20 stories or so, and their occupants are concerns of financial strength and reputation, using the space solely for the exhibition and sale of merchandise manufactured elsewhere. These buildings require to be equipped with many niceties not found or asked for in the manufacturing loft structure. Mail chutes, hot water, fast passenger cars, the best of passenger service, an elevator starter, particular attention to cleanliness throughout the building, and, in fact, oftentimes service quite as good as that found in high-class office buildings. As a matter of fact, many of these so-called loft buildings have several floors divided and sub-divided into smaller salesroom space so that they practically approximate offices. In some cases the lighting and cleaning of these rooms is paid for by the owner. Obviously the operating expense of a building of this sort is greater than with the other type of loft building, though very often the rental income per square foot is no more. The non-manufacturing structure, however, houses a much more desirable class of tenants, and the depreciation of the building is very much less.

It is inadvisable to attempt to devote a loft building to both of these classes of occupancy, and in some cases an attempt to mix oil and water would be about as successful. In the thirties, between 5th and 6th avenues, there are a few buildings where it has been done, but in these cases the manufacturing element is of the lightest character, chiefly the best branches of the millinery trade.

Change of Occupancy.

North of 42nd street the character and demand is of an entirely different nature. Where the district below 42nd street is almost entirely wholesale, that to the north is exclusively retail, or lines very closely allied thereto. The large area is not in demand in the neighborhood in question. The two frontages most in demand appear to be the standard 25 feet, and in some cases that of about 40 feet. Furniture houses, wallpaper concerns, and a host of similar lines occupy floors in the larger area buildings, but structures with more than 4,000 square feet on a floor find it difficult to find tenants, except by sub-divisions into smaller areas. This sub-dividing is really accomplished by a grouping of the elevators and stairways in the center of the building, thus permitting of apportioning space into as small a unit as a quarter-floor. The few tall buildings in this district are well equipped in every way, meeting the demand for a high-class service.

Of course in a neighborhood so highly developed along retail lines the small loft building, usually six stories in height, is an important structure. Such buildings are loft structures, per se, but in reality the lofts are more on the lines of small retail shops. They are occupied by many firms catering to an aristocratic retail trade, and it is often necessary to give almost extravagant service. On the contrary the square foot rentals obtained are high. These buildings have, as a rule, been successful, one reason being that each tenant obtains an individuality in the occupancy of an entire floor, usually with a large and attractive window, on which he can display his name. In other words, he is not a lost soul submerged in a great structure of many stories, with his name appearing only on a directory located in the main foyer.

City's Policy in Registering Titles.

The Committee on Assessments of the Board of Estimate, after giving careful consideration to the matter of registering titles to property acquired by the city through condemnation or otherwise for streets, highways, parks, school buildings, etc., under the Torrens system of land registration, came to the conclusion that it would be inadvisable for the city to examine titles under this system for the reasons (1) that the cost of registering and insuring under the Torrens Law would exceed that of examination and insurance by title insurance companies, (2) a report as to the marketability or unmarketability of titles can be obtained from a title insurance company much more quickly than by means of a proceeding under this law, and (3) in case the city is under several contracts for the purchase of as many different properties, the titles of all can be examined and reported upon simultaneously by a title insurance company, while under the Torrens Law the examinations would have to be made by an official examiner and necessarily separately. The committee recommended that for the present, at least, the city continue to examine titles according to its present practice. A resolution carrying this recommendation was adopted.

Why Things Burn.

WE all know that certain substances will burn and others will not. Why this is so is explained in a comprehensive way by Howard D. Minchin, Ph.D., in a pamphlet issued by the Rochester Chamber of Commerce.

When chemical union of substances takes place with sufficient energy to develop heat and light the process is called combustion. In a restricted sense combustion is understood to mean the union of any substance with oxygen with the evolution of heat and light, but the term is used in this article to mean the chemical union of such substances. The temperature at which this union occurs is known as the kindling, or ignition temperature, which is dependent upon the kind of material involved, the condition of the material, the pressure, etc.

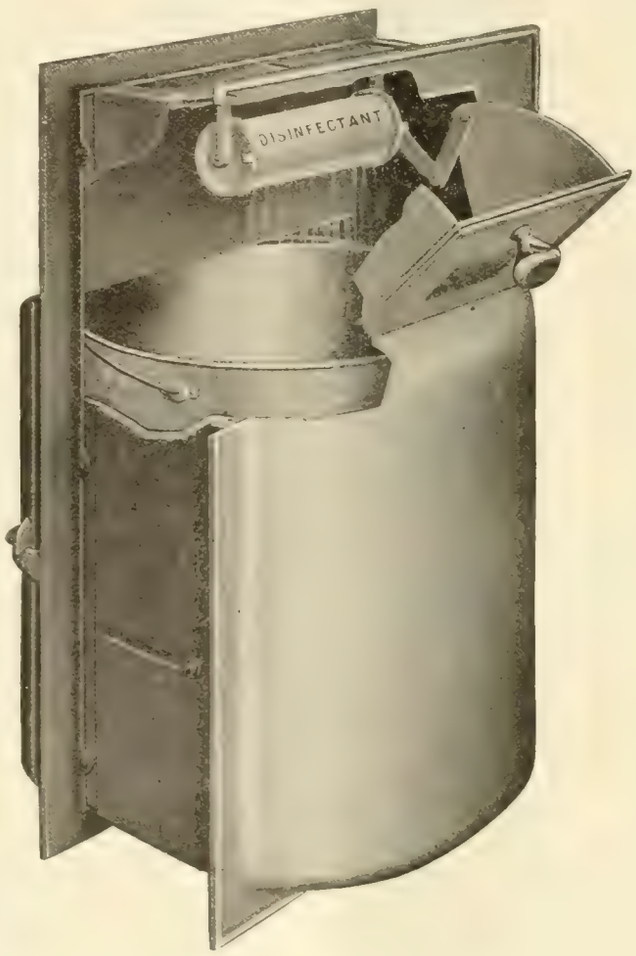
An inspection of a candle, oil or gas flame will show three principal regions. The interior region is dark and consists of cold gas, the next region is where oxygen is being united with the gas—the luminous part. The third is the oxidizing region, the hottest part of the flame. The tongues of flame seen in the burning of wood or coal have the same structure.

In order that substances may unite chemically it is necessary that each be brought to an active state, known as the nascent state. When this condition obtains the molecules are broken up into their atoms, and the substance as a whole is in a gaseous form.

The discussion involves both the kinetic theory of heat and the kinetic theory of gases. The kinetic theory of heat explains heat as a mode of molecular motion, the heat being due to the continuous impact of the molecules against each other. The kinetic theory of gases considers that in a gas the molecules are in continuous motion, darting in various directions. The pressure of an enclosed gas is explained as being due to the impact of these molecules upon the walls of the enclosure.

Anything that increases the velocity of the molecular motion of a mass increases its heat, and if this heat is not carried off the temperature rises. When the ignition point is reached chemical union takes place with the evolution of heat and light.

This increase of velocity may be brought about by: The direct addition of heat. The heat may be added by means of a lighted match or torch brought in contact with the material. The friction of a belt on a pulley or of an axle in its bearings may furnish the cause. By chemical action. We have as an example the heat generated in a pile of dirty waste. The process here is that of oxidation. Heat is generated and, not being allowed to escape, the accumulation causes the rise of temperature until the point of ignition is reached and union takes place. The condition is known as spontaneous combustion. The conditions necessary to produce spontaneous combustion are: Production of heat, an environment which is a non-conductor of heat, and material with a relatively low ignition point.



Some substances possess the property of absorbing oxygen to a very high degree. This is known as occlusion and considerable heat is always generated. Some of these substances are finely divided coal, charcoal, coal containing iron pyrites, carbon bisulphide, and phosphorus palladium and platinumate, two metals that occlude hydrogen so energetically that they will glow in the air and produce combustion.

Some other conditions favoring spontaneous combustion are: Wood near a hot steam pipe, wood in contact with coal, tow, flax, hemp, rags, leaves, cocoanut fibre, straw in manure heaps, sawdust upon which oil has been spilled. Very dry wood has been known to ignite by spontaneous action.

Built-in Kitchen Garbage Receiver.

HERE is a device manufactured by the Majestic Company, of Huntington, Indiana, and consists of a cast-iron circular front and hopper, which is finished with a flat white primer to be finally enameled by the decorator, when the kitchen is completed; or, in the event of installing in a residence already built, it can be given two coats of a good grade white enamel which will cause it to present a sanitary and neat appearance in the kitchen. The outside door and frame are also made of cast iron.

The receiver can be installed in an old wall, as well as in a new one, by simply cutting an opening in the wall 18 inches wide and 29 inches high. It is a very simple matter to install it in an old brick wall, as there is sufficient flange to cover up any roughness caused by cutting the opening. The galvanized iron can is 15 inches in diameter and 18 inches in height. Just above the can is a mechanical device for holding a can of disinfectant, which is so arranged that when the hopper is opened to deposit garbage, a small amount of disinfectant is discharged into the garbage can, which prevents unpleasant odor and keeps the can in a sanitary condition. There is also a 2-inch pipe connection on top of the steel body, and if the owner desires a vent pipe can be attached and conducted to the attic or to the vent stack from the bath room.

In some cities an ordinance provides that the garbage can must be delivered to the alley, or in case of no alley, to the front curb line. In this case, two cans and an underground container are furnished with a flat lid, so that the can may be buried in the ground, and the garbage can may always be in position for the garbage man to collect it, as described in the Record and Guide Aug. 8, 1914.

Smoke Waste.

MANY articles have appeared in this department describing the different appliances available for preventing waste through smoke. The November issue of the Technical World Magazine contained an interesting account of how large companies have been forced to curtail smoke waste. George H. Cushing, the author, says:

"Wounded in its pride, this country has at last awakened to its opportunity. The story of this awakening one day will make one of the biggest chapters in America's industry.

"It is to go far too minutely into the chemistry of steel-making to tell why this is so, but it is true that when the war began, the steel business of the United States came very near to stopping. One of the elements in Bessemer steel is feorromanganese. We had obtained this mainly from Europe, or Germany, to be exact. With fresh supplies shut off and with small stocks on hand, we were in a bad way.

"Then we got one cargo and arranged for others from South America. This eased the steel mind and established closer relations with our neighbor to the south, but it did not salve the wound to the national pride. In fact, we were stung to the quick when we learned from the Department of the Interior that these elements are available in quantity in this country and have been all along.

"Our steel-makers give the assurance that, before the war is over, they will have developed the deposits which yield those elements. This will make for the real independence—and hence the greater riches—of this country. This is the beginning of our home program.

"Another shock to commercial and self-contained America came when it discovered that while the tin can is the emblem of cheapness, and while tin is the foundation of some of our richest industries, we mine no tin. All of it that we have and use comes from 'the other side.' The supply was interrupted for a time and we were in a panic.

"It was with a sensation akin to pain that we learned that we have tin here and should have been working in it years ago. To wipe out this national disgrace—enterprising citizens of Cincinnati have said they intend to produce our tin. That will add to our riches. Surely, it will help to complete our home-trade program.

"These things hurt, but 'the unkindest cut of all' came in connection with the thing which, with us, is almost as common as dirt. The United States produces about 40 per cent. of the total coal output of the world. This giant coal pile is a mine of riches. After two weeks of study 117 separate articles were found to pass off in smoke. All of these things we have burned, or thrown through the chimney in smoke in order that we might obtain the three elementary things, light, heat and power.

"For example, all of the anilin dyes are by-products of coal. Chicago, Pittsburgh, Cincinnati and Cleveland belch great vats of gorgeous colors into the air daily and then send all the way to Germany to buy a supply.

"Creosote oil is a by-product of coal. This is used to preserve wood and adds from 200 to 500 per cent. to its life. We buy between fifty million and sixty million gallons of it each year from Germany. This element in the coal we either burn to make heat or spill it into the air as smoke."

Smoke in New York City is not as serious a destructive agent as in some other cities, but the constantly increasing cost of upkeep of buildings encourages more extended use of soft coal and the smoke evil is destined to grow worse rather than improve, unless means are taken to stop excessive chimney smoking.

CURRENT BUILDING OPERATIONS

New Bowery Branch Y. M. C. A. Will Contain Many Innovations—Unique Plan Inaugurated—Nurses' Home for Brooklyn Hospital

WITH part of the fund of $4,000,000 raised in the whirlwind campaign of 1913, for the purpose of advancing the work of the Young Men's Christian Association in New York City, a new structure is being started for the Bowery Branch. This building will be erected in 3rd street, just east of the Bowery, and immediately in the rear of the Dry Dock Savings Bank. The building will be seven stories and basement in height, and will cover a plot 64 x 135 feet. An open space, twenty feet in width, has been reserved on the west side of the building. This will probably be used as an open hand ball court, and will provide permanent light and air for the west side of the building.

Jackson, Rosencrans & Waterbury, Architects.
NEW $400,000 BOWERY BRANCH OF THE Y. M. C. A.

In many respects this building will be unlike any other heretofore erected by the association. Innovations in construction and management have been planned, and much study has been given to the building, as the requirements of the Bowery Branch are of a somewhat different nature than those in other locations. This branch has to deal particularly with and be of assistance to the men of the type who, from choice or necessity, frequent the Bowery and its environs; and in this new building special comforts and conveniences have been arranged.

As a building, it will be the last word in modern construction and will be fireproof throughout. The facade will be of granite, limestone and face brick, all partitions of terra cotta block and floor construction of reinforced concrete. Jackson, Rosecrans & Waterbury, of 1328 Broadway, architects, have prepared plans and specifications for the structure. These architects have a wide experience and a national reputation in the design and planning of buildings of this character, and their study of this particular problem has resulted in a building which should meet every possible demand. The steam and electric engineering is being accomplished under the direction of R. D. Kimball Company, 15 West 38th street, and the general contract has been awarded to George A. Fuller Company, 111 Broadway.

Inasmuch as the Bowery Branch will, in many ways, act in the capacity of a hotel for transients, a dormitory with sleeping accommodations for 150 men has been provided. In addition, 153 private sleeping rooms have been planned, which can be rented by the day or week. They will rent furnished for $2 per week.

Among the special features of this branch, which will be unique in Y. M. C. A. work, are a tailor shop, barber shop and laundry. When a guest comes to the Bowery Branch, if only for a night, if without baggage or change of clothing, he will be furnished with a pair of pajamas, his clothes taken to the tailor shop, where they are sponged and pressed and repaired, and his linen laundered and returned to him in the morning. This service will be without cost to the guest.

After a substantial breakfast, H. W. Hoot, secretary of the Bowery Branch, with his assistants, will endeavor to obtain positions for men in need of employment. A resident physician will be on duty at stated hours, and medical attention will be given to those in need, without cost. Meals will be furnished at a nominal cost. In fact, the branch will have all the conveniences of a modern hotel for men, but at a price reasonable enough to be within the reach of every one.

As a matter of fact, the guests will not be required to pay in advance, and if they have no funds they will not be turned away. The Y. M. C. A. believes that the men will pay when able, and their own experience has been that more than 65 per cent of the men who have left in arrears for accommodations return and pay their bills at some future time.

The regular Y. M. C. A. features will include a gymnasium, shower baths, swimming pool, lounging and smoking room, library and reading room. The roof will be of flat Akron tile and will be utilized as a roof garden. Elevators will be installed for the purpose of carrying members and guests to all floors, including the roof. This roof will no doubt be used as an outdoor dormitory during the hot months. A large auditorium has been planned and will be used for public meetings, entertainments, moving picture shows, etc.

The building, including the land, will cost in the neighborhood of $400,000, and, with the furnishings and equipment, the total cost of the plant will represent an outlay of more than one-half million dollars.

New Nurses' Home.

In order that the work of the Methodist Episcopal Hospital, of Brooklyn, may be greatly increased the erection of a modern building to be used as a nurses' home was recently decided upon, and active operations will soon be started. This building is greatly needed by the institution, and when completed will be of a valuable asset and addition to one of the borough's best hospitals. It will be erected on the property owned by the hospital and in close proximity to the present buildings.

The new structure will be located in the south side of 6th street, about 70 feet west of Eighth avenue. The facade will be of brownstone and brick to match those of the other buildings. The home will be five stories and the basement in height, fireproof throughout, and will cover a plot 150 x 80 feet.

Frank J. Helmle, Architect.
NEW NURSES' HOME FOR BROOKLYN.

Plans and specifications were prepared by Frank J. Helmle, 190 Montague street, Brooklyn, architect, and the general contract has been awarded to the William Kennedy Construction Company, 215 Montague street. This addition to the hospital group when completed and furnished will represent an expenditure of about $100,000, exclusive of the cost of the land.

Compensation for Accidents.

The operations of the law of May 30, 1908, providing compensation for accidents to certain employees of the Federal Government, form the subject of Bulletin No. 155 just published by the Bureau of Labor Statistics of the United States Department of Labor. The report covers the period from Aug. 1, 1908, when the law went into effect, to June 30, 1913, or practically the first five years of its existence. This law was the pioneer general accident compensation law in this country, but since its enactment 24 States have made provision for compensation in some form, all of them, however, on a more liberal basis.

The total number of claims filed during the first five years of the law was 14,963, of which 14,046 were allowed, 911 disallowed and six were still under consideration at the end of that period. Of the cases allowed 437 were for fatal accidents. The total compensation paid for all accidents during the five years amounted to over $1,800,000. Of this more than $732,000 was paid to 6,315 employees of the Isthmian Canal Commission.

In the fiscal year 1912-13 the average compensation reported for 3,320 non-fatal and 56 fatal cases was $106.96 and $661.12, respectively. Of the non-fatal cases 996 were Isthmian Canal Commission employees.

The small amounts of compensation under this act, when compared with compensation under the various State workmen's compensation laws, are due to the fact that under the Federal law compensation payments limited to usual wages must cease when the injured employee is able to resume work, and in any case cannot continue beyond twelve months. Under the more recently enacted state laws compensation, usually on the basis of one-half or two-thirds the average wages, is paid in case of temporary disability, during disability or in case of death or permanent disability for a period extending to six years, and in several states to eight years.

To Rebuild Another Edison Plant.

The Thomas A. Edison Company, Inc., announced this week that an additional plant, which was recently burned, situated at Lakeside avenue and Valley road, West Orange, New Jersey, is to be rebuilt at once, costing between $750,000 and $1,000,000. The selection of an engineer has not been made and the owner will probably consider propositions from several engineers before deciding on the new type of construction.

Church of Christ, Scientist, to Build.

The Fifth Church of Christ, Scientist, 241 Madison avenue, contemplates the erection of a new Science church. No site has yet been selected and it is expected that operations will be started as soon as funds have been secured. W. H. Burritt, of 35 East 32d street, is first reader. C. H. Hamilton, 241 Madison avenue, is chairman, board of trustees.

New Western Union Building.

The Western Union Telegraph Company, Theodore N. Vail, president, 195 Broadway, Manhattan, contemplates the erection of a new service building on the east side of Fairview avenue, north of the Boulevard, Far Rockaway, Long Island. Details will not be available before early next year. No architect has been retained.

Rebuild Country Residence.

Kenneth M. Murchison, architect, 101 Park avenue, has been retained to prepare the plans and specifications for the residence to be erected on the site of the one, destroyed by fire this week, at Locust Valley, L. I. No definite details are available at this time.

—The site of the Hall of Records at Chambers and Center streets was acquired by the city in condemnation proceedings, September 19, 1897. The land cost $1,799,441.15.

NO ARCHITECTS SELECTED.

In this department is published advance information regarding building projects where architects have not as yet been selected.

MANHATTAN.—The H. M. Construction Co., 927 East 163d st, contemplates the erection of a 5-sty apartment house, 50x100 ft., at the northeast corner of 179th st and Walton av. No architect selected.

MANHATTAN.—Mrs. Adele Harrington, 1478 Vyse av, have in mind the erection of two 5-sty apartments, 50x100 ft., on the east side of Valentine av, 176 ft. north of East 184th st. No architect selected.

MANHATTAN.—The Fifth Church of Christ Scientist, 241 Madison av, C. H. Hamilton, 241 Madison av, chairman of Board of Trustees, contemplates the erection of a brick and stone church. No site or architect has been selected.

BROOKLYN.—The Chauncey Real Estate Co., 187 Montague st, thinks of making alterations to the store at the northwest corner of Bedford av and Fulton st. No architect selected.

LAKE PLACID, N. Y.—The Board of Education of Lake Placid, T. A. Leahy, president, contemplates the erection of a school here. No architect retained. Project will probably be voted on in the spring.

ELIZABETHTOWN, N. Y.—The Board of Education of Elizabethtown, James De Long, president, contemplates rebuilding the school here to cost about $20,000. No architect selected.

OYSTER BAY, L. I.—The Board of Education of Oyster Bay, John F. Birmingham, South st, chairman, contemplates the erection of an addition to the high school here, to cost about $50,00 to $100,000. No architect selected.

EAST RUTHERFORD, N. J.—The Borough of East Rutherford contemplates the erection of a 2-sty school here, to cost about $25,000. An architect will probably be selected soon by the building committee, Otto Strasser, secretary.

BUFFALO, N. Y.—The Buffalo Cold Storage Co., Perry and Columbia sts, contemplates the erection of a 10-sty warehouse here. No architect selected.

PORT RICHMOND, S. I.—McAllister Dry Dock & Ship Building Co., 24 State st, Manhattan, contemplates rebuilding the plant here to cost about $200,000. No architect retained.

OGDENSBURG, N. Y.—The Ogdensburg City Hospital, Sister St. James, in charge, 46 King st, contemplates making alterations to the 2-sty hospital in King st, to cost about $35,000. No architect selected.

WATERTOWN, N. Y.—The City of Watertown Board of Education, Frank S. Tisdale, president, contemplates the erection of an addition to the high school to cost about $30,000. No architect retained. A special election will be held in the early spring.

WATERTOWN, N. Y.—The City of Watertown Board of Education, Frank S. Tisdale, president, contemplates the erection of a $65,000 school in Arsenal st. Project will be voted on at a special election to be held in the early spring.

ROCHESTER, N. Y.—Nazareth Academy, Mother Agnes in charge, 86 Jay st, contemplates the erection of a Boys' High School on East av, near Pittsford st. No architect selected.

FAR ROCKAWAY, L. I.—The Western Union Telegraph Co., Theodore N. Vail, president, 195 Broadway, contemplates the erection of a brick and stone service building on the east side of Fairview av, north of Boulevard. No architect retained.

OYSTER BAY, L. I.—Sterling Postley, 830 Park av, Manhattan, is preparing erection of a residence near Oyster Bay. No architect selected.

WEST ORANGE, N. J.—The Thos. A. Edison Co., Inc., 65 Lakeside av, contemplates rebuilding the plant at Lakeside av and Valley rd, to cost $750,000 to $1,000,000. No engineer selected.

KENMORE, N. Y.—John G. Seiner, 76 Thompson st, Buffalo, is preparing plans for a residence here for Mrs. Ph. Fritz, care of architect, who builds and will take bids on subs. It is expected that work will be started about January 15. Cost, about $15,000.

HOSPITALS AND ASYLUMS.

HORNELL, N. Y.—M. J. Thompson is preparing sketches for a city hospital here and desires information of hospital equipment and kitchen equipment in connection with same. Cost, about $50,000.

SCHOOLS AND COLLEGES.

VERNON, N. Y.—Walter G. Frank, 17 Clarendon Building, Utica, N. Y., has been commissioned to prepare plans for a school here, near Oneida, N. Y., for the Board of Education of the village of Vernon. Cost, about $30,000.

BLOOMINGDALE, N. Y.—Scopes & Feustman, 64 Main st, Saranac Lake, N. Y., are preparing plans for a 2-sty frame school here in Essex County, for the city of Bloomingdale Board of Education, H. P. Towne, clerk. Cost, about $10,000.

HARRIMAN, N. Y.—W. A. Dally, this place, and F. W. Wentworth, 140 Market st, Paterson, associated architects, are preparing plans for a 2-sty school, 112x80 ft., with wing 44x50 ft., in the south side of Main st, west of the railroad station, for the Board of Education of village of Harriman, Mary W. Harriman, president. Louis E. Eden, 1 Madison av, steam and electrical engineer. Cost, about $45,000.

PERSONAL AND TRADE NOTES.

W. J. CASE & SON, 46 Phila. st, Saratoga Springs, N. Y., desire quotations on ten car loads of 8x12-in. hollow tile block—Natco Penco Whittaker.

THE NATIONAL HOISTING ENGINE COMPANY, of Harrison, N. J., has established an agency in Philadelphia at 429 South 56th st, in charge of J. W. Spensley.

MICHAEL FRIERSAM, head of E. Altman & Co., says they are having the largest holiday ever. He predicts that general business affairs will continue to improve right straight along.

HENRI GUILLAUME, a noted French architect, who is to supervise the erection of the French Pavilion at the Panama-Pacific Exhibition at San Francisco next year, was a passenger on the French Line steamship Touraine, which arrived at New York Friday, December 18.

MAJOR F. L. V. HOPPIN, of the firm of Hoppin & Koen, architects, New York City, adjutant general on the staff of General Dyer, commanding offices 1st Brigade, N. G. N. Y., has been appointed by Governor-elect Whitman as a member of his military staff.

NEVILLE & BAGGE, architects, for more than twenty years located at 215 West 125th st, have moved their offices to 105 West 40th st, rooms 806-808. This is another evidence of the growing tendency on the part of architectural firms to congregate in the midtown section.

WHITNEY WARREN, of the firm of Warren & Wetmore, architects, will probably remember his present trip to France, as he has had some exciting times. While inspecting the ruins of Ypres, recently, it was necessary to dodge a number of shells which exploded very near him.

MAYOR FISKE of Mount Vernon has directed the attention of real estate operators to the demand for moderate priced apartments which will be created when the A. R. Mosler Company removes its factory from its present location on the Bronx River road to the plant recently acquired, the Hodgman Rubber Company's factory on Railroad av.

THE MacARTHUR CONCRETE PILE & FOUNDATION CO., 11 Pine st, have appointed Waldo Brothers, 45 Batterymarch st, Boston, Mass., as their sales agents for New England. This company is equipped to construct foundations for all sorts of structures where unfavorable soil conditions are encountered. They have already done a very large amount of this work throughout New England.

ENGINEERS' PERMANENT EXHIBIT.—A permanent exhibit of goods used in the mechanical, electrical, heating and ventilating field has been established in New York at 40 West 39th st, by H. P. Nicholson, formerly with Crane Company. The exhibit will afford an opportunity to designing engineers to inspect any particular product in which they are interested and have them demonstrated in an entirely disinterested manner.

THE "MADE IN THE U. S. A." INDUSTRIAL EXPOSITION to be held in the Grand Central Palace, New York City, March 6 to 13, 1915, will embrace a complete and diversified exhibition and demonstration of American-made goods and American-grown products in many fields. The exposition will be under the auspices of a committee of leading manufacturers and merchants and is to be managed by Harry A. Cochrane, Fifth Avenue Building, New York.

ALMIRALL & COMPANY, INC., owing to the death of the late Quimby N. Evans, the copartnership heretofore existing between Q. N. Evans, J. A. Almirall and W. C. Adams, has been dissolved and the corporation of Almirall & Company, Inc., has succeeded to that business. This new corporation has the same personnel as the former co-partnership and is prepared to carry on the design and construction of heating, ventilating and sprinkler systems in the thorough manner so characteristic of the former company.

HOUSING CONDITIONS.—After visiting all the second class cities in the State, the two Yonkers members of the Housing Law Committee, Assemblyman George Blakely and George T. Kelly, express the opinion that the best conditions obtain in Yonkers. The commissioners are now to address themselves to the task of framing their report to the Legislature. There are certain things to be incorporated, over which there appears to be no difference of opinion. One is to give the cities home rule. Each has conditions peculiar to itself; and is to be permitted to pass local laws to cover them.

ELECTRIC WIRING.—The Committee on the Wiring of Existing Buildings, of the National Electric Light Association, is considering the advisability of recommending various changes in the national electrical code, where it appeared that such changes would increase the safety of electric wiring without increasing its cost, or reduce the cost without resulting in hazardous construction. A final report on plugs and receptacles was adopted. It was voted to recommend that the code be so changed as to require the omission of the fuse in the neutral of three-wire services in installations having the neutral grounded.

OBITUARY

CHARLES ARTHUR MOORE, president of Manning, Maxwell & Moore, New York City, died recently on the steamship "Rotterdam" while en route to Naples, Italy.

STEEL EXPECTED TO LEAD THE WAY TO BETTER PRICES AS RAILROADS RELINQUISH DEFERRED EQUIPMENT ORDERS

Some Construction Comparisons Tracing Slump of Current Year as Against 1913

ONCE more steel is looked to as a barometer of the building material market in anticipation of better things following the granting of permission to railroads to advance freight rates five per cent. On Monday the announcement was made that the Central Railroad of New Jersey had placed an order for five heavy express locomotives that had been deferred since July 9 and from inside sources it was learned that practically every railroad running into New York would release large orders for equipment that have been held up since the middle of last August. This equipment includes rails, rolling stock and also building projects. Some of these projects may be announced before the first of the year.

There was some improvement in structural orders in the interior, but the Eastern territory, according to the steel interests, still show weakness in building work. In the aggregate the fabricating shops took orders for about 12,000 tons of shapes. Steel companies estimate that about 50,000 tons of railroad bridge work lies dormant, a large part of which may be expected to develop into definite orders within the next sixty days.

Estimates computed by construction statisticians indicate that building projections for the Greater New York in the current year will be 213 more in volume than last year, but with a loss in value of $10,066,657. The metropolitan district, which comprises the five eastern counties of New Jersey, Westchester and Nassau, will develop an aggregate gain in volume of 330 over last year and a loss in value of $14,907,000 over the total construction record for 1913.

Actual building operations based upon computations made in New York City only indicate a 50 per cent. deferrence of construction, the total prospective construction work for Greater New York either being figured for plans, with foundations already in, construction under way or halted above the ground floor, being $50,987,000 for the current year as against $101,300,000 last year. For the entire metropolitan district last year prospective construction work involving buildings of all types totaled approximately $89,000,000. In the same territory this year live prospective work totals $56,000,000. This does not include the New York County Court House, estimated to cost about $10,000,000.

Building lenders are inclined to view the situation as regards progress of operations heretofore deferred with favor. They are not inclined to make new engagements freely, either now or for operations scheduled to move ahead in the first half of 1915, on the ground that they want to see more evidence of an actual demand for building construction after the projects now held up are actually leased. Institutional lenders and private mortgage specialists do not as a rule come in contact with industrial building expansion. They are inclined to watch carefully the development that the railroads are expected to make, now that some thirty odd millions of dollars has been added to their possible income, and the ultimate effect it will have upon the securities and manufacturing interests of the country. If there is a general trend toward prosperity, interest rates will be likely to shrink and building money will become freer. In other words, some definite proof of the community's ability to absorb more rental space other than mere sentiment will have to be shown before building money becomes easy.

The year closes with a decided improvement in tone in all building materials. Whether this is purely the result of more universal optimism remains to be seen, but it seems safe to assume that immediately upon a change in quotation upward of structural steel, the tone in other commodities of the market, particularly in cement, brick and hardware, will follow suit. Prices may not actually move up from current list quotations, but it seems certain that much of the shading now being done will stop. Prosperity among railroads is generally very quick to reflect in the cement, lumber and steel markets. If this proves to be the case, building material interests will pass out of troublous old 1914 with genuine belief that 1915 will prove to be a happier and more prosperous new year.

Plan filings for the current week in all boroughs follows. In the corresponding week last year there were 189 new building plans filed, of value estimated at $1,937,325. The total construction work in all boroughs for 52 weeks in 1914 aggregate 10,828 buildings, of an estimated value of $118,585,020, as compared with 10,500 buildings, of an estimated value of $127,910,027, for 1913.

WINDOW GLASS.

Private Terms Figure Largely in Sales to Jobbers.

ALL reports from manufacturers of window glass have an encouraging tone. When the tariff was revised last year foreign-made glass was placed in a favorable position and competition from that source became a pronounced factor. Belgium was the country which was especially feared, but competition from there is not now a quantity. Stocks of glass in this country are not large and the industry appears to be in a very good position. Many reports have been heard recently about export buying.

The wage question has been settled, all the difficulties in the way of a successful season seem to have been smoothed out. Demand for glass just now is steady, but is mainly for jobbing quantities for immediate acceptance. Buyers, however, are not covering future wants to any extent. Private terms have entered into many of the sales recently made, as certain sizes were in limited supply and some sellers were not openly quoting on them.

READY-MIXED PAINTS.

Quality Rather Than List Now the Basis of Quotation.

REPORTS from manufacturers of ready-mixed paints agree that demand for their products through the fall season has been below normal. Salesmen have found it difficult to stir up demand and their experience furnishes an excellent standard for determining the activity of the market. Naturally such reports reflect the position of the jobbing and retail trade.

During the past two weeks or more there has been a more optimistic ring to reports and sentiment has changed so that many manufacturers are looking for a material improvement and the spring trade must be brisk if it is to live up to present predictions. The loss of export trade has made some difference in the movement of mixed paints. In quoting prices for ready-mixed paints, questions of quality, brand, etc., arise and this means that distinctions must be made according to makers.

IRON AND STEEL.

Fabricating Tonnage Will be Only Slightly Less Than 1913.

VARIOUS reports are current in the steel and iron trade with reference to improvement in orders. In the rolled steel department there is an upward tendency, but in the fabricating department the tonnage is still reported to be low. Only 7,000 tons were taken last week. But despite the fact that fabricating business has fallen off of late, the total tonnage for the year is expected to be only slightly less than that for last year owing to heavy tonnage booked prior to August 1. Had it not been for the war the probabilities are that this would have been the banner year in building steel production.

It was estimated that approximately 1,500 tons of steel will be required in the reconstruction of the Edison plant, destroyed by fire on December 9. If that is so, and brick buildings rise upon the site of the brick buildings destroyed, about 500,000 common brick will be required. Early estimates placed the probable brick requirements at a million.

Virginia pig iron interests were making concessions this week to prevent more piling and to sell current make. Prices have been ranging from $12.25 to $12.50 for No. 2 foundry, which was being taken mostly by equipment companies. Structural steel is still steady at 1.21 and 1.26 c.

LUMBER.

Orders Backward—Slight Improvements in Hardwoods.

RAILROAD ORDERS were said this week to be responsible for an improvement in hardwood inquiry. Other lines were without feature. Prices promise to hold to the present level during the remainder of the winter except on heavy timber, which is stiff on demand and fairly steady on price.

Trade is spotty. Manufacturers seem to be intent upon holding back on outputs. Even down East there is little logging work being done, according to advices received from important agents there. It is said that following the lead of other building material manufacturers the lumber men are not inclined to overstock the market.

On some kinds of stock wholesalers report an increased demand, but to a very large extent this is due to the special requirements of certain sections for stocks to replenish broken supplies. There is also a substantial amount of forced liquidation going on in wholesale circles on contracts for supplies closed previous to the present disturbance. It is apparent from the character of this liquidation that substantial sacrifices are being made in order to save the future loss which would accrue from any attempt to conserve holdings until market conditions improve. To this extent, prices in certain lines are very much demoralized, but it is a situation which has to be expected under existing conditions. On the other hand, substantial houses dealing in general lumber appreciating this phase of the situation, are not attempting to meet prices thus established, but are conserving their holdings with the firm belief that after the first of the year prices will be better.

COMMON BRICK.

Holiday and Cold Weather Checks Buying at Wholesale Docks.

BUYING of common brick this week as shown by the transactions reported from the wholesale docks was light, because of the cold weather and the holiday. In the tables below reports from last Friday to Wednesday, inclusive, are given, because of the holiday and the fact that the Record and Guide went to press on Thursday evening. This eliminated one day from the week's transactions. Fourteen barges went under cover and only one of the protected loads was sold. Unloading as reported by barge captains to the Greater New York Brick Company was light for the same reasons that caused a slump in wholesale movements. Inquiries are said to be improving.

Official transactions for Hudson River brick covering the week ending Thursday, Dec. 24-30, in the wholesale market, with comparison for the corresponding period last year, and a comparative statement of Hudson brick unloaded from barges for consumption here, follow:

EXPLANATIONS OF TERMS USED AND RULES FOLLOWED IN COMPILING RECORDS.

Q. C. is an abbreviation for Quit Claim deed, i. e., a deed wherein all the right, title and interest of the grantor is conveyed omitting all covenants and warranty.

C. a G. means a deed containing Covenant against Grantor only, in which he covenants that he hath not done any act whereby the estate conveyed may be impeached, charged or encumbered.

B. & S. is an abbreviation for Bargain and Sale deed, wherein, although the seller makes no expressed consideration, he really grants or conveys the property for a valuable consideration, and thus impliedly claims to be the owner of it.

The street and avenue numbers given in these lists are, in all cases, taken from the insurance maps when they are not mentioned in the deeds. The numbers, it will occasionally be found, do not correspond with the existing ones, owing to there having been no official designation made of them by the Department of Public Works.

The first date is the date the deed was drawn. The second date is the date of filing same. When both dates are the same, only one is given. When the date of drawing is other than in the current year the stated year is given. When both the dates are in the same year the year follows the second date.

The figures in each conveyance, thus, 2:482—10, denote that the property mentioned is in section 2, block 482, lot 10.

It should also be noted in section and block numbers that the instrument as filed is strictly followed.

A $20,000—$30,000 indicates the assessed value of the property, the first figures being for the lot only and the second figures representing both lot and building. Letter P before second figure indicates that the property is assessed as in course of construction. Valuations are from the assessment roll of 1914.

T. S. preceding the consideration in a conveyance means that the deed or conveyance has been recorded under the Torrens System.

Flats and apartment houses are classified as tenements.

Residences as dwellings.

All Christian names, streets, avenues, states and months are abbreviated when possible, also in some instances names of Banks, Trusts and Insurance Companies.

The number in ( ) preceding the serial number to the right of the date line, at head of this page is the Index number for the Checking Index.

The Star following names of street or avenue in the Bronx Conveyances, Leases and Mortgages indicates that the property recorded is in the annexed district, for which there is no section or block number.
